Testing
B.C. Ban

Bowman En Route
To Ottawa Parley

EDMONTON, March 29 (CP)—Agriculture Minister David Ure said today Alberta's machinery to force "a quick legal test" of the British Columbia embargo against importation of southern Alberta livestock has been "put into motion."

Ure said the province is not in a position at this time to disclose the means by which it would force the test of the legality of inter-provincial embargoes that followed the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Southern Saskatchewan.

Meanwhile, a report circulated in livestock circles that B.C. had stopped shipment of a trainload of livestock from Edmonton.

But officials of Canadian National Railways said the report had no foundation. They said the seventh stock train to leave Edmonton for B.C. since the partial easing of the coast province's bans had made its journey as scheduled Friday.

Premier E. C. Manning and his cabinet decided Friday afternoon to proceed with plans to test the B.C. embargo, which allows only livestock from the Edmonton area to be shipped into the province.

Realization of the Alberta "embargo-breaking" plan is not likely to occur before Monday, officials said. The province already had discarded any idea of asking for a "court reference" to test the bans because that would have required at least four months.

Speculation is that Alberta plans to arrange to send a shipment of southern cattle into B.C. Route and means of the transportation also are a matter of speculation.

Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman is on his way to Ottawa where he will discuss all angles of the foot-and-mouth disease and resulting embargoes with Federal Agriculture Minister James Garfield.

Dr. W. R. Gunn, livestock commissioner, and interested officials from other provinces will attend the meeting, called by Gardiner for April 2 and 3.

Before Bowman left today he said there would be no change in the government's meat import policy until after the Ottawa parley.

On his return here he will meet with B.C. cattlemen.

At present only livestock from northern Alberta may be shipped to British Columbia. Agriculture officials here took this stand in order to have the Alberta points of origin as far as possible from the Saskatchewan quarantine area.

Cayuga Shells
Set Big Fire

SEOUL, March 29 (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Cayuga took part in an attack off the west coast of Korea Friday.

The Cayuga, participating in heavy attacks which hit Red positions, started a large fire with an attack on a boat concentration.

Also taking part were marine pilots from the United States carrier Balrook whose planes strafed Red road and rail lines and gun positions from tree-top level.

The weekly air force summary, released today, said the U.S. Fifth Air Force lost nine planes over North Korea in the week ended Friday. Two were lost in combat with MIG-15 jets.

Dancer's Hair Her Own Spotlight

Her red-gold hair, made famous by every magazine and newspaper writer in England, was easy to spot as ballerina Moira Shearer and her writer-husband, Ludovic Kennedy, stepped from Seattle plane Friday evening. They will be guests at

Killer Wilkie's 'Wife'
Informs on 'Man I Love'

Can Police Blame Me for Falling for Him?
19-Year-Old Shirley McKeth Asks Newsmen

VANCOUVER, March 29 (CP)—The 19-year-old girl known as Shirley McKeth, who put the "finger" on Melville Wilkie, the mad Ontario killer, called him "the finest man I ever knew."

The tragic ending to the strange love story came here Friday with the capture of Wilkie, who escaped from the Ontario hospital at Penetanguishene, July 19, 1950.

"I'll love him till the day I die," Shirley told newspaper interviewers. "I'll never love anyone else. Can the police blame me for falling in love with a killer?"

Wilkie, 42, who was committed to the hospital for the criminally insane for the arson murder of his wife and child at Owen Sound, Ont., in 1933, met Shirley in a Winnipeg boarding house. Her parents live in a Saskatchewan town, but she did not disclose its location.

The couple lived for some months in a one-room shack in Vancouver's squalid east end, where Wilkie had a backyard car repair shop.

"He was good to me," said Shirley. "No man alive could be that good. They say he was insane. That's the silliest thing I ever heard."

From Vancouver, Wilkie sent her an engagement ring and she came out to join him. They planned to be married and lived for a time in a downtown rooming house.

"But we had separate rooms," explained Shirley as she told of her life in Vancouver.

Oxford Crew
Trim Cantabs

LONDON, March 29 (Reuters)—The Oxford University crew pulled a stunning upset by defeating Cambridge today in the boat race. Oxford, trailing along the 4½-mile wind and snow driven Thames River course, winning by a scant quarter-length.

Setting a faster stroke than the long-sweeping Cambridge crew through the whole gruelling race, the Oxford shell, broke ahead in the last 100 yards to nip the favorites in Britain's biggest rowing event.

Shortly before last Christmas she returned to visit her parents in Saskatchewan. While at home friends held a bridal shower for her.

Her parents never met Wilkie, she said, but they were willing for her to marry him. She couldn't get married here until she was 21 unless her parents consented.

"If we'd been in Manitoba we'd have got married," she said. "You can get married there when you're 18."

But she didn't explain why she had not sought formal consent of her parents for a wedding here.

Before she returned to the coast, Wilkie had converted the shack into a three-room suite. Since then she had lived with him as his common-law wife.

She didn't know why she put the "finger" on "the man I love."

"Perhaps I wanted to do the right thing by society. I loved him and wouldn't do anything intentionally to harm him."

She never had the faintest idea of his true identity until the police informed her.

The man, who looked old enough to be Shirley's father, bid her goodbye in a telephone call from police headquarters.

He told her he would be returned to Penetanguishene, and when he finished she said simply: "Goodbye, Andy."

For reporters she had a final word: "If there's a chance that he'll ever be free, I'll wait for him."

Navy May Purchase
Yarrows Shipyards$3,000,000 STEEL MILL
PLANNED FOR ALBERTA

EDMONTON, March 29 (CP)—Government officials said today a $3,000,000 steel mill will locate in Alberta and will be the beginning of an iron and steel industry that is expected to grow with the province.

The mill would have a capacity of 200 tons of steel and from daily and employ about 140 persons. At the start, it would produce reinforcing rod and structural steel, later manufacturing pipe and nails.

CAR DROPS THROUGH
CULVERT IN ALBERTA

Spring Thaw Causes Washouts, Delays Trains, Forces Many Families to Flee Homes

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., March 29 (CP)—A car dropped 25 feet through a washed-out, culvert-bridge on a highway at the edge of Medicine Hat's limits Friday night, sending two women passengers to hospital with minor injuries.

It was the weirdest incident of several occurrences in the spring thaw that has hit southern Alberta.

The car was passing over the bridge when it just disappeared through a hole 15 feet in diameter in the pavement. It somersaulted and buried itself in a pile of dirt in the runoff gully below.

The occupants were able to crawl out of the overturned car and clamber up a ladder which rescuers lowered down the side of the gully. The car driver, Norman D. MacDonald, escaped injury but his wife and his mother, Mrs. David MacDonald, were taken to hospital.

Canadian Pacific Railway tracks have been cut by swirling waters at several points. Road bans have been slapped on several major highways.

At least nine families in an industrial section on the eastern outskirts of Medicine Hat have been forced to flee their homes as runoff waters continue to swell creeks and streams. Some were rescued by firemen in an aluminum boat.

The major washout, which occurred on the C.P.R. main line 15 miles west of Calgary at 1 p.m. Thursday, was bridged at 5 a.m. today by repair crews who threw a temporary timber trestle across the gap.

East and west-bound passenger trains that had been held up for 40 hours returned to normal schedules.

Two traffic bridges were washed out and a section of the C.P.R. tracks cut between Medicine Hat and Bow Island to the west. But by mid-morning emergency repair crews had plugged the new rail break and completed repairs at washouts in two other areas that had occurred Friday.

Government Reported
Negotiating Deal

Expansion of the Pacific Coast naval establishment at Esquimalt to take in the area now occupied by Yarrows No. 1 shipyard is in the planning stage at Ottawa, it was learned authoritatively today.

In addition to the Yarrows No. 1 yards, the government also plans to acquire the Manning Lumber Company property, formerly owned by Yarrows, and now known as Yarrows No. 2.

It is when this deal is completed, Yarrows could move its civilian work to the No. 2 yards which would be leased to them by the government.

The federal government is negotiating for purchase of the yard, to obtain additional jetties and shipyards to care for new ships which are to be added to the west coast command.

The three-year building program to bring Canada's fleet up to this figure was announced last week by Vice-Admiral E. R. Main, chief of naval staff.

Although no official statement can be obtained from the government or from Yarrows, a reliable source said the plan, which has been considered for several years, is now going forward.

The project has been advocated by Fisheries Minister Robert Mayhew for some time.

Although present facilities at H.M.C. Dockyard and H.M.C.S. Naden are adequate for the number of ships based here, expansion of R.C.N. to a 100-ship navy would mean more ships in the Pacific command.

The navy does not intend to use the area for new ship construction, but for berthing, servicing, and maintaining ships of the active fleet.

It is likely that the main part of Yarrows civilian work will be done in Vancouver when the deal is completed.

At present civilian work at Yarrows includes: 41 aluminum high tension towers for Aluminum Company of Canada; a steel tug for Powell River Company; refit of C.P.S.S. Motor Princess; and in the plans stage are four steel barges, and a new type of steel-hulled fishboat.

Yarrows No. 1 yard lies between H.M.C. Dockyard, and H.M.C. Naden. Next to Naden is the big government graving dock. The acquisition of No. 1 yard by the navy would give it facilities sweeping right around Esquimalt harbor, including two drydocks.

CATS, ROYALS
INJURY LIST

McIntyre, Boyce
Out for Tonight

It's even on all counts as Victoria Cougars and New Westminster Royals renew their best-of-seven Pacific Coast Hockey League semifinal series in New Westminster tonight.

Cougars squared the series here Friday night with a 3-2 victory, same score by which Royals captured Wednesday's opener in the Royal City.

On the injured list, the toll is also equal. Cougars' Jack McIntyre, who missed Friday's game, will be resting an injured ankle while Blinky Boyce of the Royals will hobble into Queen's Park as a spectator.

Boyce suffered torn ligaments in his knee when in collision with Ernie Roche and will likely be out for the season.

Bob Ballance will replace McIntyre. Don Slater is a possible replacement for Boyce.

Fifty members of the Cougar Booster Club were scheduled to travel by air and sea to the mainland for the game.

Radio station CJMT will carry a live broadcast from Queen's Park beginning at 8:30 while CKDA will air a recreated version with a 8:30 start.

On other P.C.H.L. fronts, Tacoma Rockets, who lead their series 2-0, will host Seattle Ironmen, while Edmonton Flyers are at home to Saskatoon Quakers who also boast a two-game lead. Both quarter-final series are best-of-five affairs.

UNIDENTIFIED

The unidentified body of a middle-aged man was recovered at noon today from the waters at the foot of Yates Street.

Police were investigating his identity but refused to add any other details at press time.

Island Potato Growers Form
Market Body

NANAIMO, B.C., March 29 (CP)—More than 300 Vancouver Island vegetable and potato growers have broken away from the B.C. marketing organization and will set up their own sales staff.

A meeting Friday night set up a directorate which is expected to be confirmed within three months. The new sales organization will be called Island Vegetable Co-operative Association.

Growers on the island feel they have a better quality product than competitors on the mainland and have been agitating for a long time to gain control over their own affairs.

The split was described Friday night as amicable.

Halkett Wins 12-Day Tubby Hubby Bet

By R. E. PORTER
Debonair Photographer Bill Halkett was today officially declared the winner over Times Magazine Editor Tom Merriman in the contest to see who could lose the most weight in 12 days by following the Josephine Lowman 12-day diet for tubby husbands.

Neither lived up to Josephine's prediction.

Halkett dropped six pounds from an original 175.

Merriman dropped five and three-quarters from an original 179½.

The bitterness between the two contestants that marked the last few days of the strain of dieting had not entirely disappeared at the time of going to press.

Halkett weighed in at 9 this morning. The scales showed he had lost only four and a half pounds.

Merriman, weighing in at 11 with more than a five-pound loss immediately claimed victory.

Halkett returned to the scales at the same hour and the scales registered an even 169.

He had been notified of a fact, that Merriman was trying to conceal, that there is a margin of between two and three pounds in early morning and mid-morning weight tallies.

Try it for proof on your own scales.

Both declined to go another 12 rounds in an effort to slim to the full 12 pounds promised by Miss Lowman.

"It was a cinch," said Halkett. "With a few variations I shall probably keep up the diet indefinitely. After breaking an old-time habit of night-time snacks, I find I don't yearn for them any more. Shall probably never take another."

Said Mrs. Halkett: "There was really no need for Bill to have entered the contest but having entered I knew he would win. He can do anything he sets his heart on."

Merriman refused comment.

He gazed with wide-eyed admiration at a picture of himself and muttered: "Much as I hate to lose the contest this proves it was worth it. Would you please put it in a prominent space on page 1."

Said Mrs. Merriman: "It has been nice having Miss Lowman planning meals. All I had to do each day was to refer to the book." Shown the picture of her husband, she remarked: "Whoever took that picture is very clever and very kind. But it gives me an idea. I may make Tom stay on the diet until he lives up to it."

The picture was by Merriman's ex-friend Halkett.

SEATTLE, March 28 (AP)—Music critics of Seattle's two daily newspapers agreed that Margaret Truman had personal charm in her Thursday night singing appearance here — but suggested that she might be in the wrong calling.

The Post-Intelligencer headline on her performance was: "Miss Truman Charms—But Not With Voice."

The Times headline was: "Miss Truman Shows Courage; She Needs It."

A capacity crowd heard her at the Metropolitan Theatre.

Critic Louis R. Guzzo of the Times wrote: "Let's face it. Margaret Truman has poise, charm, attractiveness, stage presence and ambition—but she doesn't sing very well."

"It was a sad disappointment. We wanted the likeable, modest soprano to be a success; we wanted her to sing so well that we might be able to refute some of the adverse criticism she has received; we strained when she strained to reach the high notes, and we suffered when she suffered with the low ones."

"There was an uneasiness among the patrons — and it wasn't caused by the presence of the secret service."

Maxine Cushing Gray wrote in the Post-Intelligencer: "Her vocal gift is a parlor accomplishment blown up to the big-time."

She added the barbed critique: "Miss Truman is unique, in our 25 years of listening to singers, in her ability to go off pitch at any point in her range."

She added that "Those who came to see Miss Truman as a stage personality and a comedienne were charmed and drew her back again for bows—but not for many encores."

Miss Truman sings in Victoria Tuesday evening.

Winner Halkett snaps "candid" shot of loser Merriman.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

SIDEWALK SUPERINTENDENTS

ON MY WAY to and from the Parliament Buildings in recent weeks, I often passed the Blanshard Street hill during its re-paving operations. And I noticed that it attracted even more than the usual quota of "sidewalk superintendents," those fortunate folk who always seem to have time to stand and stare at other people working.

The controversy over that particular bit of reconstruction probably accounted for the increase in spectators and I notice that, now it is completed, the spectators have moved away, no doubt to watch similar operations elsewhere.

OPERATIONS OUTLINED

KNOWING FROM past experience that there will always be a road-tearing operation as long as there is a Victoria, I am passing along to the authorities a suggestion that has just been adopted in London, Ont. That go-ahead city has recently introduced a nice civic courtesy that is being hailed as a forward step by its sidewalk superintendents.

From now on its city work gangs will inform the public by means of placards just what they are doing and what, when completed, the work will have accomplished.

THE WHY AND WHEREFORE

FOR INSTANCE, if the streets are being torn up for the installation of water mains a sign will be erected on the spot to say so. It will also add the intriguing information that London has 260 miles of water mains and that the job under way at the moment represents a further extension of the system.

Should it be a matter of sewer connections for a new house, the official placard will no doubt explain why, and probably eulogize the sewer system of London as bigger and better than those in any other city of comparable size in Canada—or words to that effect.

TAXPAYERS' RIGHT

FRANKLY, I think London is to be commended for taking what I consider a step in the right direction. Many a time, as a taxpayer, I have felt bewildered on entering a street on Monday morning to find work gangs tearing up the very pavement that had only been laid down the week before.

If we followed London's example, we not only would learn the reason why, but the sidewalk superintendents would find their self-imposed task of figuring out what it's all about with endless material for argument, for I have yet to meet a looker-on who doesn't know better than any gang foreman just what should be done and how much it should cost.

NOT JUST WHIMSY

A PROPERLY-WORDED placard on the spot would satisfy both the taxpayer and the sidewalk superintendent on the spot—instead of leaving them both to wonder if the city is hoping to discover oil under the pavement or if excavating in the hope of finding the foreman's missing denture.

Take the Blanshard Street hill for instance. What a lot of controversy would have been averted if there had been a sign explaining why the ancient elm had to come down at the foot of the hill and why the curb had originally been placed in the middle of the road. It might have proved such a newsy sign as to induce someone to leave it there, to add to our roster of historic sites for further generations to read.

PICTORIAL, TOO?

AND IF WE DID adopt London's idea why not, in the interests of tourist traffic, go one better and add a little embellishment to our signs, especially as much of the tearing-up is done about the time the holiday season begins. I even think it would add interest and artistry to the placards on such projects if they were presented in pictorial form. Now that the comic strip is becoming the universal medium of expression everybody would be able to understand and enjoy such a diversion.

Mainland Police Nab Wife Killer

VANCOUVER, March 29 (CP)

—Love of a 19-year-old raven-haired girl cost killer Melville Wilkie his freedom Friday. And it was the girl who put the finger on him.

Wilkie, 42, squat and dark, escaped from the Ontario hospital at Penetanguishene, Ont., for the fifth time July 19, 1950. He had been committed to the hospital for the criminally insane for the arson murder of his wife and child at Owen Sound, Ont., in 1933.

Police said Wilkie went to Winnipeg and took the name Andy McBeth.

In a boarding house there he met the dark beauty whom police identified only as Shirley. The two lived together and three months ago came to Vancouver.

Three days ago, police were tipped off that the couple were living in a one-room shack in Vancouver's squalid east end.

AGREED TO HELP

They went to make the arrest but Wilkie was not at home. When Shirley was told Wilkie's true identity, police said, she agreed to act as bait for a police trap.

Wilkie, knowingly, walked in to the trap four times to try to persuade the girl to escape with him. Three times in a row the trap could not be sprung because the police feared

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DAVE STOCK and IRVING STRICKLAND

Do you believe dieting or exercising the better way to lose weight?

Wesley Morris, chauffeur, 3321 Richmond Road—"If a person is going to be stout, they will be stout even if they don't eat anything and just drink water. If a person considers himself overweight he can't try working it off. That's my advice. A man won't get fat eating gold dust. But you would do better to ask that question of women."

Mrs. J. Brockman, clerk at Park Mansions Grocery, 1914 Ash Street—"Exercising. I believe the majority of people don't exercise enough to keep themselves healthy. I think they should walk more. I know I lost a lot of weight through walking when I worked as a waitress."

Of course, people should watch their diets and not eat too much. But I certainly don't believe in starvation diets. Exercise is the thing. Lack of sufficient exercise is the reason a lot of people put on weight in the first place."

Sydney C. Sangster, proprietor of Sangster's Veteran Auto Mart Ltd., 1824 Quadra Street—"Two years ago I decided to lose some weight and I took off 35 pounds by dieting. You can't take off weight by exercising. The only thing you have to do is cut out all desserts and starches—limit yourself to one slice of bread a day. You can eat as much steak as you want but fry it in mineral oil. Don't fry it in fat. The body needs food so you can't starve yourself. But proper dieting will do the trick. The danger is taking it off too fast."

Mrs. Anne Güldi, stenographer, 1261 Union Road—"I would say exercising was the best way of losing weight."

For one thing, exercise is very healthful. I certainly don't think people today get the exercise they need and I include myself. People should walk more, get out and play tennis or golf—anything. So many people don't get out to do any sports. They should. A healthy recreation gives people a happier outlook as well as keeping them in trim."

Martin Morey, salesman, Town & Country Real Estate, 1642 Hollywood Crescent—"Exercise is the thing. I have tried both diet and exercise in trying to lose weight and exercise is the only thing that does it. And it has to be really strenuous exercise. Walking around the block every night after supper won't do any good if a person needs to reduce. They should get out and work with a pick and shovel. That's the thing that will do it."

Man and Wife Needed for Hospital Jobs

A hospital on the west coast of Vancouver Island is seeking a man and wife for jobs of caretaker and cook. It was learned today from C. A. Mudge, manager of the National Employment office here.

The hospital offers good wages, plus a rent-free cottage, Mr. Mudge said. Applications for the jobs can be made at the local employment office.

Mr. Mudge also disclosed that orders have been received for welders and mechanics for the Alcan Kitimat project. He added that other workers for this project are not needed from this area at present.

Here in Victoria, Mr. Mudge said there was an increasing demand for skilled workers. Some of the job openings included: second-class marine engineer, tool maker, pressure welder, auto front-end mechanic, auto body man, radio parts man, flat deck roofing foreman, hardware salesman, transit and level man to work out of town, ship's draughtsman, power tool salesman, tractor and implement salesman and typewriter repairman.

TSAR STALIN

Lenin's Doubt Caused Split

By REBECCA WEST

Chapter VI in a Series of Eight.

Foreseeing that he would be unable to attend the next party congress, Lenin wrote a memorandum for its guidance, in which he expressed temperately worded doubts as to Stalin's fitness for the post of general secretary. But a fortnight later he added to it a far harsher postscript.

"Stalin is too rude, and this fault, entirely supportable in relations among us Communists, becomes insupportable in the office of the general secretary. Therefore, I propose to the comrades to find a way to remove Stalin from that position and appoint to it another man who in all respects differ from Stalin only in superiority—namely more patient, more loyal, more polite and more attentive to comrades, less capricious, etc."

During the few weeks of sentimentality that remained to Lenin, he wrote in the newspaper Pravda, with that freedom from mercy and solidarity characteristic of this Bolshevik world, bitter attacks on the work Stalin had done in his various posts, and he talked against him to his colleagues.

The last letter he wrote before he became helpless was addressed to Stalin and broke off all relations. But surely it was this postscript which must, if Stalin ever had a heart, have broken in. That his grip on the party machine was firm enough to ensure him the succession cannot have consoled him for this sudden and final repudiation by the man who had been his only friend, his only admirer.

Usurper Held the Trumps

It must have seemed purely cruel, purely unreasonable, for Stalin himself was what he had always been—he was just the same as in the days when Lenin praised and pampered him.

Stalin was able to succeed Lenin, in spite of Lenin's expressed desire that this should not happen, because he held several valuable trump cards.

As a good Lenin-trained professional revolutionary, he had for years been quietly packing the party machine with his followers, and they now openly hailed him.

Also he had a great advantage over all other candidates in his power to understand the non-Russian half of the Soviet population, and therefore contact with their leaders which had been given to him by his work at the Commissariat of Nationalities. It may have occurred to his colleagues that if he were displaced from office he could have very easily raised a dissident Asiatic movement.

But it was still more important that the most likely alternative candidate to Stalin was Trotsky, and many people were afraid of him. Trotsky was probably the greatest genius in the party. Not they had to clothe the conflict of their mutual loathing with some semblance of dogmatic decency. Slowly through the next five years, Stalin stripped Trotsky of all his offices, turned him out of the Commissariat of War, where he had worked so well, out of the Politburo, out of the Central Committee, and then forced one country after another to refuse him shelter.

Meanwhile, Russia as well as Leon Trotsky found Stalin's rule not so happy.

Food production was one of the main troubles of the Communist Government. In 1917 the Bolsheviks had split up the large estates into holdings too small to be workable and the yield of Russian agriculture had become deplorably low. The towns were hungry.

Drastic Measures Taken

Stalin met this situation first by treating the peasants as traitors who were withholding crops. When this brought no results, he resolved to replace the individual farmer by the collective farm. To this end the kulaks, the most prosperous farmers who formed 10 per cent of the 25,000,000 Russian agriculturists, were driven off their holdings. They were not allowed to join the collective farms, and their buildings and equipment were confiscated. Stalin himself said that the value of the property thus stolen by the state amounted to the sum of £40,000,000. Then the kulaks were either killed or deported to concentration camps.

The rest of the farmers were driven on to the collective farms, which consisted of hastily-pooled properties without adequate technical knowledge, machinery or petrol to carry out large-scale farming.

Some rebelled, and troops were sent to shoot them down. Now all Russia had to observe facts even stricter than those imposed on the seminarians of Tiflis. The famine lasted for two

Fatal Accidents Show Sharp Drop

Traffic deaths in B.C. in January, 1952, decreased sharply from the fatal figure of the same period last year, the Motor Vehicle Branch announced today.

There were three in 1952 and 13 in 1951.

Property damage was higher—$491,748 in January, 1952, and $428,447 in the 1951 period—as the number of actual traffic accidents for the period rose from 1,638 to 1,988.

In January, 1951, 400 persons were injured in traffic accidents, and last January there were 408. The number of accidents involving injuries decreased from 327 in January, 1951, to 282 in the 1952 period, and the number of accidents causing fatalities dropped from seven to three.

Number of motor vehicle licenses in the same two periods were 268,606 in 1951, and 290,248 in 1952.

One-Day Chest Drive Set To Hit $40,000 Target

Victoria's one-day Community Chest appeal April 15 will be designed to make up the deficit from the fall campaign last year. Objective for last year's campaign was $161,000, which was under-subscribed by about $40,000.

But the fall campaign in 1951 was not a failure, said chest president George Whittaker at the annual Community Chest meeting at Spencerhouse Friday night.

"At first the general opinion seemed to be that a substantial failure had been the result," he said.

"I am of the opinion that such was not the case."

"The result, in fact, was that we collected $6,694 more than we collected in the successful campaign of the previous year," he added.

In his report, chest president Whittaker said: "I venture to suggest that one federated appeal will be brought about by the public itself."

House Wrangles Over Estimates

OTTAWA, March 29 (CP).—The Commons went through the Anguish of its annual family quarrel Friday night.

The blow-up concerned the federal government's supplementary estimates, those last-minute appropriations brought down every year to meet expenses not provided for when the main estimates are approved in the previous year.

The Progressive Conservatives complained the government wasn't giving members enough time to study the supplementary estimates, which total $246,500,000. They must be passed by midnight Monday night, the end of the government's 1951-52 fiscal year.

The government, through Finance Minister Abbott, said the appropriations represented no new policies; they were the traditional tag-end expenses presented every year-end.

"The grumbling and grousing rumbled across the chamber most of the day and then blossomed into a full-throated quarrel when George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, accused the government of trying to 'blackmail' Parliament."

With Liberal members chanting a chorus of "withdraw," Trade Minister Howe advanced into the aisle between government and opposition benches and rasped that Drew should apologize for that remark.

Drew wouldn't. He said the estimates were presented in a way "designed" to prevent adequate discussion.

Abbott observed tartly that if thousands of civil servants don't get their cheques on time it will be because the opposition has delayed them.

SET ASIDE STUDY

The 11 p.m. adjournment hour was upon the chamber by that time and members agreed to set aside the study of private members' legislation Monday to have another crack at the estimates. Of the $246,500,000, $195,500,000 of the appropriations had passed. Another battle developed during the evening private members' hour when the C.C.F., campaigning against the passage of divorce bills from Quebec and Newfoundland, forced four formal votes by tactical moves. They lost all four votes, but won a point when only four of 51 divorce bills passed.

The discussions on estimates produced little news, though a pint-sized debate developed over immigration.

As the opposition questioned estimates for that division, Citi-

When the Bills Come In

IT IS DOUBTFUL THAT THE CANADIAN people have begun to get their minds around Mr. Abbott's latest estimate of expenditures even now. If their imagination will not stretch to five billion dollars their purse must. In the next fiscal year the federal government proposes to spend at the rate of $357 for every man, woman and child in the population. A family of four, an average, must pay the government $1,428 a year, just about $120 a month or $30 a week. The reader is respectfully requested to take a deep breath and look at those figures a second time.

Just four years ago, in 1948-49, the government spent $2.1 billion. The latest estimate of $5 billion for the next year is more than twice that. The biggest spending year of our history was 1943-44, when the budget reached $3.3 billion, most of it for the war. Now we are near that mark again without a war.

The government cannot blame all these extra costs on the defense program which is designed to prevent a war. Of $5 billion in the next year defense will take a little over $2 billion. That means we shall spend nearly $3 billion on ordinary public services, or roughly six times our total pre-war budget. Assuming the dollar is only worth 50 pre-war cents, our rate of spending, in real terms, has tripled.

Where is all this money going? A round billion (twice the pre-war budget) is going to children's allowances, old age pensions, health grants and veterans' benefits. These items have doubled in four years. The latest major increase is $250 millions a year for the new universal old age pension.

But even defense and welfare do not account altogether for the dropical state of federal finance. Nearly all government departments are spending more than ever and committing themselves to spend still more later on. The brief wave of economy launched by Mr. Abbott a year ago has ended in a tiny trickle and is now followed by a tidal wave of extravagance.

All this at a time when the government (quite properly) is asking everybody else to save his money to cure inflation and refusing to follow its own advice. Needing no instruction in profligacy, which comes to them by instinct, the provinces and municipalities are manfully following Ottawa's example. Their costs can be added to those mentioned above in calculating the Canadian family's personal budget.

We think that all this is dangerous folly but we don't expect anybody to agree with us. The budgets of federal, provincial and municipal governments apparently are what the public wants. The public, indeed, is clamoring for still more spending and seems to have an insatiable appetite for taxes. By the time the three wings of government collect the taxes needed for their new budgets that appetite may be satisfied at last. But a year from now we may expect still bigger budgets and in some future year, when the boom tapers off a bit, we may find it impossible to carry the load we have compelled government to lay on our backs.

All our governments, we believe, are heading for financial trouble by an old and familiar route. At the moment, however, neither they nor most of the public are interested in such warnings. The lesson, as usual, must be learned the hard way.

Symbol of Human Aspiration

IT IS A FACT LITTLE RECOGNIZED by the layman that for a small community of alpinists the conquest of Mount Everest is almost a lifetime career.

The average person reads a news item from time to time, relating that this expedition or that has returned after an unsuccessful assault on the peak. It seems of little importance: a handful of men struggling up snowy slopes or rocky faces, existing for a few short days under hazardous conditions, suffering frost bite, snow blindness, semi-starvation and then returning to tell of progress made, higher camps located and hopes for next year.

A trivial thing, you think. An expensive and foolishly dangerous sport for a few with nothing better to do. Yet the annals of climbing, and particularly Himalayan climbing, are full of tales of daring and bravery that rival the best in our military history, of stories of sacrifice that equal the best in our long chapter of human endurance and devotion, of essays in courage, fortitude, physical perfection and mental discipline that are a match for similar qualities found in any of man's countless activities.

For more than a generation Everest has held the attention of British climbers. Almost every year parties set out to scale the lesser slopes or attack the ultimate peak. They are the result of months of planning, of testing foods, clothing and equipment under rigorous conditions, of selecting men who in skill, physique and temperament offer the best chance of sending a two-man team to the top in the final gamble.

A whole science of logistics has been built up around Everest expeditions. And until this year it had remained almost exclusively a British endeavor. The unwritten code of the climber had reserved this particular peak for the nation that had spent so much in treasure, time and life on its conquest.

This season, however, with British acquiescence, a Swiss party will explore a new route from the south, perhaps not to attempt the peak, but certainly to determine the feasibility of an approach from this hitherto untrodden direction.

A British survey of last season, supported by aerial photographs, suggests that victory could be attained in this way. If so, one of the most glamorous, spectacular goals that man ever set himself will have been attained.

The roof of the world will have been reached, and on foot. Other great climbs may remain, some perhaps even more technically difficult, but none with the call of Everest, the lure of what has become a traditional adventure.

The progress of the Swiss party will be watched with interest and every sympathy. But few will not secretly hope that the final conquest will go to those Britons, or their successors, who have by their years of striving made Everest a symbol, almost a shrine, of human struggle and aspiration.

A Date to Remember

A VANCOUVER CONTEMPORARY notes, with some editorial anxiety, the precedent established by an Australian Workers' Compensation Commission case. The commission has awarded $200 damages to a Mr. Douglas Date, a party organizer, whose little finger was broken by the handshake of a rival politician.

The Vancouver newspaper warns of the dangers which this decision poses for British Columbia politicians in an election year. The advice is timely, but the mainland journal is too restrictive in its comment.

It is not enough that politicians should be warned of the handshake danger. The warning should be extended also to all those amateur jingo practitioners who assume that the conventional grip is an excuse for crushing bones and muscles, and to those too hearty people who slap a man's spine through to his breastbone as they pretend to pat him on the back.

More power to Mr. Date and the Australian Workers' Compensation Commission. The claimant's application and the commission's decision "down under" in 1952 make this a date to remember—a crushed date, that is.

Government Tiffs With Drew and Coldwell Attract Attention to Foreign Policy Debates

By MICHAEL BARKWAY, Correspondent of Saturday Night and The Victoria Daily Times, from Ottawa

THE AMOUNT OF NONSENSE THAT has been written about the House of Commons debates on foreign policy has been remarkable. The worst of it has come from New York in the "Canadian editions" of certain American magazines, whose account of Mr. Pearson's clash with Mr. Coldwell bears about as much resemblance to the facts as a hamburger does to a roast of beef.

The dispute started when the C.C.F. National Executive passed a resolution criticising the decisions taken by the North Atlantic Treaty powers at Lisbon, calling them "irresponsible and disastrous." The trouble with this resolution was simply that the C.C.F. party did not know what had happened at Lisbon. They had every excuse for thinking that the decisions had called for an increase in defensive strength by all the N.A.T.O. powers, because that was what most of the press reports implied. It was even what was implied by an official press release which talked about getting 50 divisions "in an appropriate degree of combat readiness" within this year.

But the press release—whether deliberately or otherwise—was quite misleading, and some of the other press reports, such as the one talking about an agreed expenditure of $300 billions, were simply wrong. The government decided to hit out.

Hence Mr. Pearson made his broadcast. He said that Lisbon had decided on, not an increase, but a decrease of the forces previously planned for this year; and he rather bitterly indicated that the C.C.F. were playing into the hands of the Kremlin.

This accusation was not in Mr. Pearson's usual style. He has been as strongly opposed as anyone in Canada to the hinted imputation of communist motives which has done such shocking harm in the United States. But he and the Government were frankly worried about the C.C.F. attack on what the C.C.F. believed N.A.T.O. policies to be.

They were very much aware of a general feeling of eased tension; and they were worried lest the apparent easing of tension make Canadians careless and lead to a slackening in the defense effort.

The relative bad temper of the first exchanges has now pretty well cleared away on both sides. Mr. Coldwell has been straightened out on his facts; and so have a great many other people.

The other half of the foreign policy dispute was about the Far East; and in this case it wasn't the C.C.F. but some of the Conservatives who were critical of Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Drew accused him of announcing a new policy in a recent speech in New York. He hadn't done anything of the kind, and he was able to show that there

LOOSE ENDS

Spring Confessional

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

AT this time of year writing fellows throughout the land will rewrite as usual their salute to the re-opened summer camp. I suppose I have written that same column a hundred times; or at least it seems like a hundred times, though I am still a few years short of a full century. Now I have more sense.

There will be no repetition of my youthful follies in this space, no sugary stuff about the glories of the woodland cabin. I know better now and I am ashamed when I think how I have earned a bare living so often by misleading the public.

FOR in fact there is nothing glorious about re-opening the summer camp. There is nothing but hard work and bitter defeat. Every camp owner knows the truth after a few years' experience—in the long struggle between the camp owner and the ravages of nature, he always loses and nature wins. For all his prodigies of labor, his carpentry, his painting and his agony, the camper finds every spring that his cabin is decaying as fast as he is. There is no permanent hope for either.

Nevertheless, as a disillusioned camper man, as a defeated carpenter and a broken-down painter (working without union wages) I still resent the spring legend now presented in all respectable family newspapers.

ACCORDING to this legend the camper toils all spring to prepare his cabin for the idle guests of summer. The camper, we are told, is a saintly creature, an unpaid laborer, a human sacrifice who fixes his camp for others to enjoy. I think I have written that about 50 times so far and, like most things I have written and the public has believed, it is quite false.

In my old age I am willing at last to tell the truth. The truth is that the camper has all the fun. The guest is the victim of the summer camp and he has my sympathy, but not much of it.

JUST consider the innocent joy which the camper may enjoy throughout the spring, for the expenditure of a few dollars and the remains of his physical strength. There are no guests to bother him at this season since guests are too wise to venture into the cold days of April. The camper is alone with his hammer, his paint brush and his gods. He has nothing to lose but his health.

By summer, when the guests arise, the camper may be a physical wreck but what does that matter? The camp is restored, at least superficially, to youth and beauty, its face lifted, its cheeks rouged, its wrinkles covered with paint.

What of the unfortunate guest? He has no hope of anything better than a worthless hammock, a few free meals and a drink or two at his host's expense. He is never entrusted with hammer or paint brush. He is denied all the pleasure of caulking the leaky boat. He is seldom allowed even to touch the axe or the cross-cut saw. He is imprisoned in his hammock and stuffed with food and drink for which, lacking exercise, he has no appetite (though he usually makes a courageous pretence of it).

I SPEAK with compassion and experience for that forgotten man, the camp guest. I was once a camp guest long ago at the Lake of the Woods. The owners of that camp did their best to entertain me. They provided the customary hammock, the free food and drink. They waited on me hand and foot. They imprisoned me in kindness.

There I lay in the hammock, a sandwich and a drink in either hand, yearning for the saw and the axe which I could never touch. I observed the peeling paint of the house and would gladly have paid its owner the wages of a painter for the privilege of re-painting it. I noted the leaky boat and would have paid a carpenter's wage for the chance of mending it. But no host ever allows his guest to enjoy the real pleasures of the camp. They are for the owner only.

SO I left that camp, stealing away at dawn, on an empty train, and fled back to Winnipeg, where I have passed into the wild and dissipated night life of the metropolis. That is to say, I went to a movie, to drug my senses and forget my own camp 2,000 miles away. I have never gone to another camp as a guest and, with luck, I never shall. I shall remain a host to the last, if it kills me, as undoubtedly it will.

THE executive of the Citizens' League has investigated this matter further, and are of the definite opinion that if a Servicemen's Centre is built and maintained, it should be financed by the Federal Government.

In a survey of sleeping accommodation in Victoria, we find it is quite possible for servicemen to obtain a good room and bed at the Y.M.C.A., and also at two or three quite acceptable hotels in the city, for $1 or $1.25.

The servicemen have free access to the clubrooms of the many Legion branches, the Army & Navy Veterans, Y.M.C.A., etc., with reading rooms, billiards, games, etc. available. And of

Opinions Of Our Correspondents

NEW ROUTE

The reason for the strict secrecy surrounding the possible route of the new highway is now quite apparent. The authorities were ashamed of it! And well they might be, for the route outlined in the plan published in Wednesday's Times can only be described as pre-eminently stupid.

Originally the new road was supposed to follow the Burnside route to the vicinity of Helmecken Road, thence cutting across unoccupied lands and joining the Island Highway at or near Langford. However, an error was discovered in this route—it bypassed not one, but two beer parlors—and the new route takes care of this difficulty by joining the Island Highway before it crosses Parson's Bridge. In this clever manner one of the worst bottlenecks at the bridge is kept intact and the dangerous Colwood Corners are carefully preserved.

Approaching Victoria the proposed route skirts Portage Inlet where many tons of rock will have to be blasted and more than a few houses demolished. The road then crosses Burnside near the Interurban Road and sweeps over to join Douglas Street by way of Battleford Avenue at a point approximately two miles from the centre of the city.

The proposed route will serve no useful purpose. It does not provide a direct approach to the city. It avoids existing roads which could be utilized economically. In short, Sir, the entire plan amounts to a senseless waste of public funds.

JAMES BARR.

SERVICE CENTRE

At a recent general meeting of the Citizens' League, Victoria Branch, there was a discussion on the matter of the possible need of a Servicemen's Centre in Victoria.

Exception was taken to remarks from the floor of the meeting in which two of our members expressed personal opinions that a Centre would be too much of a burden on the taxpayers, and that it was not badly needed.

The executive of the Citizens' League has investigated this matter further, and are of the definite opinion that if a Servicemen's Centre is built and maintained, it should be financed by the Federal Government.

In a survey of sleeping accommodation in Victoria, we find it is quite possible for servicemen to obtain a good room and bed at the Y.M.C.A., and also at two or three quite acceptable hotels in the city, for $1 or $1.25.

The servicemen have free access to the clubrooms of the many Legion branches, the Army & Navy Veterans, Y.M.C.A., etc., with reading rooms, billiards, games, etc. available. And of course, there is the Public Library, Theatres, Arena, and many other activities.

It is agreed that in an emergency of war time, when there is a greater transient movement of servicemen, it would be harder to keep up with the demand, and that the need for a Service Centre would be greater.

This organization does not wish to convey the impression that it is opposed to a Service Centre being established, but wishes to reiterate that we feel the cost and maintenance involved would be too onerous for the Victoria taxpayers to provide. Victoria citizens need a Civic Centre badly for their own entertainment, and it should have priority, as it would be for the use of all—transient or otherwise.

C. I. R. WATLING,
Secretary,
Citizens' League of Canada.

CARPENTER'S REPLY

In reply to a letter by Mr. M. P. Paine which appeared in your paper recently:

Apparently Mr. Paine is not in possession of all the facts in the case when he states that the carpenters' unions throughout the province are trying to centre all their power in Vancouver. On the contrary the carpenters are trying to bargain through their provincial council.

At the present time none of the executive officers of this council lives in Vancouver, or belongs to the carpenters' local in that city. Due to the fact that most of the large construction firms of this province have their head office in Vancouver the carpenters are forced to bargain there, whether they like it or not.

As for the $250 per hour the carpenters are asking this year, this was first proposed and approved at a specially called meeting of Local Union 1308, Victoria, last November. Due to the seasonal nature of employment in the carpentry trade this wage is necessary.

It may interest every one to know that on a survey of yearly wages, for the carpenter, which is now taking place, it has been found the average wage for last year was $2640 or $50.77 per week.

Peeps Regrets

A pox on poxes and plague take the plague! I have been confined by a noxious rheum to my house all week, which sets me to coughing, sneezing and sniveling, and puts me in a vile choler. My room, though mighty clean and neat, has become a prison, from which I will escape next week or sue my chiropractor. Meanwhile I am tended in tolerable manner by my wife, poor wretch, she over-anxious, I sometimes think, to have me well again and at my office.

This survey is being conducted in Vancouver where the rate is $2 per hour as against $1.75 in Victoria.

The average wage of the industrial worker in B.C., skilled and unskilled was at Nov. 1, 1951, $56.91 a week. It is apparent the carpenter is at present underpaid.

In so far as cost of building is concerned, according to the department of national revenue at Ottawa in 1944 the B.C. contractor made $1,260 profit on a $10,000 job. In 1949 he made $3,500 on a $10,000 job. This is an increase in profit of 185 per cent. What profit the contractors now take from a job the carpenters have no way of finding out. However the industry is more competitive at present and the profit margin may have decreased slightly.

The carpenters are not happy when the cost of building goes up another notch, because it is true, it does decrease to a certain extent the amount of building to be done, but to expect the carpenters to take the whole load on their shoulders and subsidize construction by receiving low wages is asking too much.

We feel that our wives and children are entitled to the same standard of living and the same social and educational advantages as enjoyed by everyone else in the city of Victoria. This takes money. The only way the carpenter can get money is through his wages. These wages he is fully justified in asking for and receiving.

E. T. STALEY,
Secretary, Provincial Council of Carpenters.
Also member of Local Union No. 1398, Victoria, Royal Oak, B.C.

LEGAL PROBLEMS

A Reuters' dispatch quoting a "senior British source" on the expected U.S. British and French note to the U.S.S.R. interests me. The third point reads: "A reunited Germany must be free to join any defensive alliance approved by the United Nations. This would include the European army plan."

The University of Toronto Law Journal has published a very timely article by Mr. Justice F. C. Rand headed: "Courageous Courts Safeguard Our Liberties." It seems as if Premier Daniel Malan plans to defy South Africa's Supreme Court. Premier Malan has already defied a ruling made by the International Court of Justice over Southwest Africa.

The legality of N.A.T.O. has still to be decided by the International Court of Justice, the top judicial body of the United Nations. Are we afraid to sponsor a request that the Court be asked to give an advisory opinion on this point?

WILLIAM MITCHELL,
Vancouver, B.C.

When B.C. Takes a Look at Ontario's Bars

BRITISH Columbians, scrutinizing their liquor laws with a view to improvement—and seeing often as through a glass darkly—have turned some attention to the Ontario system.

To some eyes it has merit. To others faults outweigh its advantages. A few figures from reports of the Ontario Liquor Control Board do, nevertheless, throw some light on the subject.

Ontario, like British Columbia, has shown unusual growth since the beginning of the war.

SALES DOUBLED

In the 10 years from 1941 to 1951, the population jumped from 3,787,635 to 4,562,354.

During that period the sale of alcoholic beverages in Ontario more than doubled. For the year ending March 31, 1941, the gallonage was 34,882,150. For the year ending March 31, 1950, the gallonage had risen to 75,742,280.

Sales in dollars climbed more than threefold. The figure reported by the Ontario Liquor Control Board at March 31, 1941, was $64,083,560. At March 31, 1950 the preceding year's total was $196,790,174.

Cocktail lounges became legal in certain Ontario centres on April 1, 1948. During that year and the next, liquor sales increased in price and quantity, but the increase was negligible compared to the tremendous jump preceding the introduction of bars.

In the year 1947-48, the year before lounges were legalized, sales had more than doubled the 1940-41 total in quantity and stood at 73,474,121 gallons. In dollars the sales were edging toward three times the 1940-41 figure, with a total of $107,587,378.

With the exception of 1943-44, when sales fell 8.1 per cent below those of the preceding year, gallonage sold by the Ontario L.C.B. has climbed steadily. The yearly increases from 1940-41 up to April 1, 1948, in percentages follow: 14.1, 21.4, 7.9; then the decrease of 8.1, followed by increases of 19.8, 10.9, 14.8 and 14.5. When the lounges were authorized the growth in volume of liquor sold amounted to only 2.2 in 1948-49 and nine-tenths of one per cent in 1949-50.

A change in the popularity of beverages is also indicated during the decade. Generally speaking the sale of wine, particularly domestic, has fallen off since March 31, 1941, and recessions have occurred in several fluctuations in beer sales.

INFERENCE DRAWN

Sales of all varieties other than imported wines were lower in 1943-44, the year in which gallonage dropped 8.1 per cent, probably as a result of rationing policies of the provincial government. That drop did not, however, reflect a similar decrease in the sales by dollars. On a per capita basis, sales skyrocketed from 1940-41 to the time cocktail bars were introduced. With a 1941 population of 3,787,635, they amounted to approximately 11.2 gallons a head. Of that gallonage just under 90 per cent was beer.

In 1947, the last year before lounges were approved, and with the population approximating 4,176,000, sales were 73,474,121 gallons or roughly 17.29 gallons per capita. By 1948 the increase in population had outstripped the gain in sales and the per capita figure was about 17.56 gallons. The following year, with population still climbing, it slipped to 17.3 gallons.

EFFECT OF RATIONING

In the latter year, beer sales accounted for 92.4 per cent of the aggregate quantity.

If any inference can be drawn from the figures above it may be that sales which presumably reflect domestic consumption, have receded by a decimal fraction in the first two years of cocktail bar operation when computed on a per capita basis. The volume of liquor passing over the counter or going into the delivery wagon was still greater than ever before.

One other sidelight draws attention in the Ontario reports. For the year 1947-48 the number of convictions for intoxication was 30,620. In 1948-49, the year the cocktail bars came in, they had risen to 32,701. By 1949-50 they had gone up to 32,911. In each of those years there was a population increase of roughly 100,000.—A. H. S.

THE CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

An experiment which will be watched with interest here is the survey currently being carried out in Vancouver to ascertain the measure of religious education being given children.

The survey is being conducted in a 95-block-square by a 50-man team of investigators sponsored by Mayor Fred Hume's youth services committee.

All church groups in the territory are co-operating in the canvass and will use the information obtained in an effort to step up attendance at Sunday Schools.

Such a survey can be an extremely useful undertaking. Many churches, proceeding confidently in what appears to be a successful church school program, are actually missing big opportunities for growth in their own territory.

A door-to-door survey, which must be a co-operative effort if all the information is to be utilized, will provide a yardstick of need against which the current accomplishment can be measured.

'Christ for Everyone' Campaign

A campaign differing in type but similar in its objective is the "Christ for Everyone" appeal being organized by the Victoria Christian Business Men's Committee.

At its semi-monthly meeting Monday, the committee heard S. A. Whittaker, co-director of the continent-wide campaign. The theme of Mr. Whittaker's address was the need for getting back to New Testament methods of evangelism.

The aim is to unite all Christians in Canada and the United States in a concerted effort to reach out to the great number of people who never attend church or take any interest in spiritual things.

The method is to hold cottage prayer meetings throughout the city and Vancouver Island. Rev. A. D. Erickson, who represents the "Christ for Everyone" campaign in Vancouver, presented a challenge to the Christian business men and ministers to organize such meetings.

The movement is to be launched immediately with newspaper advertisements and radio broadcasts explaining the objectives of the campaign.

Women to Raise School Funds

Also in full swing this week is the drive for funds by the women of the United Church of Canada. The women are spearheading a drive for $600,000, to be raised through the whole church, for the building of a new training school on the campus of Victoria College in Toronto.

Plans for the campaign to raise the money—and incidentally to interpret the work of the school and the need for trained leadership—have proceeded with growing enthusiasm. In practically every conference area in Canada campaign committees are at work. These committees are representative of the Woman's Missionary Society, the Women's Association, and other women in the church, with assistance, of course, from the men. This same plan has been followed in the committees which have been set up in the areas covered by the presbyteries of the church, and in the congregations.

The women of Victoria's United Churches are busily at work on their organization and hope to equal the best that any presbytery can do in raising money for the extension of training facilities for the workers so badly needed by the church.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Salvation Army Will Welcome Major Watt

Special speaker at the Salvation Army Citadel, Pandora Avenue, this week-end will be Major Charles Watt, commanding officer of the Vancouver Temple Corps. Maj. and Mrs. Watt bring with them the Vancouver Temple male quartet.

Major Watt will also be chairman of the regular "family night" musical program at 8 this evening. The program is open to the public.

As Dr. A. E. Whitehouse is still in Jubilee Hospital, recovering from a broken ankle sustained in a fall, the morning service at Metropolitan United Church will be taken tomorrow by Rev. Moir A. J. Waters of First United, Speaker at the evening service will be Chaplain D. G. Peebles of H.M.C.S. Ontario.

Alliance Tabernacle will hear Rev. Paul "Tex" Yearout, former Vancouver director of the Youth for Christ campaign, at the morning service tomorrow.

Evangelist H. J. Ketner will commence a nightly mission at North Douglas Tabernacle, Douglas and Canterbury, starting tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Rev. Stanley Smith of Vancouver will be heard at Central Baptist Church Monday evening at 8. Rev. Smith is speaking under the auspices of the Canadian Protestant League.

Island Boys Win Coveted Scout Award

Two Vancouver Island boys and another from Salt Spring have been awarded coveted awards for gallantry by the Boy Scout Association at the annual meeting of the association's British Columbia council now going on in Vancouver.

Robert McDonald, 14, of the First Cayuse Scout Troop, has been given the Silver Cross for gallantry with considerable risk to himself in connection with assistance he provided a man who fell from a raft into Lake Cowichan.

Sixteen-year-old John Benson Rutherford, of the Second Duncan Troop, was presented with a letter of commendation for his part in rescuing another boy from drowning in Quamichan Lake.

Twelve-year-old Roger Patchett, a "sixer" in the First Ganges Troop, was presented with the Scout's Gilt Cross for his presence of mind in assisting another boy who fell into Ganges Harbor.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson was elected president of the British Columbia Scout Council; Major General W. W. Foster and Alan Williamson were elected vice-presidents; T. W. S. Parsons, made provincial commissioner, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keith Dixon, assistant provincial commissioner.

CAMPAIGN OPENS TUESDAY

Cancer Drive Joint Appeal

The 1952 Conquer Cancer Campaign opens in British Columbia next Tuesday.

This year the campaign is a joint appeal sponsored by the B.C. Division of the Canadian Cancer Society and the B.C. Cancer Foundation.

'Y' World Service Funds Go to Japan

Directors of the Victoria Y.M.C.A. received word today from the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. in Toronto stating that contributions they had raised through their World Service Fund were being used to help rebuild the Y.M.C.A. building in Hiroshima, Japan.

With many other Y.M.C.A. associations throughout Canada, the local branch is allocated a quota of $1,200 annually for this fund. Last year it was exceeded by $145.

The local chapter raises the fund money in various ways. Much of the collecting is done through the Boys' Department, under the direction of Ian Anderson. Each Christmas, the youngsters sell Christmas cards throughout the city.

For the past five years, members of the Hiroshima Association have been staying in Quonset huts provided by a number of Australian Y.M.C.A.s through their World Service contributions.

Christ Church Building Plans Get Approval

Plans for completing Christ Church Cathedral brought here from England recently by Canon E. P. Laycock have been approved by three committees of the church.

It is anticipated plans will be made shortly for a fund-raising campaign to start the new work. The proposed extension on the east end of the building will provide for a spacious choir and sanctuary, with a chapel on the south side and ample space for organ on the north. There will also be provision for a sacristy where altar frontals and communion linen can be stored and beyond the eastern wall, a range of vestries.

Bishop Harold E. Sexton and members of the Cathedral building committees are anxious to have the work proceed as soon as possible and desire also to see work begun to complete the west end. Plans call for two massive towers at the front of the cathedral.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Big and clumsy-looking as he is, Buster Bear is quite at home up in trees. When he was small, a cub, he was almost as much at home in a tree as a squirrel. Indeed, he had spent much of his time up in trees. When Mother Bear wanted to go off on affairs of her own she often would send Buster and his sister, Woolf, up in a big tree and tell them to stay there until her return.

So even when they were very small they would climb to the very tops of tall trees and were without fear of falling.

As he grew older, Buster climbed less and less, but he never did get over his love of being up in a tree.

Now as he stood looking up to something near the top of a big tree deep in the Green Forest, he wasn't thinking of honey. There was no hollow in that tree. What he saw was a big nest. The sight of it reminded him that he was beginning to feel hungry. He had wakened from his winter sleep only a few days before.

"I wonder if there is anything in the nest," muttered Buster. He guessed whose nest it was from the way in which the big Owls were flying about, swooping at him but never quite hitting him. All the time snapping their bills threateningly. He paid not attention to them. They couldn't really hurt him and he knew it.

And then he heard a sound that ended his wondering. It came from up in that nest and it told him just what he wanted to know. It was the crying of two hungry young Owls.

Buster Bear grinned. I suspect his mouth watered ever so little. A hungry look crept into his eyes as he started up at that nest. When people eat nothing for a long time they are said to be fasting. Buster had fasted a long time, nearly all winter. Now here was a chance to end that long fast. He reached up to the first branches and prepared to climb.

"You can't climb up there!" shrieked Hooty, swooping so close that one of his wings brushed the top of Buster's head.

"Why can't I? Who's going to stop me? I'll climb up there if I want to," growled Buster Bear in his deepest, most unpleasant grumbly, rumble voice.

"You'll find out why!" retorted Hooty the Owl.

NEWCOMERS AT SCHOOL They Learn English Fast at 'Y' Classes

By BILL HOLLAND

The well-known "no spika da English," poses no problem for Mrs. Eileen Kerr, English teacher at the Y.M.C.A.

It's been Mrs. Kerr's job for the past six months to teach Victoria's new Canadians the language of their new land. She admits that it's been a tough job at times, but that she's very happy to help the newcomers get a new start in life.

Mrs. Kerr has had over 50 pupils pass through her course with flying colors since last June, and is now in the midst of teaching a new group of 20 men and women.

In her present classes, which are held on Tuesdays and Fridays, 7:10, there are 10 nationalities represented, Chinese, Danish, Dutch, Ukrainian, French, German, Swedish, Polish, Norwegian and Italian.

The usual course Mrs. Kerr gives to the new Canadians is called basic English, and comprises no more than 1,000 words.

TEXTBOOKS PROVIDED

The 1,000 words are mostly action words or names of articles, which are described with pictures. Each pupil is equipped with a textbook, with the pictures in it, and a dictionary. They are usually able to learn approximately 500 words in one and one-half months.

As in ordinary grade school, there are fast and slow pupils. Mrs. Kerr has found that the slow pupils are those who have been living in Canada for some time and have picked up the language by themselves and not bothered to learn it in school.

"They usually learn wrong pronunciations and I have a hard time trying to set them back on the right track again," she said.

Mrs. Kerr said less than 50 per cent of the class continues on past the basic English stage. They usually rely on themselves to pick up the rest by conversation. The ones that do continue, though, take a government course through the Y.M.C.A.

Most of her pupils are between 18 and 24, who have been sent to the classes by their employers. The employers, in many instances, come from foreign countries themselves.

Her oldest pupil is a 63-year-old Polish woman who never went to school before, and never properly learned to read or write.

Mrs. Kerr, who writes poetry in her spare time, likes her job at the 'Y'.

13 Companies Enter Canada Ballet Meet

TORONTO, March 29 (CP).—Twenty-three productions by 13 ballet companies will be listed on programs of Canada's fourth ballet festival to open May 5.

Selection of companies and productions was based on a report presented by Guy Glover, Ottawa dance expert, following a cross-country tour of pre-festival adjudication.

Toronto, where the 1949 festival was held, has the most companies in this 1952 week of dance. Six have been invited to enter the festival.

Two from Vancouver, Le Ballet Concert and Vancouver Ballet, have entered with three productions each. The latter directed by Mara McBirney, will produce "Scherzo," "Themes by Mozart" and "Sigh No More."

The former, directed by Kay Armstrong, will produce "London Fantasia," "Ballet Royal" and "Colonade." The Winnipeg Ballet under Gwenneth Lloyd will produce "Ronde," "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" and "Ballet Premier."

The classical ballet of Ottawa, under Neta Tournine will produce "Fadette" and "Mozartiana."

FILM REVIEW

TWO FOR THE SHOW

By PHIL LEE
 AA (Oscar class). BB (Worthwhile). A (Don't miss). B (For rainy days). C (To put in time).

(BB) "I Want You," currently playing at the Royal Theatre, is a frank, sometimes stodgy piece of propaganda. When it isn't, Andrews, McGuire, Granger, Dow and company appear for what they are—talented actors and actresses. But where the lines grow as profuse and naive as a recruiting sergeant's spiel or a defense plant's employment poster, the protagonists of this Samuel Goldwyn production appear as unconvincing as youngsters unceremoniously shoved out into the middle of the living-room floor and told to recite something to make poor old Aunt Agatha weep.

"I Want You" deals with the Greer family (average American) whose privacy has been invaded by three world wars. First there is father, Thomas Greer (Robert Keith), a man who never heard a shot fired during the First World War and has been speaking about it ever since; his wife, Sara (Mildred Dunnock) who finally gets tired of listening; his son, Martin (Dana Andrews) who spent four years fighting in the Second World War; his wife, Nancy (Dorothy McGuire) who followed him as best and as long as she could and who never regretted it; Martin's young brother, Jack (Farley Granger) who has a bit of a problem on his hands by not understanding exactly what is expected of him by his family and his country. Adding to his dilemma is his best gal, Carrie Turner (Peggy Dow) and what to do about her.

Little else can be said about "I Want You." You will like the story or you won't. And, for what my criticism is worth, those mentioned did their very best; but—

As a veteran of the Second World War, also as a man whose initiation into everyday workaday life was at the beginning of the depressive thirties, I would beg off from pictures of this nature. I want to go to shows for entertainment only. I want to be moved, excited, made mad or happy. I don't want a lecture. I may be taught, instructed and have my mind made up for me. But if I must receive a sermon then let it be given to me skillfully, subtly.

No, I don't think I'm an ostrich. But I like to think that I, along with all my North American brothers and sisters, by now, with little peace or grace in our time, have learned our duty to society in war as well as peace.

Certainly no amount of uncomfortable pathos, recriminations, near-hysteria, talk of the need of men for the forces, arms plants, ad infinitum, will make me realize the gravity of the world situation and the necessity of the Korean War any more than I would without it in my movies.

Sorry, I didn't mean to inflict you with a diatribe on my likes and dislikes with regard to propaganda films or, what are generally called by the arty, pictures with a message. But as you can gather by now, I feel most strongly on this subject. If I didn't I might have given "I Want You" a higher rating.

For Figure Skaters: The newsreel at the Royal will give you a glimpse of the famed Toronto Skating Club carnival. Brief as the glimpse is it gives one a good idea as to its high standard and excellence.

(B) In spite of lush, red-haired Maureen O'Hara and ruggedly handsome Jeff Chandler the highlights of Flame of Araby which opened its week's run at the Odeon Friday, are (1) a beautiful black horse and (2) the exquisite camerawork of Russell Metty.

Even the horse (Shazada) and photography and topflight riding shots, however, fail to hide a plot as bare of body and substance as some of Miss O'Hara's gowns. Faintly recognizable as tales from the Arabian Nights and at other times bearing close resemblance to a ballet set of Scherzade.

"Flame of Araby" is the story of Princess Tanza's (Maureen O'Hara) personal conflict. Hers is the choice between the life of an exotic princess or becoming the wife of the wild Bedouin, Tamerlane (Jeff Chandler). Before she makes up her mind it takes a whole lot of hanky-panky and a thoroughly unbelievable (if faintly thrilling) horse race to bring her into the arms of her broad-chested Bedouin.

As in most of these mystical films which depend upon the wonders of technicolor to rainbow them together, the scriptwriters would do well to relieve the dialogue of its unreality by culling the too poetic verbiage. It would help a lot. So would a solid, savage, down-to-earth plot to give good actors a chance to prove their metal.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

What's happening in the world of sport—or the end of this week's work.

On Sunday, who could ever forget it—the Cougars' four goals in under seven minutes to gain the Pacific Coast Hockey League playoffs. Victorians hung onto every word of the broadcast of that game as they did the next day. And speaking of radio, even league president Al Leader admits that Seattle announcers do little to help the cause of hockey.

Why Seattle radio men were so far behind the times at one stage of the season they had Frankie Eddolls playing for Saskatoon on the Quakers' final visit west under coach Doug Bentley. And there have been other "skulls."

Monday was the day of reckoning with Roger Leger reckoning that the Royals would get a battle from the defending champs which they did before dropping the playoff opener Wednesday night.

Monday was also an honored day for ex-Domino and Blue Ribbon's basketball Alex McKeachie. Alex was a guest at the northwest sportsmen's dinner which preceded the N.C.A.A. hoop finals in Seattle. He sat next to the head table with Chuck Dugan of hoop and softball fame, and was introduced to some of the greats and near greats of sport in the northwest, including John Houbregs; the old P.C.H.L. star.

Dugan, incidentally, was runner-up to the Charles E. Sullivan award, presented to the individual who is considered to have done the most for sports in the northwest during the year. Chuck lost by one vote. Two weeks' previously he had lost slightly more, $1,800 in truth to a tug, prior to his departure for the A.A.U. tourney at Denver.

Tuesday was a busman's holiday, if you can call it such—a spectator at the N.C.A.A. tournament as St. John's beat Illinois and Kansas trimmed Santa Clara. Other Victorians present were Ernie Fox, Elmer Curtis and Sid Watson, and ex-city hoop secretary Frank Elliott.

U.S. Olympic Basketball Preview

Clyde "The Giant" Lovellette, the boyish-looking behemoth, was the whole show, all 240 pounds of a six-foot nine-inch frame being basketball. The guy was just terrific. He can shoot with their hand or both hands and completely dominated the backboards. Kansas, the tourney winner, had a phenomenal .487 shooting percentage against the upstart Santa Clara five who had sneaked in. But if you want a tip, watch for St. John's centre Bob Zawoluk to pick a spot on the Olympic team. He's a ball-player's ballplayer.

And never was it more clearly demonstrated than in the tourney that rules in the east differ in interpretation from rules in the west. The ball carrier (or if you prefer, dribbler) is King Tut east of the Mississippi. The defense gets a break out west.

Wednesday afternoon a pleasant talk with league-president Al Leader on the train to New Westminster disclosed that the P.C.H.L. prexy is of the opinion that the coast circuit will break all records next year.

Also, that if the rumor is true that Regina seeks entry in the league next year, their case will be considered. Talk on the prairies hints of such a possibility.

As to the possible playoff series next year between the P.C.H.L. and the Quebec League, Leader expects to finalize plans for the series this summer. The P.C.H.L. schedule would be cut at least a week in such an eventuality with two Coast teams taking to the prairies the same week rather than one as was the case this year in order to facilitate the necessary change.

Leader is also in favor of all Coast League clubs sponsoring junior teams, a suggestion which has met with the approval of general manager Fred Hutchinson of the Cougars.

Dinner with Leader and a bus ride with referee Eddie Powers to New Westminster. Eddie is the referee Leader recommended to the A.H.L. last year and, though he wouldn't like to lose his services, would not stand in the way if Powers gets a chance in the higher echelons of hockey.

Then the game between the Royals and Cougars viewed from an organ loft up in the rafters. The fellow leaning over the tickety retaining wall was T.C.A. Captain Al Dodd who regularly ferries the Sherocks to an arena during the summer months. He will be with the Cougars tonight.

Al, whose wife is a rabid Royal fan, described the teams like this. "The Royals are the smoothest and the best skaters, but the Cougars are eager, as eager as they were last year." Perhaps, Al hit the nail on the head—it was the same last year and the Royals obliged the Cougars in the final.

Cougars Are 'Eager' Once More

Then, the plane trip home with the guest list reading Ted Reynolds, Laurie Dillabaugh, Dr. R. J. Wride (use the "I" and not the "y" please Jack Kiersey of the Booster Club, Jim Eddie and, of course, the Cougars, confident all.

Thursday was another day of reckoning, Cougars' Fred Hutchinson being the only worried clubber as ticket saleswoman Lil Merriman had come down with the mumps.

And Friday—the big game. Cougars won it hands down.

Piffled paragraphs: "It's more fun sitting on the Cougars' bench"—Bob Ballance . . . and from Danny Walton of Tacoma, quoting a hockey fan, "when you see a hockey game you are seeing the most honest sport in the world today." Dispel any thoughts that Tacoma won't be in the P.C.H.L. next year says Leader. . . "It's their only big sport left." Then there's the rumor that Aldon Wilkie is a holdout at Salem . . . and also that Portland owns three players to Tri-City for Vic Buccola and another to Spokane from a previous deal. . . The Tyres have been promised "a continuing team," too. . .

And about those new rule changes in basketball. . . We like 'em. . . Highest scoring unit in the P.C.H.L. this year was Saskatoon's Johnny Chad-Nell Strain-Alex Kaleta trio with 236 points. Seattle hoop fans were mighty disappointed that Seattle University or Washington weren't in the N.C.A.A. tourney. . . But then Seattle U. isn't too worried as Johnny and Ed O'Brien, the gold dust twins will be back next year aided by two outstanding grads from this year's freshmen team. . . Wally Smith of softball says he's got his old sponsor back again and is eagerly looking forward to the coming season with a couple of surprises. Hats off to Seattle coach Danny Sprout, whose league record of 50 assists for defencemen was almost overlooked. . . Danny's only 37, you know. . . Belated birthday to Roger Leger, 33 on Wednesday. . . President Reg Pittingier of the Royals Booster Club correctly predicted the finish of the P.C.H.L. race. . . He's the only known prophet who was right. . . In answer to S.M., our pick was New Westminster, Saskatoon, Seattle, Victoria, Edmonton, Vancouver, Tacoma and Calgary.

Eight Survivors In Allan Cup Play

Eight teams are still in the running for the Allan Cup, symbolic of Canada's senior amateur hockey championships.

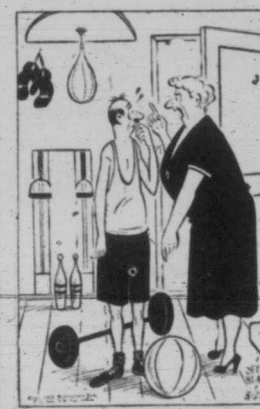

Four clubs are from the east and four from the west.

A Friend in Need for Blinky

Blinky Boyce, half-pint forward of the New Westminster Royals claims he avoids injuries by never keeping still on the ice so that he is never a sitting target. Until Friday night Blinky enjoyed success with the formula but it back-fired in the third period of the P.C.H.L. play-off game between Victoria Cougars and Royals. Boyce and Cougars' Ernie Roche smashed together at centre ice and Boyce was removed from the game and probably the season. Here he receives a taping job from trainer George Friend for the knee muscles torn by the impact.

ELIMINATED FROM B.C. HOOP

By the slimmest of narrow margins Vic High and Alberni lost their chances of gaining the final of the B.C. high school basketball tournament at U.B.C. gym Friday night.

The two island clubs, unbeaten in the first two rounds, went down to heart-breaking defeats to drop out of first and second place contention.

Alberni was edged 49-48 by Duke of Connaught while Totems went down 28-26 before the guns of Mission.

Mount View, the third Island entry, made it two wins in three tries by dumping Kamloops 26-23. The greatest chunk of sympathy belongs to Vic High Totems, who started out like a house afire, scoring 14 straight points before Mission could find the range. And find it they did to outscore Totems 15-2 in the second quarter and tie the count 16-16 at the half.

Totems gave it everything in the second half but Mission scored four late points in the waning minutes to wrap the verdict up.

Jahraus high. For the third time in three games, Jim Jahraus was the leading man in the Totems score column racking up 12 points.

The Dukes led Alberni 19-12 at the end of the first quarter but Alberni rebounded in the second half to slice the margin to three points at the half.

The boys from canal town continued to peek away and tied the score in the third frame, but Bill Sviatko went on a one-man forage to score five points in the last quarter for the margin of victory and the Dukes kept the ball away from Alberni until the final whistle.

Bob Nichol and Ron Gray had 14 points each for Alberni. It took Mount View some time to find their scoring eyes but when they did, the sky was the limit.

The suburbanites did not score a single basket until 12 minutes into the first quarter but Alan Snowsall's nine points helped lead them to victory.

Tonight Vic High and Alberni tangle for fourth and seventh places while Mount View and South Burnaby fight it out for fifth and eighth spots.

ROCKETS TROUNCE IRONMEN.
Tacoma Rockets can end their quarter-final P.C.H.L. series with Seattle Ironmen tonight at Tacoma.

They whopped the Ironmen 6-1 at Seattle Friday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five series.

Edmonton Flyers are in the same position as Seattle. Down 2-0 in their best-of-five quarter-final with Saskatoon, they entertain the Quakers tonight at Edmonton.

Seattle was left with only 10 players for tonight's game after Ray Ceresino and Joe Conn aggravated old injuries.

Tacoma took a 1-0 lead in the first period and increased it to 2-0 in the second.

Mark Marquess scored two for the Rockets and Moe Young, Doc Halderson, Bart Bradley and Dutch Delmonte got the others. Jean Pierre Taillefer counted for Seattle.

Hoop Playoffs On Saanich Card
Three playoff games and one exhibition contest have been scheduled in the Saanich and Suburban Basketball League at the Saanich Agricultural Hall to night starting at 7:15.

In the opener, the Saanichton midget-boys will host St. Louis College in an exhibition contest, followed by a midget girls' game between Brentwood and Saanichton midget girls.

Sooke and Saanichton junior boys will tangle in their second game of a two-game total-point series for the Dad Quick Trophy. Saanichton leads by 10 points.

In the feature contest, Saanichton and Sooke intermediates will meet.

Two minutes later, Lavell and Les Hickey agreed to disagree over Ken Ulyot's disregard for Coitnoir's face. Ulyot slapping at Coitnoir while he lay face down on the ice.

CHARLES WALCOTT BOUT BELIEVED SET FOR JUNE 9
PHILADELPHIA, March 29 (UP)—Heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, after unsuccessful negotiations for a bout with Harry (Kid) Matthews or Rocky Marciano, was ready today to give Ezzard Charles his long-delayed return shot at the title.

Promoter Herman Taylor announced that the 38-year-old Walcott and the 30-year-old Charles will sign next Monday for a June title fight at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

Taylor withheld the actual date of the bout until the formal signing at city hall headquarters of the Police Athletic League, which will benefit from the gate receipts. But in New York, Charles' manager, Jake Mintz, indicated it would be June 9.

For a time it seemed that Black would have to wade through three goal candidates as Gordie Pogue, Harry Preston and Vic Grover were attending preliminary workouts.

However, Pogue has stated he may hang 'em up this year and Preston has been causing affectionate eyes at Vancouver Combines.

New Westminster will be setting an intercity league precedent with the first negro in the league, a nimble-footed, youngster named Ivan Stewart.

The 17-year-old Stew is an all-round athlete who can run like a gazelle and stick-handle like an orchestra leader.

The Combines, under canny Walt Lee are keeping a weather eye peeled on other teams and have shown no backwardness towards pirateering.

Denny Huddleston has apparently succumbed to Lee's lures and intends to play for Combines if he is successful in gaining a release from North Shore.

It will come as a message of salvation to the Shamrocks that Lee does not intend to play goal this year especially after the larceny he committed in last year's league final.

Lee has Preston—if he does not decide on New Westminster—Jack Green and junior Maurice Woods as net candidates.

The first step Nanaimo made in their rebuilding program was to sign Jim Hefferman, an eastern junior star and to negotiate with Vancouver. And of course they still have goalie Fred Fulla, a strong rock on which to build a house.

Then there's the Shamrocks—they're loaded, but they still break out in a cold sweat when Harry Whipper's name is mentioned. He's the ex-Peterborough star who may still make the west his home.

P.C.H.L. Series Squared; Third Game Goes Tonight

By BILL WALKER

Victoria 3, New Westminster 2

Victoria Cougars are not only back in the Pacific Coast Hockey League playoff picture side by side with New Westminster Royals today, but they've got at least one Royal on the run.

He is canny Kenny MacKenzie, head man of the league champions.

For a six-cent stamp on a $30,000 cheque Kenny would gladly have signed over his tenancy with the club at about 10:40 at Memorial Arena Friday night.

The six-cent stamp represents Kenny's assessment of the Royals in the game won by the Cougars, 3-2, while $30,000 is the price tag Kenny put on his half interest in the club earlier this year.

The time of night was about five minutes after the game, MacKenzie, in his dour mood, slamming the Royal dressing room door so hard as he left, the echo could be heard on the banks of the Fraser.

But Kenny had sufficient reason for his previous actions.

The Royals were outplayed badly by a Cougar team that shone its brightest in squaring the best-of-seven series at one game apiece.

And off the luminous dial which reflected the result could be read the figures that a repeat performance in New Westminster tonight would surely put the Royals to flight once more.

Except for two lapses, which allowed the Royals their two goals, plus the obvious calculation that Lucien Dechene, by Friday night's standards, is the peer of the P.C.H.L. puck-blocking clan, it could have been a rout.

Dechene's pads, into the net. Les Hickey started the movement with Eddie Dorohoy giving Atanas the green light.

Jerry Cabana shocked the Cougars back into reality when he took advantage of a tete a tete between two of the Cats on the boards to steal the puck and pass to Amy Dufault who tipped it past Coitnoir on a goal-mouth stab 12 minutes into the second period.

Roger Leger gave himself a belated birthday present (he was 33 on Wednesday) at 14:25 when he checked a Royal defenceman neatly and picked the top corner on Dechene on a play set up by Joe Medynski and Joe Evans.

Cougars continued to check the Royals into their own zone as the third period got under way, but fate seemed about to interfere at 5:46 when Flori Gogan drew a two-minute high sticking penalty and Doug Anderson incurred a 10-minute misconduct from referee Dick Davis for cross checking the harassed official.

But Bob Frampton turned the tables on possible adversity when he hung the goal tag on coach Jack Forbes by stealing the puck behind the Royal net, skating in front, and unmolested, beating Dechene with a backhand at 7:07.

Clayton Lavell caused a few hearts in the capacity house to skip a beat when he broke through cleanly with two and one-half minutes remaining. But Coitnoir made a brilliant stop on the play to cheat the fiery Royal forward out of a goal.

Two minutes later, Lavell and Les Hickey agreed to disagree over Ken Ulyot's disregard for Coitnoir's face. Ulyot slapping at Coitnoir while he lay face down on the ice.

The sparring match ended with the Royals look so bad."

Bobby Makes Jake Feel Ill
Lavell and Hickey emulating lovers in embrace, Hickey being awarded the decision for dropping his stick first.

While both teams were short-handed, and with 15 seconds left, Forbes pulled Dechene in favor of a fifth forward, Ulyot scoring at 19:57.

Confident but wary, Leger said the same club would be iced for tonight's game at Westminster with Bob Ballance again replacing Jack McIntyre who is out with an injured ankle.

The Royals suffered a serious blow when ever-popular Blinky Boyce suffered torn ligaments in his left knee from a collision with Ernie Roche. He will be lost to the club for possibly the balance of the season.

As was the case in the first game of the series, won by the Royals, 3-2, the Cougars' almost brutal checking stymied the Royal attack.

And even league president Al Leader, who isn't given to words without due thought, concurred that the Cougar margin should have been more decisive.

He added: "I have never seen the Royals look so bad."

Broda-Rollins Quandary Has Leaf Fans in Tizzy
TORONTO, March 29 (CP).—The biggest question stirring this hockey-mad town today is not just who is going to win tonight's third game of the Detroit-Toronto Stanley Cup semi-finals, but whether or not the fabulous fat man, Walter (Turk) Broda, will be launched upon his second century of playoff goalending.

A couple of weeks ago, any suggestions that Broda would play more than once—and then only to fulfil general manager Conn Smythe's promise of 100 playoff appearances—would have brought forth loud jeers from even the staunchest of Maple Leaf supporters.

However, now that the unpredictable has occurred, what's to stop a rebirth in the tubby hero's career?

The fans—and no doubt his teammates—are rooting for the 37-year-old veteran of 14 National Hockey League seasons.

Maple Leaf officials are keeping mum about who will don the big pads tonight, the Leafs first home-ice chance to whittle down the two-game edge the Red Wings hold on the best-of-seven series.

Both Smythe and coach Joe Primeau admit the decision has been made, but no one else will know the answer until the dressing room door opens and either The Turk or Al Rollins—the club's regular goalie—leads the club up the ramp to the ice.

Aside from the netminders, the Toronto club is expected to ice the same team that bowed 1-0 to the Wings Thursday at Detroit.

Four Plays in School Finals

Adjudicator Says Local Students' Work In Week-Long Festival Was 'Outstanding'

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Declaring that the work he has seen this week has been of "outstanding calibre," and that he considered at least twice as many plays deserving of an honor performance, Vancouver adjudicator Jack Thorne, announced that four plays have been chosen for the special repeat performance at Victoria High School at 8 tonight.

The program will consist of "The Little Red Hen," presented by Oaklands School, "Sunday Costs Five Pesos," by Central Junior High School, "Birds of a Feather," by Belmont High School and "Petticoats Preferred," from Oak Bay High School.

"A Miracle at Blaise," by Josephine Nigali, presented by St. Margaret's School, Director, Mrs. Eleanor Hewitt.

Madeline Giraud, Jan Garber, Berthe Giraud, Margaret Bailey, Gabrielle Mottier, Antoinette Stanley-Clark, Nicole (member of the French Undergrounds), Evelyne, Jeanne, Tabitha, Sandra, Susan, Ron, Veronique, Susan, Ron.

This striking little play was produced well and acted with a definite feeling for the supernatural, Mr. Thorne commented. He considered the whole cast had acted together well, had a good feeling for the lines and revealed great sincerity.

All the plays presented yesterday afternoon at St. Margaret's School, had achieved a fine standard of excellence, the adjudicator considered.

"Between the Soup and the Savoury," by Gertrude Jennings, presented by St. Margaret's School, Director, Mrs. Eleanor Hewitt.

The Cook (Marie), June Grannan, The Parlourmaid (Ada), Rose Meyerhoff, The Kitchenmaid (Emily), Jeanne, Evelyne, Ron, Susan, Ron, Veronique, Susan, Ron.

This was the second time this play had been presented in the festival. It was a little slow but

Baby Sitter At Age 74, Aids Friends

By GWEN CASH

Arthur Toseland is a St. John Ambulance serving brother, who was on duty outside Westminster Abbey when King George was crowned in 1911. At Winnipeg in 1938 Lord Tweedsmuir presented him with His Majesty's silver medal for services rendered.

St. John Ambulance work has been Mr. Toseland's life time hobby. He has been instructed in convents, jails, penitentiaries, workhouses, schools, clubs. He has earned Queen Victoria's Long Service Medal with Bar.

The Queen was the founder of St. John Ambulance in 1888; another for meritorious service—and the Boy Scout's Thanks Badge—though he was never a Boy Scout himself. He's served on the St. John Ambulance executive council in Winnipeg and since coming to Victoria has been asked to do so here.

He has rendered invaluable services to Canada ever since he came from Kettering, Notts., in 1913.

In Kettering Arthur Toseland, a tall young man with blue eyes and a fine waxed black moustache, had been in that city's fire service for 10 years. In Winnipeg he got a job with the school system.

It was just at the time there was an enormous influx of European immigrants. Sir William Whyte School was built to accommodate and help Canadianize them. Arthur Toseland became its caretaker.

"More often than not we had to put the kids under the showers before they were fit to enter classrooms," he said. "They were mostly Galicians. Poles, thousands of them. And tough! It didn't take them long to tell you where to get off. They had everything but foot and mouth disease too and came to school with it. That was when we started the school nursing service."

Later and for 25 years he was building superintendent for Kelvin Technical High. Thousands of kids who grew up in Winnipeg, many of whom have come to Victoria, will remember him.

Still tall but now rather frail at 74 he admits to being a little tired. All the same occasionally he rivals Clifton Webb and does a spot of baby sitting for young friends. "They like to get to the hockey game once in a while," he says.

He and Mrs. Toseland live at 1425 Elford.

FARM and RANCH

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A good long-term investment is holly. Though you won't get many people to disagree with this, there hasn't yet been a great rush to lay down the crop of the future.

The chief objection to growing holly is the long time the trees take to crop (6 to 10 years). However, many growers, who thought along these lines five years ago, now wish they had not taken the time element into consideration and had planted trees then.

The facts of the holly industry are that last year 30 tons of the red-berried Christmas favorite were exported from the island. Growers received about 50 cents a pound, retailers 60.

Vancouver Island and the lower mainland are the only areas in Canada where holly is grown commercially. The potential market is great if growers want to push it.

Prospective growers of holly have the assistance of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanich, which is conducting experiments on different varieties. E. R. Hall, station assistant in charge of fruit growing, and J. H. Crossley have ordered Dutch and French varieties believed suitable for growing here.

LL-Col. R. H. Richardson, Verdier Avenue, president of the Vancouver Island Holly Growers' Co-operative Association, recommends the planting of at least 12 trees for the small grower.

The association, incidentally, is meeting today at the home of A. E. Evans, 1230 Reynolds Road. David Younger, Duncan, is vice-president, and Mrs. R. H. Richardson, secretary.

Irrigation Helps Potatoes

In the past year the Experimental Farm has been doing considerable research work under G. R. Webster on the effects of irrigation on potatoes. The results are interesting and disprove an old belief that too much water effects the cooking quality of the tubers.

Webster reports that experiments showed that main crop potatoes respond to irrigation on southern Vancouver Island. In the experiments, he says, Green Mountain potatoes received sprinkler irrigation in a series of one acre inch applications throughout the growing season. The irrigation interval between applications approximated two weeks, depending on soil moisture conditions.

Over the three-year period the irrigated tubers averaged 13.7 tons per acre, representing an increase in yield of approximately four times the non-irrigated tubers. Not only was yield increased but the irrigated plots yielded some 40 per cent more marketable tubers than the dry plots.

With regard to potatoes, all early varieties should be in now. Main crop varieties recommended by the station are Netted Gem and Burbank for the more moist soils. Columbia Russet and Green Mountain for the more dry soils.

New Sweet Pepper Variety

Vinedale, a new variety of sweet pepper which is being introduced commercially this year, has not yet been tried out in this area. However, horticulturists see no reason why it cannot be successfully grown here.

Developed at Ontario's Horticultural Experiment Station at Vineland, the plant is said to excel in early production of marketable green and red fruits and continues production over the whole season. While the plant is small (12 to 14 inches high), it is vigorous and sets a large crop of uniform fruit.

As it is particularly important not to introduce red-steel, a serious strawberry disease, into non-infected land, a list of strawberry growers whose plants have been inspected and found apparently free of the bad root-rot disease has been released by W. R. Foster, provincial plant pathologist.

They are: E. H. Armstrong, 511 McKenzie Street; G. T. Devereux, Royal Oak; F. S. Doyle, Royal Oak; R. France, Church Road, Sooke; H. A. Heywood, Cowichan Station; H. J. Lane, Royal Oak; W. G. Michell, Telegraph Road; H. C. Oldfield, Elk Lake; E. O. Sullivan, Sayward Road; F. Pearson, Lady-smith; H. A. Taylor, 1213 Gordon Head Road; H. Thompson, Centre Road; E. N. Trueman, Duncan; G. A. Vantreigh Jr., Tyndall Avenue; J. Weiss, Langford; L. Willing, Happy Valley, and A. J. Wootten, Royal Oak.

Sweet Peas Coming Back To Star in Home Gardens

Sweet peas, once the most popular annual flowers in the country, grown in almost every garden, are making a strong comeback. Varieties which bloom early and resist hot weather are in part responsible, and better methods of growing help a great deal.

It used to be advised, and still is in some garden books, that seed of sweet peas should be sown at the bottom of a trench six inches deep, covered lightly with soil and allowed to grow, the trench being filled in as the plants grow.

Now we are advised to make a drill only 1½ inches deep in which to sow the seeds, which is not only a lot easier to do, but avoids plenty of trouble from poor drainage and disease. Fall sowing is not advised by today's experts, but stress is put upon the importance of sowing early.

SPRING IS HERE!

Follow These Hints In Spring Paint-Up

Read Before You Paint—In your eagerness to begin spring clean-up painting, don't open a new can of paint before you acquaint yourself thoroughly with the directions on the label. Once the can is opened and you stir the contents or pour them into another container, splashes or "runs" of the paint may obscure some of the printed information you need.

Emphasize Rug's Beauty—If you have a prized Oriental rug in which red tones predominate, grey-green painted walls and trim will bring out the beauty of it. It is also well to use plain draperies at the windows, as a patterned fabric is likely to detract from the design on your floor covering.

Wax Windowsills—The finish of newly painted windowsills is likely to be ruined by weather exposure. If you will rub wax on them as soon as they are thoroughly dried, it will keep them in perfect condition. Before repainting, thoroughly remove all wax.

Shake Before You Take—Always stir the contents of a paint can before using. The best procedure is to pour the top two-thirds into another container and stir the remainder carefully. Then, continuing your stirring, ve turn the poured-off liquid to the original can. If the can has been opened before and a skin has formed on top of the can's contents, remove this whole before stirring.

Should any part of the skin remain, pour the entire quantity through a strainer you obtain from your paint dealer. You can also use a piece of wire screen or an old section of silk or nylon hosiery for the purpose. In the case of enamel, you should stir but never shake; shaking introduces bubbles into enamel.

Look Before You Lacquer—Most paints and enamels can be applied over other paints and enamels—and also over shellac and lacquer. Beware, however, of using lacquer over paint, enamel or varnish. The lacquer will act as a paint "remover."

Gen. Ike's Backers Happy With Victory
BANGOR, Me., March 29 (CP)—The supporters of General Eisenhower today claimed a victory in the campaign to win the Republican presidential nomination for him.

Maine's delegation to the party's national convention was chosen Friday and of the 16 votes, Eisenhower can be sure of nine and possibly 11. The other five are held by delegates supporting Senator Robert Taft.

Eisenhower's campaign chief, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, described the selection as a "notable and significant victory," while Taft said the outcome was "about what we expected."

Ceiling Tints Alter Lights

Light reflection, resulting from color, is an important factor in ceilings, and in redecorating you might bear the following facts in mind.

White, which tops the list of ceiling colors, reflects at least 80 per cent of the light that falls upon it. Light ivory has a 70 per cent rating; apricot-beige around 65. Lemon yellow is slightly less, while ivory reflects around 60 per cent and light buff 55. Peach, salmon and light pearl grey are still further down the scale. Pale apple green scores around 50 and medium grey comes next with 45.

Both light green and pale blue have a rating around 40 per cent and deep rose, with 15 per cent, is next to dark green, which has less than 10.

Brilliant Plant Foliage Makes Attractive Edging

By HILDA BEASTALL.
Many home gardeners are adverse to mixing their flowers and vegetables, but there is one vegetable which makes an excellent edging plant.

Most of the year the brilliant grassy foliage is attractive. During June and July the purple flowers are often taken for thistle. In addition to its looks, the foliage supplies just the zest required in some salads and sandwiches, for this lowly plant is a member of the onion family, known as chives.

Some will say chives should never be allowed to flower, which is correct. However, the blooms are so attractive that a little strategy in cutting should be practiced in order to preserve quality of stems on some plants while allowing others to send up flower spikes.

While some gardeners may not know the plants, they are far from being new, having been cultivated in western Asia since remote times. Actually their place is as an edging to the herb garden, within easy reach of the kitchen. In use, a few of the tubular leaves are removed near soil level, and cut with scissors into salads, soups, sandwiches, and any dish needing a mild onion flavor. Although actual food values are low, the mineral contents of chives make them highly desirable in the early spring days when good onions are not too plentiful.

The plants are perennial, but the clumps should be dug about every fourth year, divided, and the best pieces from the outside replanted. In the fall, a clump may be dug, divided into small pieces, and planted in a small box with good soil. A supply of young shoots for winter use is thus easily obtained by keeping the box in a sunny window.

Chives do not form bulbs like other onions, although the enlarged root stock has something of the appearance of a tiny shallot. While they may be grown from seed, the best way to get a start is to purchase one or more clumps which, under good growing conditions, will become six to eight inches in diameter by fall. By division, a neat edging is soon attained, growing about six inches high, and supplying a delicate onion flavor acceptable to the most fastidious palates.

Victorians New Officers Of Boy Scouts

VANCOUVER, March 29 (CP) — A prominent Vancouver jurist, Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, Friday was named president of the Boy Scouts Association's B.C. provincial council.

The council meeting, held here, elected Maj. Gen. W. W. Foster of Victoria, vice-president, along with Alan Williamson, also Victoria, and Dr. C. H. Wright of Trail.

Treasurer is G. Lyall Fraser, and honorary counsel, Douglas McK. Brown, both of Vancouver. Executive officers are R. D. Baker, Col. C. T. Batten, Prentice Bloedel, J. M. Buchanan, R. P. Clark, and Mr. Justice J. V. Clynne, all of Vancouver.

T. W. S. Parsons, Victoria, is provincial commissioner; Lt. Col. Keith Dixon, Victoria, his assistant, and R. Ken Jordan, Vancouver, executive commissioner. Four members of B.C. scouting were presented with gallantry awards. Patrol leader John Benson, Duncan, for rescuing a boy in danger of drowning; scout Arnold Turner and patrol leader David Dilks, North Vancouver, for succoring a man found lying in a creek bed, and assistant scoutmaster Frederick R. Seddon, Vancouver, for assisting two men whose truck plunged off a road into a creek.

Tenants Control Apartment Heat

A trend in apartment house design to individual tenant control of room temperatures is indicated in a recent analysis of 100 U.S. cities released.

Tenants in more than 185,000 apartments covering nearly 62,000 buildings have thermostat control over their apartment temperatures, according to the study prepared by Minneapolis-Honeywell.

However, in many of the older buildings, complaints about improper heating, the company discovered, ranked over dirt, smoke and noise as the city-dwellers' number one headache.

Shingle Cottage in Scenic Setting

Situated on a splendid site is this cozy grey shingle cottage designed by W. G. Armstrong, well-known architect. Its pleasing exterior lines catch the eye of innumerable motorists passing by, although it is set far back on its wooded lot.

The interior is fetching too! There are five rooms altogether: a big living, dining room, kitchen and two bedrooms. Notice that the plan follows the modern "open planning" idea, omitting a partition between the living and dining room. Placement of the kitchen at the front is popular and convenient. The U-shaped arrangement of equipment is excellent. Both bedrooms have doors into the single bath.

Home Building in Canada on Decline

Home building in Canada was down last year for the first 12-month period since the war, the annual report of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the federal government agency in the home-building field in Canada, reveals.

A total of 85,000 homes were completed in 1951, the agency reports, compared to 91,754 a year earlier.

The Central Mortgage and Housing report attributes the drop in home building to shortage of mortgage money available following the government's anti-inflationary program, lack of serviced land, to higher down payments and to higher debt service on new mortgages.

The agency notes that last year construction costs rose by 15 per cent, cost of materials was up 18 per cent and labor up 9 per cent.

Predicting a further decline in home building in Canada this year, the agency says "lack of mortgage funds is a definite factor."

College Wants Loyal Subjects

By BILL BROADLEY

People who go to Victoria College should only throw stones on its behalf.

That is the intent of the resolution adopted by the Alma Mater Society meeting this week. It means that if men and women register with college, they should play for college teams . . . lot opposition.

It isn't that Victoria College's annual Alma Mater Society meeting wasn't interesting—maybe it was for those who heard the annual reports. But for those who sat near the rear like this reporter it remained a discordant chorus of crumbling lunch papers.

We had sat there not suspecting that a public address system, rented especially for the meeting, would not be used by any of the nine speakers, even though at least four would certainly have been more audible.

As it was, treasurer Don Matheson's budget party heard from a 25th row vantage point, passed. In it council expenditures of $4,840 and receipts of $6,356 were explained.

President Marion Gibbs kept the meeting generally quiet in spite of a heavy cough from one who was amused when plans for girls' athletics for the new past year were read from the minutes of the October A.M.S. meeting.

Just for the record, Marion twice blew into the P.A. system and it was confusing to know that it worked.

After the reports had been approved five amendments to bring the A.M.S. constitution up to date were accepted.

NO PLAY, NO PAY
A lengthy debate ensued, after Walt Young moved from the floor that a rule be adopted to give no awards to students who play against college teams.

Young also wanted a circular sent to all matric students in Greater Victoria high schools stating that if they attend College they will be expected to play for College teams. Despite much opposition, because of the tone of the motion, it was approved with a heavy majority.

After the meeting had recessed 24 hours, a motion was approved to allow any library caution money remaining in May to be used towards the purchase price of a portrait of the late Dr. J. M. Ewing. When obtained, the portrait will be hung in the soon-to-be-opened Ewing Building.

Provisions for a Men's Undergraduate Society next year were also adopted into the constitution. Ray Frey, next year's council president who made the motion, plans to have such a society organized early next year.

The action arises out of a have a representative from their undergrad society on the council when the men had no undergrad society.

OAK BAY ANNUAL GETS DOUGH AND STUDENTS KNEED FORMAT

From the "Annual" staff we have good news, writes Herb Evans of Oak Bay High. Business manager, Don Cox, tells us he has over $1,000 worth of advertising sold.

Editor, Kay Burnett, has this to add: that with time getting short, work on the "Annual" is progressing fast. All the matric pictures have been taken and the personality write-ups, corresponding with the pictures, are finished.

In connection with the "Annual," a photo contest has been arranged. A student may win up to $11. The object of this contest is to get as many "snaps" as possible for the "candid" pages.

Voting for the two (male and female) outstanding matrics will take place Tuesday. Eligible to vote are senior students only. Taken into consideration for the outstanding matrics is their standing in school work, personality and all-round value to the school.

TAKE IT FROM ME

By AMY BANDREVICK

Sunday night while my father and I were going through our daily ritual of absorbing the late evening news and setting hair, respectively, I heard something that made me stop in the middle of a curl and listen. Could it possibly be true? Instead of being condemned for something, 'teen-agers' were being commended!

It seems that the behavior of two of my contemporary students, Glenn Hunning and Gary Beveridge, at hockey games, had attracted the attention of a fellow hockey fan. This I had to know more about. So, bright and early next morning I cornered Glenn and asked him just how he and Gary acted at the games.

My captive looked at me blankly and scratched his ear. He thought for a moment and then made this observation: "Gee, I don't know. Just natural I guess."

Finally I had to give up; neither of us could figure out how natural "natural" was.

Well, it looks to me as if it pays off to be different once in a while and not try to be a poor imitation of the typical comic strip sports fan. You know the kind I mean—the program, pop bottle and cushion-throwing variety. Behavior like that may be funny in a cartoon but in real life it is pretty embarrassing.

SCHOLARS' ROSTRUM

By JOSEPHINE KERSHAW

The modern problem of pop versus milk has again reared its ugly head in Victoria schools.

A school committee, anxious to raise money, placed on sale both pop and milk during the noon-hour. Left to themselves, with no pressure from parents or P.T.A. workers, a decided majority of the student body chose pop. There was so little demand for the milk that the committee presently discontinued it.

R. M. Crawford, of the North-western Creamery, pointed out: "In Ontario, school milk is subsidized by the provincial government to ensure that the children get sufficient nourishment."

Since milk has the greater nutritional value he felt it would be a "nice effort" on the part of a local service club to promote its sale in the schools.

Springing to the defense of pop, Miss M. M. Smith, of the Old English Beverage Company, said: "Pop used to be considered a luxury, but it is fast becoming an everyday commodity. We're selling more and more to schools and entertainments. There is a lot of literature on the subject and health records show it is not injurious. After all, the bulk of soft drinks are made from pure fruit juices with sugar, carbonated water and a little citric acid added."

THERE ARE EXCEPTIONS

A well-known local dentist gave his opinion, and that of both American and Canadian Dental Associations, that "it is vital for young people to cut down on the consumption of food and drinks high in sugar content. This includes not only pop but sweets of all kinds."

He thought it an unnecessary temptation to allow the sale of pop as opposed to milk in the schools.

"If young people must drink pop," he said, "it would help prevent tooth decay if they at least rinsed their mouth out with clear water afterwards."

IF THEY HAVE ANY

The more determined teenagers are gnashing their teeth at the mere suggestion that any change be made in their chosen diet.

She'll Teach Boys a Thing or Two

Joan Crawford, 14-year-old manual arts student at S. J. Willis High, is one of the few girls at the school who have invaded a domain heretofore strictly masculine. She's doing upholstery on a footstool she made herself. The hammer hasn't exactly replaced the rolling pin, either. Joan can cook and sew as well as she can carpenter. She's got about everything. (Hi-Times photo.)

IT'S A DREAM . . . IS IT?

Watch Out for a Girl With a Hammer, Chums

By HELEN KERMODE

No, you're not dreaming! S. J. Willis has 13 girls who enjoy woodworking as much as the boys. Every Wednesday after school these girls meet with the boys' teacher, Fred Hole, and spend an hour constructing many useful things.

Coffee tables are being made by Gladys Boychuk, Joan Crawford and Marilyn Cunniff while Felda Dorn, Marjorie Daubeny, Deanna Christensen and Mona Mars are making end tables.

Elizabeth Harrison is doing a fine job with a bedside table.

Tea trays are the choice of Georgina Lim, Pat Chu, Daphne Chan, Wilma Mann is busy with a footstool, and Dorothy Herrett has finished her footstool.

When you ask them why they do this work, sometimes they just shrug their shoulders. Or they may reply: "It's fun," "I enjoy woodworking," or "It's interesting."

Some hinted they want to keep up with the boys. Others, that they didn't want to be thought weaklings. Besides, it's a good use of leisure time.

QUIET, MEN AT WORK

Students, Teachers, Too, Struggle Towards Exams

By HERB EVANS

Spring is here. The grass is rizz. I wonder where the peoples is? They're studying for exams, they say.

Yes, spring is here and this week I noticed the Japanese plum trees in bloom along the driveway of the school. With the coming of spring we expect warmer weather, flowers in bloom—and exams.

In the office at school there is a great deal of activity as teachers prepare papers for the Easter examinations. To the matric students these examinations can decide whether or not the student in question will be recommended.

With the coming tests—the usual extra-curricular activities usually peter out somewhat and pick up again after the traditional Easter holidays, which are so welcome.

SHE'S STILL BUSY

There is one activity that does not die out because of exams, and that is the editor of the Year Book the "Oak Leaf." Right now the book is being put together. The "master" dummy of the annual has been assembled and all that remains is the articles, pictures and advertisements to be collected and then the book will go to press. Mid-May is the deadline.

At this time last year the annual was not as near readiness to be sent to the press as it is now. Don Cox, business manager, along with his staff of sales personnel have sold a record number of advertisements amounting to over $1,000.

The two outstanding matrics of the year, as chosen by the senior students, are Kay Burnett and Jim Sharp. Both these students have high grades in school work and have taken part in many school activities. (Congratulations from H. E.)

Voices Can't Subdue Drama

By JO ANN HOPWOOD

There's an 80-voice choir in this school, and it's magnificent. That's what we think.

Right now, of course, music gives way to drama . . . up to a point.

History in a panorama is the concert attempt of the Provincial Normal School on April 4, 5 and 7.

Narrator will give the chronology. Several choruses from Gregorian chants, sung by a choir costumed as Medieval monks; tableaux representing famous sculpture and paintings; a dramatization of Chaucer's Canterbury Pilgrims, and farcical comedy, "Gammer Gurton's Needle," an example of the lusty humor of the day.

Part two of the program includes music, art and poetry of the Baroque era. Among the numbers presented are a dainty operatic aria by Lull, which will be sung by a girls' chorus; and a haunting melody by a violin trio. Handel choruses will be sung by an 80-voice choir, while three of our pianists will perform a Bach two-piano sonata.

The drama ranges from Shakespeare's "Henry V," and a scene from "Romeo and Juliet," to the culminating modern play by A. A. Milne, "The Princess and The Woodcutter."

Combined Auditorium-Gym Esquimalt School Asset

By GERALD R. GUEST

Esquimalt High School has a modern auditorium-gymnasium which perhaps will be a pattern for things to come.

During March of this year, it has been the site for an indoor track meet and school drama festival plays. It proved its suitability for both.

The auditorium-gym measures 60 by 100 feet and has a floor seating capacity of 800 (the seats are stored beneath the stage); an additional bleacher capacity of 250.

Numerous fire exits ensure complete safety.

The stage itself, which measures 30 by 60 feet, is concealed by double soundproof sliding doors. (Since the stage has not yet been equipped with curtains of its own, the school is very grateful for the loan of curtains from the School and Community Drama Branch of the Department of Education.)

Footlights—composed of 36 globes of 100 watts fold into the stage when not in use. Bright proscenium border lights add to the possibilities of very effective lighting.

The master control panel mounts four rheostats as well as portable board outlets. The addition of six-stage and six wall plugs greatly increases the variety of the lighting system.

At the rear of the stage a trapdoor in the floor discloses a scenery workshop and storage room and a music room for the school's musicians.

Left stage leads to the boys' and girls' dressing rooms. Each is equipped with brightly lit make-up mirrors and all the necessities for a polished production.

Finally E.H.S. has its own auditorium, one of which it can be proud; and soon the buzzers will sound in the dressing rooms warning student actors: "On stage everybody!"

CULLED Off The CAMPUS

The Mount Douglas drama cast presented the play "Heaven on Earth" Wednesday night, at Victoria High School. It was the delight of the evening, writes June Lum. The cast consisted of Albert Wallis, Heather Manson, Joan Nicholson, Margaret Stevenson and Ralph Russell. Mavis Street was stage manager and Betty McGrath, make-up director. Great credit was given to Joan Nicholson, who, only having a few lines to say, showed perfection in her manner and speech. Penny Sacrifice, Junior Red Cross style, took the form of a tag day last Wednesday at Central Junior High. A large number of students were noticed sporting little white and red crosses to signify that they had contributed to this worthy cause.

St. Ann's Sees Crucifixion's Story in Film

By PAT WESTWOOD

At the Tuesday and Wednesday noon hours, the St. Ann's junior and senior high school students have high grades in school work and have taken part in many school activities. (Congratulations from H. E.)

The monthly meeting of the Aquinas Literary Circle was held Monday in the auditorium. Grade IX presented entertaining scenes from "Little Women"—Louisa May Alcott version. Feature attractions were Betty's hilarious costume, Miss Crockett's curls, Hannah's bonnet, and Jo's ad libs.

The oldest friend of St. Ann's Academy met its spectacular end Wednesday morning. Although of indeterminate age (no one had enough courage to count the rings), our maple tree has certainly seen better days. Students were awakened from their morning naps by the drone of a determined buzz saw and shouts of "Timber-r-r-r!"

Then Old Faithful fell with a crash.

Junior Red Cross representatives presented the school with the recently purchased first aid kit. The two delegates to the U.B.C. open house during education week, Pat Burke and Laurie Dodd, roused student interest with their enthusiastic account of their visit. As a preview of their Saturday appearance, the Glee Club closed the program with three songs.

AMBITIOUS CONCERT PLAN
Preparations for the annual spring concert at Victoria Normal School which is to be held in the auditorium on April 4, 5 and 7 go well. The concert is an attempt to present history as a panorama of art, music, poetry and drama from the early Middle Ages to modern times.

Students Turn To Sales Talk

Students at North Saanich High plan to turn salesmen in their off-school hours to acquire funds to purchase nets and other equipment for the tennis court and to finance the last edition of the school paper.

Subscriptions to publications will be sold and from 30 to 50 per cent of the proceeds will go to the student fund.

It's a Hold-Up But Vic High's Pupils Like It

By JUANITA MORRIS

Vic High experienced on Monday and Tuesday a hold-up, carefully planned and smoothly carried out by the Girls' Y-Teens. It was to bolster their treasury to send delegates to camp.

Various students were seen digging deep into their pockets for pennies to pay a one cent fine for such infractions as chewing gum, speaking out of turn in class, not having homework done and such other offenses. Going up the down stairs and vice versa, and boys leaving the classrooms before the girls, proved to be the most regular money-earners.

Much credit is due to Jack Ward and his crew of advertising salesmen who recently "went over the top" getting over $900 of advertisements to take a great load off the shoulders of the "Camosun" editors. A bigger and better issue will be published because of the extra cash.

There is a mystery about the identity of this year's "Camosun" mascot. Each year a different one is chosen and this year it is being kept secret. But it has been rumored that the editors are having a hard time finding a suitable name for it.

G. Hartley, boys' P.E. instructor, led his afternoon classes to Stadacona Park for tennis instruction this week. At present only afternoon classes are fortunate enough to take to the courts but later on open classes after school will be held.

Girls' track practices have begun and many a young miss can be seen walking painfully down the halls and sinking slowly at their desks with much care not to bend that stiff body. However, by next week they will all be limbered up and ready to go.

Starting the day with smug complacency, the Mt. Viewites had full confidence in their well-organized school routine. They sat back in their "antiquated" desks waiting to watch the waves of admiration, astonishment and envy cross the faces of their visitors as they observed the orderly Canadian classrooms. But somehow this happy picture didn't develop.

Some students were over-anxious, some were over-excited, and as the day progressed, discipline was upset. Even the quieter students found themselves yelling out answers (very reminiscent of the "unruly" classes that had shocked the Mt. View delegates on their trip to Bremerton). To their anxious eyes, even the teachers seemed unusually inept and students expected to sparkle could only produce a dull gleam.

The very fact that Bremerton guests and their billet-hosts were allowed to miss the first two periods of school also was a disadvantage, as one Bremerton girl was heard excitedly explaining to her friends that "they don't have to come to school at any set time; just when they're ready." When the shoe was on the other foot, it pinched.

If a true picture is to be obtained, the one-day exchange visit seems to do more harm than good. In the light of this experience, it appears that a full week with no planned entertainment until the close of the visit would give a clearer and more authentic basis on which to form an opinion.

The American girls took full advantage of Victoria's specialty shops, particularly in the purchase of woollens. Escorted by Canadian hostesses, the Bremerton students were heard on one occasion to confusedly specify the "Clock Watch" and the "Night Watchman" while hunting the "Black Watch" tartan.

Normal Students Invade Vancouver

Victoria P.N.S. students filled another chapter in their "Book of Memories" last week end, when they invaded the Vancouver Normal School.

Princess Marguerite carried 80 excited students. A steady stream of music flowed from the Marguerite's ballroom during the voyage. The Vancouver students were down at the pier in full force—decked out in kilts. Victoria students and boat passengers alike were piped to the C.P.R. reception room. They were whisked straight to the P.N.S. gym, where billets were arranged before the athletic events got under way. The competition began with two basketball games. The Victoria girls lost a brave battle, while the boys trounced the Vancouverites.

B.C. Moving Mountains for Progress

In the last four years, the provincial school boards have put out $4,000,000 on school construction. It is conservatively estimated that $12,000,000 a year for the next 10 years will be needed to accommodate the rapidly growing school population.

The costly construction of power plants in British Columbia has been going on since the early 1920s. Men are searching the mountains for sites for potential power sites as eagerly as men of the 19th century looked for gold.

In the last 10 years the development of water power has increased 63 per cent—almost double the increase in power development throughout Canada.

GREAT POWER POTENTIAL

The provincial power potential of 10,565,000 horsepower is topped only by Quebec's 13,064,000. However, engineers said Quebec has harnessed 6,000,000 of this supply while British Columbia has only developed 1,382,888.

When C. D. Howe, trade minister, visited the west coast early this year, he called British Columbia "the brightest spot in the country."

"British Columbia is Canada's first province in growth, expansion and future," he said. "It has every thing."

NATIONS TOP WAGE EARNERS

tion of British Columbia has jumped 41 per cent—20 per cent more than the per capita growth of Canada.

The province's working force can boast of an average weekly wage of $36, which is $5 more than the average weekly wage for the nation.

With a greater earning power than any other province in the country, British Columbia is the most desirable place to spend last year's paycheque more to spend last year's paycheque on retail sales. Statistics showed this was $200 more than the per capita retail sale average for the nation.

The topography has posed a challenge to engineers but staggered financial circles. Eastern provinces showed obvious amazement when it was disclosed that it cost $300,000 to build a tenth of a mile of road at Vancouver, B.C.

Public works officials have estimated, however, that it takes $100,000 to build the average mile of road in the province. But British Columbia has the greatest mileage of roads meeting the high standard set for the Trans-Canada Highway. They were quick to add:

POPULATION SOARING

With the population growth of 41 per cent in the last decade, British Columbia is also forced to spend heavily on a school building program.

Played Host To Royalty, Has Friends All Over The Globe

Now that he is stepping down, to be succeeded at the Empress as manager by Thomas A. Chester, former assistant general manager of Canadian Pacific hotels at Winnipeg, Mr. Hodges is looking forward with the greatest enthusiasm to giving more time to his favorite hobby of gardening. He is passionately fond of press lounges, conservatories and extensive grounds is convincing proof of that.

In the future he will spend most of his leisure time developing his attractive home and garden at 1224 Beach Drive as a setting of floral beauty.

CITY DAHLIAS IN SIAM

While discussing his penchant for flower gardening, Mr. Hodges recalled the visit to Victoria in 1931 of the King and Queen of Siam, with Prince Svasdi and retinue. The Siamese monarch, en route from Bangkok to New York to undergo a delicate eye operation, stayed several days at the Empress. "They had great joy in our gardens and were particularly delighted with the wonderful display of giant dahlias blooming here," said Mr. Hodges. "At their request, I later sent them a box of assorted dahlia roots which, according to a letter, I received from King Prajadipok's private secretary, were received in splendid condition. As a result, Empress dahlias can now be seen blooming in the palace grounds of far-off Bangkok."

PHOTOGRAPHY, PHILATELY

Outstanding among Mr. Hodges' hobbies must be listed photography and philately.

Had he not chosen the career of hotel manager, he might possibly have adopted photography as a profession. He displays with pride some remarkably fine camera shots. "I have had many of my pictures accepted and hung in salons and exhibitions in Canada and also the United States," he said.

England's Irish Writers

Like many other Irishmen before, and after, Robert Lynd went to England to make a living by his pen. Like the others, too, he did the usual things, worked on a provincial paper, read widely, knew poverty at first-hand and attended the meetings of the Gaelic Society. He married a fine writer in her own right, Sylvia and in less than a dozen years joined the noble company of master essayists and was classed with Chesterton and Belloc. The publishers of Everyman's Library have wisely chosen his full works to be known to a generation that did not have the privilege of reading his work as it appeared.

As an essayist, Lynd was strangely patient and gentle, ignorant of the power of the pen. He delighted in making men pensive and reflective; abhorred arrogance; despised mere cleverness. He had the gift of spinning an essay around a small, simple example. It concerns a drunken spree of Dutch sailors who were arrested in Belfast. At the trial their captain was admonished by the magistrate who said it was most un-English to bite people. To which the captain replied gravely, "It is also very un-Dutch, your worship." Only the English used the prefix "un" as a snub to foreigners; they even boasted that it was un-English to be so. This was written to be a lesson to the American lites. Committee came into existence.

Like a great many other writers, Lynd often wondered whether it was possible to conquer the tobacco habit. He decided that he couldn't because he really did not want to. Why? Simply because every friendly, delightful thought he had was always associated with tobacco. "If I were to tell you all the associations I have with tobacco, going to my father's pipe, the cigarette I find in ten volumes for sale, a few brief periods of austerity, I have been smoking continuously ever since."

How very uncommon was Reginald Hine, the attorney who referred to himself as an "uncommon attorney" and is the author of two books of essays, "Confessions of an Uncommon Attorney," published in 1931. At the Roundabout

Starting next Saturday N. de Bertrand Lugin, whose "Memories" have won a wide circle of Sunday Times Magazine section readers goes beyond her own memories for a new series "Stories Chief David told me."

The old chief of the Spanish tribe drew off his retentive memory to tell of the early days of Vancouver Island when it was a wilderness. He has been the tribesman who told the story of the raiding parties of young girls and the ceaseless vigilance necessary for survival. Other stories tell of grim battles and other high lights of Indian history following through to the influence of civilization leading to Indians taking their part in life as Canadian citizens.

growth, shows a five-lobed arrangement, each lobe slightly pointed and deeply impressed with the little-lobed furrows in which lie the veins. Curled over slightly the base of the petals are like scales; under the scales with the lobes slightly suggesting the fully opened flowers.

FASCINATING DAINITIES

There is a fascinating daintiness about these juvenile leaves that very fitly prepares the way for the fully opened flower-clusters when they themselves will have attained something like maturity, so rapid are the plant's processes when once spring fairly sets in.

J. R. Anderson, in his "R.C. Trees and Shrubs," assures me that not a single one of these leaves is not a pleasant surprise, because with an agreeable flavor. It is, however, pretty to look at, the dark purplish blue lightened by its bloom, which it shares in possession with the blueberry and other dark fruits.

But this evening I am more particularly attracted by the young leaves which have also opened up and are now displaying their tender but bright green.

These leaves are as yet quite small, the largest less than an inch across at the base, but their very youth and tenderness increases one's enjoyment of their bright green beauty. Their general form is that of a broad-based triangle, but its bounds are not straight lines but delicately curved and indented ones. The young leaf, as soon as it has emerged from the earliest stage of

CRIMSON BLOSSOMS

I have been following a familiar custom: that of cutting a few well-budded branches of flowering shrubs and putting them in water in the house so as to hasten the blossoms. One or two of these have been taken from a pink-flowered specimen of the common flowering currant, Ribes sanguineum, I brought into the garden, four years ago.

The flowering currant, with its bright crimson, drooping flower clusters, is one of our most lovely things in the early spring, and it must have been with great pride that either Menzies or Douglas took it back to his native Scotland, where, I understand, it flourishes amazingly in one or more of the southwestern counties. It was first noted botanically by a Russian botanist, Frederick Pursh, who died in Montreal in 1820, after making a botanical survey of much of North America and publishing his discoveries.

STRIKING AND ATTRACTIVE

A deep crimson red is the common color of its flowers, hence its name Ribes sanguineum, the blood-red currant. But bushes are occasionally found with more or less white flowers, and, as I have said, the branches I have at my side come from a pale pink specimen. Such variations of color as these are not uncommon in the wild state of many plants, and the flowers of some clusters, as do those of the wild currant, the effect is very striking and attractive.

But this evening I am more particularly attracted by the young leaves which have also opened up and are now displaying their tender but bright green.

He had the gift of spinning an essay around a small, simple example. It concerns a drunken spree of Dutch sailors who were arrested in Belfast. At the trial their captain was admonished by the magistrate who said it was most un-English to bite people. To which the captain replied gravely, "It is also very un-Dutch, your worship." Only the English used the prefix "un" as a snub to foreigners; they even boasted that it was un-English to be so. This was written to be a lesson to the American lites. Committee came into existence.

Like a great many other writers, Lynd often wondered whether it was possible to conquer the tobacco habit. He decided that he couldn't because he really did not want to. Why? Simply because every friendly, delightful thought he had was always associated with tobacco. England's Irish Writers

Like many other Irishmen before, and after, Robert Lynd went to England to make a living by his pen. Like the others, too, he did the usual things, worked on a provincial paper, read widely, knew poverty at first-hand and attended the meetings of the Gaelic Society. He married a fine writer in her own right, Sylvia and in less than a dozen years joined the noble company of master essayists and was classed with Chesterton and Belloc. The publishers of Everyman's Library have wisely chosen his full works to be known to a generation that did not have the privilege of reading his work as it appeared.

As an essayist, Lynd was strangely patient and gentle, ignorant of the power of the pen. He delighted in making men pensive and reflective; abhorred arrogance; despised mere cleverness. Plucky Juanita Scores a Bull's Eye Against Polio

BOWL BETTER WITH BOMAR

Release With Lifting Motion; Let It Drop On Alley Over Line

Pretty Juanita Phillips, Port Norris, N.J., sophomore, draws a bead on her target during practice, is the only woman on the Tennessee rifle team. (NEA)

By MAXINE HALL

First and only woman member of the University of Tennessee rifle team is a honey-haired sophomore from Port Norris, N.J., who has been practising 19 years to score a bull's eye.

Juanita Phillips grew up with a stuffed leg that had been crippled by polio when she was four months old. But she was courage instead of braces. And she picked up a rifle instead of crutches.

Her marksmanship gives her confidence and poise. It's quite a distinction to be Annie Oakley in collegiate competition against all men teams.

The first corrective operation was performed on her left leg when she was four. A Philadelphia surgeon lengthened her leg and straightened it.

Before that, she walked on her toes. After she "got her growth" at 15, she was operated on again. This time, muscles were transplanted to her ankle. For the first time, she could move her foot.

Sister Kennedy's famous treatment with heat packs and massage was introduced about this time, but it was too late to help Juanita. That treatment needs to be applied immediately after polio strikes.

DOCTOR TAUGHT HER

After the second operation came a long year of convalescing. Her family sent her to live in Florida with her grandparents. It was a Florida doctor who taught her to shoot.

The doctor was a national rifle champion. He was so proud of her progress he rewarded her with a brand new Winchester .22. She left it at home when she came to Tennessee, like it on the university rifle range.

As a freshman last year at Beaver College, a women's college near Philadelphia, Juanita was a member of the team that had held the national women's championship for three years.

This year, she enrolled in a marksmanship class offered as a substitute for more strenuous physical education classes. Her first time on the range the amazed R.O. T.C. instructor invited her to join the varsity team.

The only handicap Juanita will admit is the lack of practise in shooting from all four positions. At Beaver, she fired only from a prone position. This way, she makes a perfect score.

IN THE HIGH 90'S

Standing, sitting or kneeling, she shoots in the high 90's. After years of patient massaging and exercise, Juanita's slight limp is barely noticeable. She walks as though she might have just bumped her shin or twisted her ankle.

Juanita is a business administration student whose main interest is to make good grades, although she confides that they went from one end of the alphabet to the other last quarter.

Release — Buddy Bomar starts his slide on the left foot, and releases the ball. (NEA).

By BUDDY BOMAR

(Former Match-Game Champion)

Starting the slide on the left foot, the ball is just reached the bottom of its arc on the downswing. The slide is important. It should be from 10 to 15 inches long to insure a gliding, relaxed motion as the ball is released.

The right arm should be straight and fully extended with the right elbow in close to the body. Do not bend too far from the waist delivering the ball.

Don't dip excessively to one side. You don't have to set the ball down on the alley. Release it with a lifting motion and let it drop on the alley out over the foul line.

The thumb and forefinger of my right hand form a V toward my target. The thumb comes out of the ball first.

The four fingers impart stuff to the ball with a lifting motion as I send the ball out over the foul line. Do not twist your wrist. That will not aid anything but spin.

I am relaxed and balanced even though the action is very fast and strenuous. This ultimate relaxation is the result of being comfortable in performing each of the earlier steps in approaching the foul line.

One small, tense movement will ruin the easy motion necessary to improve your score.

NEXT: The follow through.

Waterfowl species are among the greatest wildlife actors. Watch a mother duck or goose the next time you approach her nest. She will very likely do everything but stand on her head in an effort to distract you away from the eggs or downy young.

Gruber Conducts

Schubert His Favorite

I am advised that this is to be the first of a series of articles. Thus is resumed a "performance" which has had the longest intermission in history—to be precise, 10 years.

When I was 16, I was engaged by the Toronto Daily Star to write musical criticisms.

My career lasted one unpublished article. (So far, I'm ahead of the game.)

In those days I knew everything about everything, and showed the error of a performer's ways with such devastating clarity and accuracy, that even the Toronto Star did not think it had sufficient reserves to stand the strain of a lied suit.

My only consolation was that concert pianists in question did not know anything when I was 16.

I heard him not very long ago. I was incredulous over how much the man had learned by the time I was about 26 (with apologies to Mark Twain).

MAKING IT CLEAR

All this I thought necessary to get straight in my first article, in order that we may be entirely in the picture. Also, there's publicity for the orchestra, in other words. That's fine. I have long since come to agree with the famous remark of Teddy Roosevelt's, to the effect that it does not matter what people say about you, so long as they say it on the front page of the newspaper.

And now I am expected to say something about music and the forthcoming and last symphony concert of this season on March 31.

One of the stock questions that reporters ask conductors in the course of interviews is who their favorite composer is. This silly question usually receives a deservedly silly answer, calculated, however, to produce a lofty effect. The gist of the answer usually given is "the one whose works I conduct at the moment."

For a long time I naively believed there was a grain of truth in that statement, made by some very eminent musicians. And I thought it simply a further sign of childishness and immaturity on my part that I actually did have a favorite composer.

BURDEN LIFTED

But wild horses would not have dragged that admission out of me—until some three years ago. I was myself present when the great Pierre Monteux was asked the question.

To my astonishment, he replied without a moment's hesitation, "Brahms!" So here was Monteux, one of the half-dozen or so living people who really have any business at all being conductors, publicly admitting to a predilection for any other composer. Schubert, who was the greatest of all natural geniuses among composers of music.

SCHUBERT'S LAST AND GREATEST

The next and last symphony concert, then, will see a presentation of his last and greatest symphony, the 7th (or 9th) in C major. The symphony of "heavenly length." The symphony that, next to the Ninth of Beethoven, I had most hoped to be permitted to conduct before relinquishing my career as conductor.

The symphony, along with works of Mozart and the Ninth of Beethoven, that presents the highest form of worship to musicians in the concert hall.

Music Adds Richness To Children's Lives

By ANNETTE GREEN

One of the greatest character and personality builders, in the opinion of Florence Mercier, is music.

"If I could only speak to all parents personally," says Miss Mercier, "I would try to explain how much music means in the lives of their children."

Music study develops responsibility, powers of concentration, memory and self-confidence, she thinks. In addition, it is a natural outlet for emotional strains and stresses.

The piano is the foundation for all other instruments," Miss Mercier explains. "If your child decides in later years to be a singer or to play the trumpet, he or she will be well prepared."

An important consideration for parents, she says, is to give their child piano lessons, is the type of teacher to pick. Very often they feel that an inexpensive teacher is best, since they're not sure the child has any definite talent or musical tendencies.

MAKE CAREFUL SELECTION

This is terribly wrong, says Florence Mercier. Many so-called teachers have actually destroyed the child's interest in music by using the right methods.

Before you allow a youngster to start working with your teacher, do a bit of investigating about her background. Find out where she has studied.

It is also important for you to know what she has accomplished in the musical field. It is very simple for a woman to study music for two or three years and then call herself a teacher, says Miss Mercier.

If she has a good background, what she is a wise selection, no matter what she charges.

Impress upon the teacher you do choose that you want your child to have thorough grounding in the classics. The harmony in the music is also vital to basic training.

POPULAR MUSIC LATER

Once your youngster is well versed in Bach and Beethoven, her capacity for learning will increase two-fold. Popular music can come later, according to Miss Mercier.

Once the teacher starts the lessons, show your confidence by giving her complete authority. Never stay in the room during the session, says Miss Mercier.

After the first few lessons, it is a good idea to give the teacher and pupil at least a year to get used to each other to allow their personalities to blend.

START AT SIX OR SEVEN

If you are wondering about the best age to start your boy or girl, Miss Mercier recommends six or seven.

"Children at this age don't have too many outside interests," she says. "This offers them a good six or seven years for developing. If they are not interested, they will not continue of their own free will."

But the famous pianist goes on to explain, you cannot expect a young child to want to practise. You must face the fact that she would much rather be out playing with her friends.

What you should do is budget the youngster's time so that she has a full day, without too much concentration on any one thing.

For instance, when your child comes home from school, you should not expect her to sit down and start to practise immediately. Miss Mercier suggests you allow a half-hour play period and then a half-hour practice period.

After the practice period, let her do other things. She will be followed by some other activity until about one and a half hours of practise have been accomplished.

Gruber Leading Victoria Symphony To National Fame

tion and in public support, given increased financial stability, the Victoria Symphony Orchestra will within the next five years, become not only a local but a provincial asset. It will achieve national rating and a Canada-wide audience via the radio.

It is on its way now. Everything should be done to help it. The citizens of Victoria have a lot to do to live up to nature's standards of beauty. Taking pride in a beautiful city to which one contributes nothing in a constructive sense, is smug vacuity.

The most minor contributor, in any capacity, to such movements as the Symphony and the Arts Centre, are helping to reinforce the splendours of nature with the splendours of human achievement.

WITHIN FIVE YEARS

And they, perhaps, would venture with me to make a prophecy. It is this: Given no falling off in direct-

As Gruber, the youngest professional conductor in Canada, stepped onto the podium, everyone waited eagerly, hopefully for the first turning of the new page in the orchestra's young history.

DISTINGUISHED RECORD

It was known of him that he had made a distinguished record, not only in music, but in scholarship; that he had successfully conducted major works with eastern orchestras. And he came with the high recommendation of Sir Ernest Macmillan.

Yet with all that, there was, as there must always be, the question mark that will only resolve by "seeing for oneself."

Victoria saw for itself early in Gruber's first season, and today under his hand.

Books and Authors

Increasing evidence of the growing popularity of the pocket-size book is shown in the ever-growing demand for these inexpensive, easy-to-handle editions.

In fourteen years, the Penguin series, which started in England, has expanded from the popular crime and detective "Who Dun It" to include a comprehensive variety of books to suit all tastes, classified under various headings according to the type of book.

Their publication lists are long and varied. For the student a classic line includes plays, history, poems and music. For those who seek clear and reliable guidance in the many fields of modern knowledge of psychology, architecture and language the Penguin series will give accurate information.

For those who wish a good novel many outstanding authors are printed in these handy-size books.

Another is the King Penguin list which covers a wide variety of subjects from English Clocks to Crown Jewels, from British Beetles to Highland Dress and from Tulipomania to Tommy Marsh. In fact no subject is excluded if it complies with publishing conditions.

The little folk are not overlooked either. The Puffin picture books feature historical and adventure, all liberally illustrated.

Small wonder that these handy in-pocket size books are in such demand for they present a host of subjects in a fascinating, easy-to-read manner.

Publication by Penguin of "Poems 1951"—the prize-winning entries for the Festival of Britain competition, ensures that the poems of the eight winners will reach the widest audience possible. This is important to writers who never made money from writing verse and who find it even more difficult, with current high cost of production, to find a willing sponsor. Apart from some $290 which the British government each year awards the Post Laureate, there has been no state patronage of poetry until the Arts Council of Great Britain, which receives a treasury grant, set aside £1,100 for prizes for festival poems.

There was a total of 2,093 entries from all parts of the world, and the judges were surprised to find so much bad verse all in one gulp. The average age of the judges had exceeded the best verse to come from youth.

FACT BOOK ON B.C. STRESSES PROGRESS

Reviewed by ARTHUR STOTT
"British Columbia," published by George Allen and Unwin Ltd., London, and sold in Canada by Thomas Nelson & Sons Ltd., Toronto, price $4.50.

In a preface to this book the author, Fred H. Goodchild, Vancouver newspaperman, pays full tribute to the authorities from whom he has taken source material. They in turn, or those still living, might repay the compliment with an expression of thanks for the readable manner in which he has treated their branches of his subject.

"British Columbia" is a fact book, covering in 20 chapters and 210 pages such subjects as geography, climate and geology, government, institutions, cultural traditions, different industries, power development, airport expansion, health, welfare and education, the press and tourist attractions.

Its purpose is to spread information on British Columbia, and it does that job well.

INTO A NEW ERA

Mr. Goodchild writes unemotionally of a province "stepping over the threshold of a new era, leaving behind a hundred years that started with a wilderness dotted with fur-trading posts and ended with the province third in the Dominion's industrial production, third in size and third in population."

Copiously footnoted, it represents an excellent job of condensation, handling in chapters subjects of book-length interest and providing a store of knowledge about B.C. Its value in that respect is acknowledged by Premier Johnson, who notes the means by which the province is being opened up for development and concludes with the sentence, "There will be ample opportunity to reap the fruits of the future of British Columbia."

Edmonton Women Combine to Write Story of Arctic

"North Pole Boarding House," Elsie Gals Eugene Miles, $3.50, 205 pages. Ryerson Press, Toronto.
Two young Edmonton women have joined forces to produce this book of the experiences of the wife of a Canadian meteorological officer when she accompanied him to Arctic Bay to keep house and board a small staff of men at a station between the North poles.

The experiences are those of Elsie Gals, University of Alberta graduate. The writer is Eugene Miles, Calgary Normal School graduate who spent a year on the staff of the Edmonton Journal for several years. It took a lot of courage for a bride, whose nearest experience of leaving home had been at the family's farthest summer cottage, to become the farthest north white woman in North America.

From this life to a lonely wind-swept frozen station at Arctic Bay, between the true North Pole and the magnetic pole, the author tells the story of a woman who knew how to boil water also to become a housekeeper and cook for a group of men was an even greater one.

The story is modestly told, but it leaves one with admiration for the courage of the wife who took the job ahead of her and also of those who, in a little frozen world within a world, to maintain Canada's last frontier.

Besides telling of domestic problems in the north, as the title indicates, it gives much detail of life and work in the Arctic, visitors that come and go, trappers, traders and Eskimos.

As a book of exciting, amusing and often heroic experiences, as a travel book or as a straight book in which interesting characters carry the story interest, it rates high on all counts.

Fifty or sixty excellent photographic illustrations enhance the interest.

Fabric Developments Like Miracles

A wool jersey in a summer weight that holds its shape is used in three designs, shown here, from top designers. Pale pink afternoon dress converts (left) to short dinner dress with jacket off. Dress has full skirt, jacket is embroidered in baroque pearl honey warmth. Or it's turned into a velvet coat that's interlined. Wools so sheer and fine that they admit the slightest breeze are ideal for wear in the tropics or on a summer evening.

With these developments, there have come the processes that make all the synthetic fibres march steadily through the four seasons. Now, synthetic fibres, an all-weather fabric that holds its shape and will not sag is in good company.

Further, this wool jersey comes in zephyr weights as well as in the heavier coat and suit weights. The very lightest weight is fine for humid weather in the north or for tropical climates.

To this jersey, another quality has been added, its makers claim. This is a crease-resistant characteristic that makes it ideal for plane, train or car travel.

Household Hints

Your wrist watch should have a professional cleaning by a jeweler at least once a year.

Salvage that box-full of unstrung pearls and sew them, one by one, in a scatter arrangement, to a small headhugging hat.

If you are sending cookies to Korea, pack them in a metal or wooden box, and line it with waxed paper. Place a cushion of crumpled paper on the bottom of the box.

Protect pets from germ-ridden garbage by storing all household waste materials in covered galvanized steel garbage cans.

To season a salad bowl, rub it with hot olive oil and then with a cut clove of garlic. Repeat several times over a period of about three weeks.

If aluminum sink edges silt the aprons of persons standing against them, rub the aluminum with steel wool. Then apply two thin coats of fresh shellac.

To keep dust and dirt from adhering to your dustpan, wash it well with soap, dry and apply wax.

To disguise scratches on your furniture, darken by rubbing a piece of walnut, pecan or Brazil nut meat in the scratches—or by carefully applying a little iodine to the scratch.

Before you put handbags away, stuff crumpled tissue paper inside, to help hold the bag in shape.

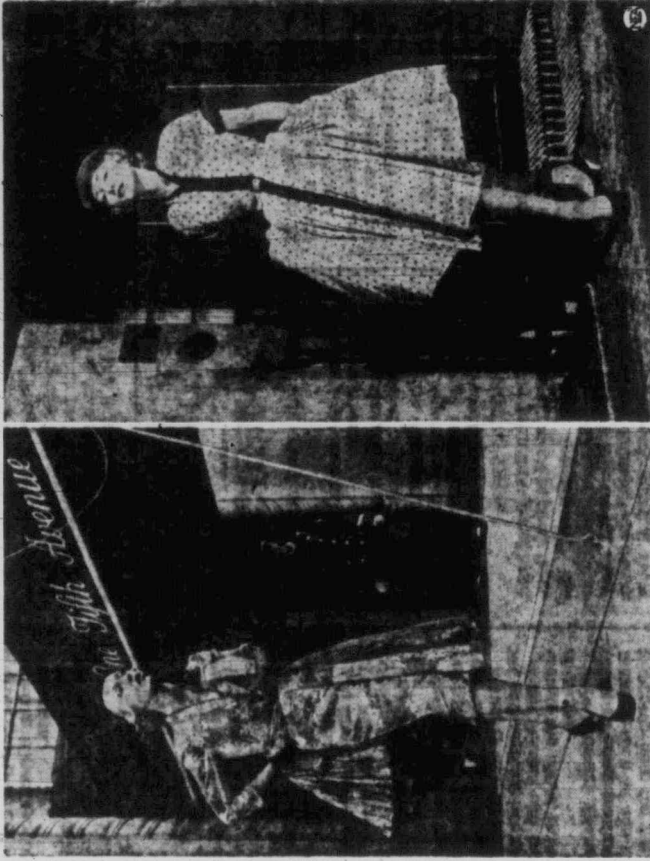

Leather will stay supple if you apply a thin coating of white vasoline with a soft cloth. Rub thoroughly, and then remove excess.

Keep your silk umbrellas in condition during a dry spell by taking it out of the closet and wetting it under the shower.

Place unwrapped soap in an empty suitcase or traveling bag to help prevent musty odors.

Novel Handling Of Springtime Prints

The place of prints in spring fashion is an important one. Though prints can almost be regarded as hardy perennials, these for 1952 get a new handling that marks them as very different from those of other years.

Generally, the spring print is small, neat and subdued. It's a ladylike pattern, a complement to the monotone coat that tops it. But, where a print does become large, it is unrelated to the wild prints of the past and it is attractive.

Colors are co-ordinated, not clashed. The large prints are in pattern that's fairly large but that gets a harmonious effect.

A pure silk shantung afternoon dress (right) by Eisenberg has a beige background for a tiny, navy blue background print. Cardigan front runs from neck to hemline and is edged in the same navy blue shantung used for the cap sleeves.

A full skirt is given a smooth hip line through use of pin-tuck pleats.

Larger print (left) appears in a coat-and-dress ensemble from the same collection. Here, navy blue is printed in taupe, navy, black and white. Dress has short sleeves and square neckline with bow at one side. Skirt is straight.

Matching coat has roll collar and three-quarter sleeves. It's completely lined in taupe changeable taffeta and horsehair. The very full skirt has stitched pleats.

Peninsula's Early Settlers Outstanding Among Daffodil And Tulip Growers

By C. V. FAULKNER

Easter daffodils, tulips and irises are turning Saanich fields into a blaze of color.

Like his fellow growers, 28-year-old Geoffrey Vantreigh Jr. has his field daffodil crop blooming in time for the Easter holiday. That will make it a good year—dates are important in the cut flower trade. Good years and bad, the Vantreighs have been growing flowers at Gordon Head for a long time.

Geoff's grandfather came out from Ireland to settle on the Point in 1882. Lumber for his home was brought down the coast from Chehalis by barge and carried ashore on the backs of Chinese laborers. Geoff's father was one of the area's first farmers, known as the "Strawberry King" as the fame of Gordon Head strawberries spread. Geoff said, "He cleared all his land by hand."

Vantreigh senior ran a few beef farms in the early days. Later he built greenhouses for tomatoes and other vegetables before going into bulbs, but now limits his farming activities to about 2,500 chickens. In 1943 he gave his son 60 acres of land and a bunch of bulbs, and told him to go ahead—young Geoff did.

ON THE HOME FARM
With his wife Jean, and their three children, Sharon, Wendy and Ian, Geoff has moved into a new 9-room ultra-modern house on the home farm. In addition to his father's 240-acre farm, Geoff has three farms 240 acres on three farms in Central Saanich. An expected crop of some 50 tons of berries this year puts him in line for that "Strawberry" title himself.

Main crops on the Vantreigh farms today are bulbs, flowers and strawberries. Selected bulbs are forced in about 15,000 square feet of greenhouse space for the off-season.

"In the spring the field flower crops take over; thus the production of commercial flowers is maintained from Christmas to Mother's Day. Strawberries follow the flower crops and continue until time to start regaining bulbs again for selection and re-planting in the fall.

This bulb-growing cycle keeps busy a permanent staff of 10. Seasonal staff varies widely, averaging 40 to 45 for daffodil picking, and up to 100 for strawberries.

"If my wife thinks she has trouble with three kids she should try looking after 100 pickers," the young grower smiled.

BULL-DOZED RESERVOIRS
Geoffrey Vantreigh is another farmer "sold" on the value of irrigation. He built two reservoirs on his Saanich farms have a combined capacity of 8,000,000 gallons.

"It was the drought system because the water is warmer," he said. On his light, loamy soil Geoff uses the larger, No. 40A Rainbird sprinklers, and 2,000 feet of four-inch portable aluminum pipe. The wide throw of the 40A's, and large diameter piping enables a heavy volume of water to be spread over a fairly big area at each setting.

"When you want water you want it in a hurry," he pointed out. "I figure we pump about 10,000,000 gallons on to our land in a season."

THREE MILLION BULBS

The 3,000,000 bulbs planted on Vantreigh land yield about 150,000 dozen cut flowers a year. Bulk of the strawberry and flower shipments go to the prairie provinces, although increased air-freight facilities in the past few years has stepped up their business with the east. "You can get a bit sick of flowers when you handle them all the time," Geoff told me. "Still, it's quite a sight around here when the fields are in bloom."

It's quite a sight around here at any time. Geoff's new hilltop across the fields to the blue waters of the Gulf. On a clear day the snow-capped peaks of Mount Baker stand out sharply above the deep green of the islands. Watching a graceful couveur, Jean Vantreigh said, "In all the years I've been here, I've never gotten used to the wonder of that view."

But a Few Weeks Left for Planting New Lawn

Over this apply a good brand of balanced plant food at the rate of a pound to 25 square feet. Then mix the ingredients thoroughly.

The ground must be thoroughly cultivated, spaded or plowed, mixing the soil to the six-inch depth.

Properly blended plant foods also are absolutely necessary to supplement what is available from the soil. Only on rare occasions should "one-way" fertilizers or wholly nitrogenous fertilizers be used for planting grass, and only then on the advice of an expert. These will tend to force the grass to make a rank leaf growth at the expense of the rest of the plant. Highly stimulating fertilizers may be used only on well-fed grass.

LIME AND CHARCOAL
Two materials that will greatly assist the fertility of the soil are lime and charcoal. Both of them will do their part in keeping the soil sweet. If mixed deeply when the ground is prepared, they are detrimental to the soil.

The charcoal is a detrimental soil acid, and thus assists the plant feeding over a longer period. The lime hot only will provide necessary calcium for the grass plants, but also will release many other plant foods that are present in the soil.

USE PEAT MOSS
Spread about two or three inches of wet peat moss all over the area.

BONUS CROP

Wherever the space for a vegetable garden is limited, the air rights of the garden area should be exploited to grow crops that like to climb. Among these are cucumbers, pole beans, peas, melons, small tomatoes, and tall peas.

A fraction of the space which these crops would occupy when allowed to spread over the ground, suffices to grow them when they climb; and this releases room for other vegetables which are not climbers.

Any cucumber will be happy climbing a fence or trellis, whether it is called a climber or not. Even those with the largest fruits, so heavy you might think they would need support, seldom do.

Plant seeds at the foot of the supporting structure, so that the plants will be about a foot apart. They should be provided with a strong growing support so that the vines directed in the way they should grow, right from the start.

Because they grow so fast, cucumbers need rich soil. A complete plant food may be applied in a shallow trench three or four inches away from the seed row, using at least a pint to 25 feet of row. To prevent formation of crooked fruit in the late summer, an additional feeding with complete plant food should begin as soon as the plants are one foot to 50 feet of row.

All the vine crops, cucumbers included, are extremely tender; being killed by frost and refusing to germinate in cold soil. Sow them after the ground is warm.

The foliage of pole lima beans is beautiful, thick and glossy green. The harvest starts late, but lasts until frost kills the vines. Although only the seeds are eaten, the yield for space occupied will compare well with other crops, provided the soil is well fed.

Even though your garden soil is known to be fertile, it will be well to use four pounds of complete plant food for each 100 feet of row planted to lima beans. At lima beans are tender, and should be covered until the ground is thoroughly warmed and danger of frost is over. They may decay in cold soil. The seeds are so large they are easily spaced and should be planted with eye down to facilitate quick growth. Tests have proved that this causes a definite increase in germination.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q—The speaker at a recent garden club meeting spoke of "Rosemary and other labiates." What are labiates?

A—Rosemary, lavender, thyme, mint and thyme are labiate, or members of the mint family; the botanical name of which is labiate. These plants are excellent for the rock garden.

Q—When should the leaves of our peonies be cut back?—L.B.

A—Do not cut down the foliage of peonies until late autumn. Its presence is necessary to the welfare of the plant. The leaves will not grow any more, but should be left until they are killed by frost. Add a little fertilizer strong in phosphorus, such as 4-12-4 mixture to the soil about the plant to assist the roots in storing up energy.

Q—How should dahlias be cared for?—A.C.

He's Acrobat, Weight Lifter, Swimmer And Billiard Player, Gets Around Faster Than Most Men And Is Partner In Thriving Picture Business

And picture framing business. The Art Centre. He does everything a normally built man can do, and more. He is an independent, self-reliant, amiable, mother and daughter, and a very good actor. He is being away from home so much. This inspired his father to a most amazing decision. He would become a carnival performer himself and travel on the same circuit. Of all things to choose, he trained himself to become a sword swallower and fire eater.

LIVED CAENIVAL
The carnival life was a good life. John reminisced. "I loved the traveling and seeing different places. I loved the life. I was a good actor. I won a reputation as an acrobat and weight-lifter."

For 18 years Saskatchewan was his home. One brother and two sisters were born perfectly normal. With Johnny everything is normal except his legs. They just didn't develop, but strangely enough two half-formed feet grew and on these he manages to skip around readily enough. He went through school asking no concessions or favors of anyone.

Along the line he got an offer to appear in a carnival where he was billed as "The Seal Boy," his half-formed feet being billed as flippers. ACROBAT, WEIGHT-LIFTER
But John wasn't content to just be on show. He determined to give a show. Broad-shouldered, barrel-chested, had his legs developed he would probably be a powerful six-foot two-inch type—he decided to become an acrobat and weight-lifter.

He became a good one. Handstands, cartwheels were included in the act. As a weight-lifter he can do a 265-pound prone press.

lifter and, like all performers, I got a great thrill of satisfaction out of the applause the act won."

He was very much tempted to make carnival work his lifetime job, but it meant busy summers and nothing to do in the winter, and the idle periods irked him. On a trip to Vancouver with a show he decided he would settle permanently out west, with Vancouver in mind. However, while in Vancouver he made a trip to Victoria. He liked Victoria so much he changed his plans and he settled here.

Follow Rule For Melding

I still get dozens of letters from players who are doubtful about the initial meld when the pile is frozen. The pile was frozen by the dealer, one reader begins, "and after a few plays the top card was an ace. I held two aces, and wanted to put them down and take the pile."

The opponents said I had to meld from my hand, and could take the discard pile later on, if I ever got a chance. Is this right? No, it isn't a bit right. It was all right to put down the two aces, provided the count was only 50 points, and the ace from the discard pile, and pick up the rest of the pile. The top card of a frozen pile was a seven, writes another fan. "I put down three aces to meet the count of 50 points, and then put down two sevens to take the pile. The opponents said I couldn't take the pile because I didn't need sevens to meet the count requirement. What about this?"

Also wrong. You're always allowed to meld more than the minimum count. The rule prevents you only from melding less.

The players who have trouble

JACOBY

on this point don't seem to have trouble with an unfrozen pile. It's just the freeze that bothers them. Here's an easy way to be clear on the rule. If you're going to take the discard pile for your initial meld, it doesn't matter whether the pile is frozen or not. The rule is exactly the same.

Whether or not the pile is frozen, you need a pair of natural cards that match the top card at the discard pile. The frozen pile, as you may know, requires as 'yes' or it may be more. You are allowed to count the top card of the discard pile as part of your minimum count; but you aren't compelled to do so.

In short, any meld that would be legal with an unfrozen pile, will still be legal if the pile is unfrozen. Mind you, this applies only when you are trying to take the discard pile for your initial meld.

The difference applies only to melds that come after your initial meld has been made. Then, if the pile is still frozen, you need a pair of matching natural cards to take the previous discard. That would not be so if the pile were unfrozen.

STAMPS

Irresponsible Governments

In the past couple of decades we have seen various notable world events commemorated with long series of stamps, the main object apparently to tempt the stamp collector to buy them. Thus we have had the Silver Jubilee, Coronations, Peace, Silver Weddings, and U.P.U. sets.

Most collectors, in order to complete these sets before they go up in value, put in their orders in advance, so the dealer is committed to supplying everything that may be issued for these occasions.

Lately there have been some of the more irresponsible Latin American and European countries that have been taking advantage of the collector's natural desire for completion, in order to add to the sets fancy miniature sheets and imperforates, which were never used in the regular manner, and for which enormous premiums are asked.

Lately there have been some of the more irresponsible Latin American and European countries that have been taking advantage of the collector's natural desire for completion, in order to add to the sets fancy miniature sheets and imperforates, which were never used in the regular manner, and for which enormous premiums are asked.

SO CALLED "TERRORS" Grafting of officials with the convenience of certain N.Y. dealers, have been releasing various printed called "errors," deliberately printed in wrong colors, etc., which are listed at exorbitant prices, etc., and are entirely "only 100 exist," etc., and apparently enough to buy them. Gibbons, the London dealers, were so incensed when the British Silver Wedding sets appeared with the unnecessarily high values, that they refused to handle them. But fortunately collectors were forced to list them in their catalogue. It is a pity that philatelists refuse to co-operate in boycotting such issues, which obviously are brought out for purely mercenary reasons.

THEN VALUE JUMPED But there is always the hope that some of them may turn out to be winners. They sometimes do! For instance, the notorious St. Kitts set, issued for the purpose of getting funds for a cricket field, had a face value of about $8. Collectors were so disgusted that they gave them a value of about $100. The government, finding sales were so poor, after a few months burned the remainders, with the result that they became extremely rare; and now, 19 years later, they are listed at $200!

The latest series to be offered to collectors by various dollar-hungry governments is for the ostensible purpose of "honoring" the league of nations. It looks as if they would probably follow the pattern of the U.P.U. sets, so it would seem to be a good idea to skip them. (This does not apply to the actual set issued by the U.N. headquarters at N.Y., as this is rather an interesting issue).

Reviewing The Records

By DELOS SMITH

Verdi's "Il Trovatore" comes closer than anything else in opera to universality. "Al Neri Montu" gets responses from savages, small children, and the "Miserere," and the first chorus exalts the tone deaf.
His first complete recording on L.P.s was made by a cast which furnished its greatness not at all—and that is a compliment of the highest order.
Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, a leading

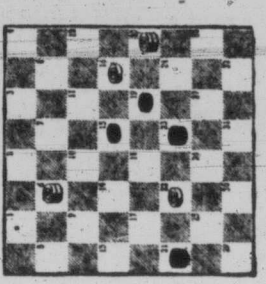

VERDI

tenor at the Metropolitan Opera from 1922 to 1933 and a professional for 32 years, sang the heroic Man-rico with such artistic finesse you're hardly conscious of the aged voice.
The Count was Carlo Tagliabue, who a Metropolitan alumnus who has been around even longer, and he composed for him.
Balancing those veterans, who gave the cast the stability of their long-practised skills, were Caterina Manelli (Leonora), a pleasing young soprano, and Miriam Pirazzini, who had the total wealth in the mezzo range and also the emotional savvy

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

The governmental department in charge of painting white lines in the middle of highways has been busy of late, painting white lines in the middle of highways.

Their work is noticeable in many sections of the country, especially on the Island Highway, in preparation for the annual influx of visitors who will, no doubt, be glad to know a governmental department is able to draw the line somewhere.

However, I have it on good authority that at least one resident of lower Vancouver Island has just and sufficient cause to be annoyed with these white lines.

This moderately elderly gentleman was accustomed to propel himself from point to point by means of bicycle, and did so for some years without untoward incident.

Then, one day, he found himself rudely struck in the rear by a hurrying truck, and woke up in hospital glumly contemplating various bruises and contusions.

Relatives who had gathered at his bedside breathlessly asked if he was all right.

"I'm fine," he growled, "but send the police after that truck driver."

"Suspend his license and throw him in the gaol. Does he not realize," grumbled the old gentleman, "that I was riding on the white line, and the white line is reserved for bicycles?"

Victoria's portion of the 15,500,000 audience claimed by that pre-digested and estimable publication, the Reader's Digest, will be heartened to read a short item on the inside cover of the current issue.

This is written by The Daily Times publisher, Stuart Kate, who winds up a brief but cogent summary of how things are going in B.C. with a short endorsement of the Reader's Digest. I'm all for this type of journalistic good will and wait eagerly for the publisher of the Reader's Digest to provide a similar endorsement of The Daily Times.

With regard to publishers (and a man in my position is well-advised to have SOME regard for publishers), one of the sharpest of the breed now lives in Victoria.

In his days as top man of the Winnipeg Tribune, Wes McCurdy wielded a cruel pencil on a budget and, being business-office trained, had an overwhelming love for black ink.

His editors will agree with me that he was an exceptionally slow man—even for a publisher—with his company's dollar, and was extremely fond of seeing three or four come back for each invested.

With one exception.

To get Wes McCurdy to loosen the purse-strings, both personal and corporate, all that was needed was a good, sound charitable cause—someone, or some group, in need. Then you just sat back and watched the newspaper roll and the ink flow.

So, now that he is retired, and entitled to spend his time in the leisurely pursuit of relaxation, he has been spending his waking hours of late in an all-out effort to raise funds for the Canadian Red Cross.

Hah! Even when I worked for him, I knew it. He's nothing but a softy.

Personal note to R.C.E.R.: You'll be surprised to find out how popular walking can become.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Damage estimated at $1,000 occurred at midnight Friday when two cars collided on the Island Highway between Bamerton and Mill Bay.

R.C.M.P. said the drivers were John Thompson, Cobble Hill, and John Edgar Bickson, Ladysmith. No one was injured.

The Army has issued a routine order specifying how photographs of Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh must be placed when together.

"Where the photographs are placed side by side, that of the Queen will be on the viewer's left and that of the Duke on the viewer's right," the order says.

The B.C. government, by order-in-council, this week named Saturday, April 12, a holiday for civil servants.

This order will give the civil servants of the province a four-day holiday, extending from Good Friday to Easter Monday.

Members of the Empress Hotel staff gathered in the Lower Lounge at the hotel Friday to present retiring manager J. K. Hodges with two antique armchairs, a desk, and a portable bed-side radio.

Mrs. Hodges was presented with a corsage.

Presentation, made by Don Williams, assistant manager, not only marked appreciation and best wishes of the staff on the eve of Mr. Hodges' retirement but which was also his birthday Friday.

Canada's Foremost Scout to Address Association Here

JACKSON DODDS

Jackson Dodds, C.B.E., former general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and a lifetime supporter of the Boy Scout movement in Canada, will address a meeting of the district Boy Scouts Association in district headquarters, 1034 Johnson, at 8 Tuesday evening.

Dodds, whose home is in Montreal, is Canada's first Deputy Chief Scout. In 1947 he became the "scout-suit" riots' here last year because a photographer wanted a picture of the chief scragging a couple of young brawlers.

On the other hand, and in the spirit of co-operation he likes to keep alive with the papers here, he has been known more than once to tip off police reporters on a good story.

He was born on a farm at Gordon Head in 1907 after his parents arrived from Scotland. He joined the force when he was 20 because there was a good degree of security in police work and because he was genuinely interested in it.

His uncle, Malcolm Blackstock, was a sergeant in the department but knew nothing of young John's plans to pin on a badge. Even today, there are still two Blackstocks on the force—the chief's cousin Dean is a detective.

It was a small operation in the days when the chief first pounded the beat (he did it for 18 years as constable, sergeant and inspector—the force only had one car and a truck converted to use as a paddy wagon).

And, of course, the bobby helmets. "Give me one of those every time," says the chief today. "They're comfortable in the winter, cool in the summer and fine protection from a blow on the head."

An active athlete in his youth, "Blackie's" 258 pounds came in right handy in later years when the police tug-of-war team huffed and puffed their way to victory on a number of occasions. He likes hunting and fishing and has a hobby that would make more than a few people do a double-take... he raises canaries.

In fact, Chief Blackstock is a past president of the Victoria Roller Canary Club.

Most interesting type of police investigation, thinks the chief, is the hit-run automobile case.

NOT FISHING

Film Job Done, Moira Shearer Wants to Rest

By ELIZABETH FORBES
Times Women's Editor

At Patricia Bay airport Friday evening I was waiting to meet Moira Shearer, darling of all England and prima ballerina of the Sadlers' Wells Ballet Company. Instead I found Mrs. Ludovic Kennedy, charmingly puzzled over our immigration laws, concerned because of two brown baggage checks could not be found, showing wifely interest in the weather because her husband wished to go fishing.

"Do you think it is going to rain?" she questioned, in her soft English voice. "I don't want it to rain. I hope the sun shines and the air is crisp while we're here. It's been so hot and dry in California."

She spoke enthusiastically of the picture she had just completed in Hollywood, of the trilogy, "Three Loves."

But the Moira Shearer love of the stage came to the surface when she told me that making pictures really seemed "cold and impersonal" to her.

"I love the warmth of an audience," she said, "and the satisfaction of following a ballet through to its conclusion in a performance. Not in a number of bits and pieces that may or may not make a perfect performance when it is finally on the screen."

HOME IN LONDON

Driving with them to Victoria, I discovered that Moira and Ludovic Kennedy have their own home in London. "A little house," they call it; that Mr. Kennedy was with the Royal Navy during the war; that they met soon after the war was over and were married less than two years ago.

And I found out that although her husband is a keen fisherman and looking forward to fishing in the Cowichan River district next week, Moira Kennedy has never gone fishing in his life.

"I may get up the courage to try it out," she told me with a twinkling smile, "but I'm not making any promises."

Future plans for the young couple centre around returning to England, immediately after their Vancouver Island holiday.

BABY AND BOOKS

There Moira Kennedy will hang up her ballet shoes for a few months while she awaits the arrival of their first child in late summer.

Mr. Kennedy, author of several books—one just completed and sent to the publishers—expects to start another soon.

In answer to my question, they said they might some day collaborate—perhaps on a book or play with ballet as its theme.

"It's a good dream," Moira Kennedy said. Then she looked at her husband and they both smiled happily.

But it was the weather in which they were both most interested.

And as I got out of the car, the last thing I heard Moira Shearer Kennedy say was: "I hope it doesn't rain."

Apartment Block, Modern Homes on Building Program

Edward Rosenthal, 2359 Beach Drive, is building a 10-suite apartment block with a fine sea view on the Oak Bay Esplanade.

Cost of the frame and stucco building will be $50,000 and the apartments will be available for tenants by the end of the summer.

Residence construction was up in Oak Bay during March with homes valued at something like $150,000 building.

Sanich building inspector J. S. Taylor has issued a building permit for the construction of a $39,000 residence for R. H. B. Ker on an Arbutus Road property.

Commonwealth Construction Co., Ltd., are the contractors for this ultra-modern home, which was designed by John Armour, associated with Birley, Wade & Stockill.

'ONE OF THE BEST' FOR ITS SIZE

Noted American Surgeon Lauds Jubilee Equipment

The Royal Jubilee Hospital got a "pat on the back" today by the assistant director of the American College of Surgeons in Chicago and head of a department which seeks to improve the standards of all hospitals in North America.

Dr. Paul S. Ferguson, who visited the Jubilee, described the hospital as "tops" and commended the institution for its up-to-date equipment.

The visiting surgeon who is in charge of standards, research and planning of hospitals, was shown through the institution by George E. Masters, hospital administrator. He was particularly interested in the eye department which is recognized as one of the best on the continent and has patients from all parts of the United States.

"I've seen larger and smaller hospitals," he said. "For its size this institution is one of the best I've seen."

Dr. Ferguson was guest at a luncheon given by the Jubilee Hospital's medical board Friday. He and Masters will attend the conference of the American College of Surgeons on Monday and Tuesday of next week in Vancouver.

Island Ridings Speeding Plans For Elections

By DON INGHAM

Election fever is rapidly developing on Vancouver Island.

In all eight island ridings political associations are waiting for Premier Byron Johnson to announce the date of the forthcoming provincial election—expected to be mid-June—and are getting into action in the meantime.

Twelve candidates are already in the field with other nominations due shortly.

To date Progressive Conservatives have the most candidates chosen. They are C. J. H. Holmes, for Saanich; Robert Fort, Esquimalt; Mayor J. C. Wragge of Duncan, Cowichan-Newcastle; Dr. Larry Giovando, Nanaimo-The Islands, and A. C. Pitt Clayton, expected to be a certainty for the nomination scheduled this afternoon for Alberni.

On Monday night C.C.F. candidates will be chosen for Victoria and Oak Bay, and on April 6 the Cowichan-Newcastle group will pick a representative. Robert Strachan, Nanaimo, defeated candidate in the 1949 federal election, will be a strong candidate for the nomination there. No dates have been set for Nanaimo, Comox or Alberni conventions.

In a surprise move this week, Reeve A. E. Beasley, of North Cowichan, who had announced he would be an independent candidate, joined the Social Credit group. He will be an important contender for the nomination, especially with Social Crediters of Chemainus and district, where he resides.

Except for a tentative date of mid-April for a Victoria nominating meeting, Social Credit leaders have scheduled no nominating conventions on the Island.

Still in the process of organization, they feel certain, however, they will have candidates for all eight ridings by the time election day rolls around.

CATES TO QUIT

On the provincial scene, two recent developments are indications that Labor Minister John Cates, who represents North Vancouver, will not run again, and that Leigh Stevenson, P.C., Point Grey, will also be out of the coming contest.

Murder Jury Hears Of Cries in Night

No Passengers Sounded Alarm Witnesses Say

Passengers who occupied staterooms adjoining cabin 362 aboard the Ss. Princess Joan during the night run from Vancouver last Jan. 14 described today screams they heard in the night.

Their testimony was introduced by the Crown as the case against Alexander Williams, 25-year-old engineer from Wipac, continued in Assize Court here, Williams, who occupied 362 on the night in question, is charged with murder.

The Crown alleges he took the life of Dong Yew Yin, ship's mess boy, during the course of the trip and threw the body overboard.

Witnesses called this morning were William McCaskill and his wife, who occupied cabin 358, just across from Williams' cabin; Mrs. Margaret Coles, who had cabin 366, and Ken Martin, who had cabin 363.

All except McCaskill told of being disturbed by screams and other noises during the progress of the voyage. McCaskill said he heard nothing unusual but admitted being particularly hard of hearing.

HEARD SCREAM

Mrs. McCaskill said she was awakened by a scream. "It was a sharp, piercing scream. The words were said very rapidly—'shut up, shut up'—three times."

After the scream, the woman said, she heard noises of someone moving about very quickly. "It seemed very close. That's all I can say."

Mrs. Coles, who lives at 68 Gorge Road West, testified she had been unable to get to sleep on the boat but had been disturbed by noise and the sound of voices between 4 and 5 a.m.

"I heard an awful scream and a panicky voice in broken English saying: 'William, get up. William, you die, you die.'"

After this, Mrs. Coles said, she heard clattering of bottles or glass, followed by three loud moans.

Martin, a navy photographer, said he was awakened by a scream and then heard another. He described the latter as being from a voice of high pitch.

NO STEWARD CALLED

Alan Macfarlane, who with Lloyd McKenzie, is conducting the defense, questioned each of the witnesses as to why they had not summoned a steward when they heard the noise.

Answers were generally the same. Witnesses said that since the noise was soon over they did not suspect anything seriously wrong.

In court Friday afternoon, defense counsel McKenzie conducted an eye test in his cross examination of Peter Mah, cook aboard the Joan.

Mah had given testimony that he had seen Williams come to the Chinese quarters and had asked Yin, the mess boy, to go with him. Mah said he had been in his bunk at the time and had not been wearing his glasses.

McKenzie asked the witness to remove his glasses to determine how well he could see without them.

COULDN'T SEE

The lawyer then stalked to a far corner of the courtroom and held up a spool of black thread. He asked the witness to identify it. The witness couldn't.

Slowly the lawyer moved across the courtroom toward the witness stand, urging Mah to call out when he saw what he held. Closer and closer he came. The Chinese leaned forward but could not see.

Not until the spool was within a few feet from his face did he recognize the object.

Arthur Sanders, head gardener of the Empress Hotel and Crystal Garden, will speak on "Planting, Fertilizing and Cultivation of Chrysanthemums," at a meeting of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society, in the City Hall, Thursday night, at 8.

CUPID AS DRIVER'S COUNSEL SAVES SUSPENSION OF LICENSE

Magistrate H. C. Hall gave Dan Cupid a gentle boost in police court today.

Love entered the picture when Sooke school teacher Thomas H. Ballard, 550 Yates, appeared in court on a careless driving charge.

He pleaded guilty to the charge and explained the cause of his accident this way: "I was a little excited that night because I had purchased a marriage certificate in the morning and was on my way to meet my fiancée when the accident happened," said Ballard.

The excuse brought smiles to the faces of the magistrate, acting city prosecutor Gordon Poupore and court clerk Bill Ostler.

It also brought a $35 fine for Ballard but Magistrate Hall relented on the license suspension.

The car will be an important item on the honeymoon.

Old Wagon Bridge Near Duncan To Be Blasted for New Span

A firm of Victoria contractors will "blow the lid off" in Duncan next week.

The Duncan Wagon Bridge, on the old Island Highway in the Indian Reserve immediately south of Duncan, will be blown up by Payne and Townsend, contractors for the construction of the new bridge.

When the dust has settled and the wreckage is cleared away work will begin immediately on a new steel and concrete span 190 feet long to cross the Cowichan River. Expected cost of the new structure will be $150,000.

Lumber-Laden Vessels Sail; Others Due

Ss. Sagaaland of Norway and Ronald M. Scobie of London sailed from Ogden Point today with full holds and deadlocks of B.C. lumber.

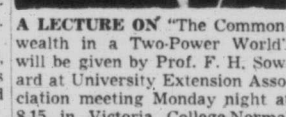

Sagaaland took close to 2,000,000 feet here, and the British ship 500,000, to bring her total load to 4,200,000 feet, plus 2,000 tons of grain and 113 tons of plywood.

Ogden Point faces a busy week. Shortly after the noon sailings of the two lumber carriers, Ss. Belevyn docked, and Oceanic is due at 2 Sunday morning.

On Wednesday, Seaciff and Table Bay are due; on Thursday, Aorangi, Durango, and Culter; and on Saturday, Lakemba and Cape Hawke.

All but Aorangi will load lumber here.

Alcyone Angel, at the government drydock to have her rudder replaced, is expected to be ready to re-load her deck cargo by the end of the week. She will then move to Ogden Point, to finish for sea.

A LECTURE ON "The Commonwealth in a Two-Power World" will be given by Prof. F. H. Soward at University Extension Association meeting Monday night at 8:15 in Victoria College-Normal School auditorium. Prof. Soward, who is director of international studies at U.B.C., will outline external policies of the various commonwealth countries in a world dominated by the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. It is the final lecture of the season and is open to the public.

Policeman Waiting For Sick Prisoner

An alleged bail-jumper from Victoria, Emile Calve, is sick in a Prince Rupert hospital and will be returned here under police guard as soon as he is ready to travel.

The 44-year-old meat cutter failed to show up in police court here February 28 for preliminary hearing on a charge of obtaining $75 from Woodward Stores Ltd. by false pretences.

A bench warrant was ordered by Magistrate H. C. Hall and R.C.M.P. finally located Calve.

Creery Leaves For Meeting

Rear-Admiral W. B. Creery, R.C.N., Pacific Coast Flag Officer, and three staff members are flying to San Francisco today to attend a Canadian-U.S. joint services conference on western defenses.

Accompanying Admiral Creery are his chief of staff, Capt. L. L. Atwood, R.C.N.; Lieut.-Cmdr. J. H. Marshall, secretary of the Canadian delegation, and Lieut.-Cmdr. M. O. Jones, communications staff officer.

It is understood that Canadian army and R.C.A.F. delegations from Edmonton will also attend the conference.

They will discuss matters of mutual interest concerning the North American continent at meetings during the first three days of April.

Closing Drive Nears Target For Red Cross

Leaders of the Victoria city and district branch, Canadian Red Cross campaign, today urged canvassers to deliver their collections to headquarters, 1046 Fort, by Monday, in a final effort to reach the $68,500 minimum objective set locally for the drive in March.

At the noon closing time today audited figures showed $60,523.50 had been received since the appeal opened early this month. In addition to that amount, some funds have been collected but not yet turned over to headquarters.

With the sums outstanding, plus late collections before closing time Monday night, there was a possibility that the branch would meet its self-imposed task of exceeding its objective within the month. No misgivings were held by campaign officers over the ability of the Red Cross to net the sum as late donations arrive.

"A last effort by canvassers and prompt delivery to headquarters can put us over the top," Ernest Heybroek, co-chairman for the drive, stated. "The public has shown its appreciation of the Red Cross. Voluntary helpers have been warmly received by voluntary contributors. Our concern is largely a matter of district pride. On other occasions we have received the required funds a little more speedily than this year."

Big Blackie, Chief of Police, Fast With Gun or Blackjack, Breeds Roller Canaries as Hobby

By RON BAIRD

Big John Blackstock whacked the business end of a rubber "billy" hard into the palm of his hand and said to the reporter: "You're new on the police beat, eh?"

Victoria's burly, 258-pound chief of police likes to make sure the reporter knows in whose hand authority lies down at the smoke-grimed, three-storey police headquarters on Fisgard Street, just a chopstick's throw from Chinatown.

The threat of a thump on the head is just a gag the chief reserves for new police reporters, although there likely have been times when he secretly wished the law had permitted him to dent the skulls of a few newsmen in his 25 years on the city force.

A mixture of gruffness and good humor, he once threatened to smash a camera during the "zoot-suit riots" here last year because a photographer wanted a picture of the chief scragging a couple of young brawlers.

On the other hand, and in the spirit of co-operation he likes to keep alive with the papers here, he has been known more than once to tip off police reporters on a good story.

He was born on a farm at Gordon Head in 1907 after his parents arrived from Scotland. He joined the force when he was 20 because there was a good degree of security in police work and because he was genuinely interested in it.

His uncle, Malcolm Blackstock, was a sergeant in the department but knew nothing of young John's plans to pin on a badge. Even today, there are still two Blackstocks on the force—the chief's cousin Dean is a detective.

It was a small operation in the days when the chief first pounded the beat (he did it for 18 years as constable, sergeant and inspector—the force only had one car and a truck converted to use as a paddy wagon).

And, of course, the bobby helmets. "Give me one of those every time," says the chief today. "They're comfortable in the winter, cool in the summer and fine protection from a blow on the head."

An active athlete in his youth, "Blackie's" 258 pounds came in right handy in later years when the police tug-of-war team huffed and puffed their way to victory on a number of occasions. He likes hunting and fishing and has a hobby that would make more than a few people do a double-take... he raises canaries.

In fact, Chief Blackstock is a past president of the Victoria Roller Canary Club.

Most interesting type of police investigation, thinks the chief, is the hit-run automobile case.

five hours later the driver was arrested and charged.

"We just figured out who would likely be around at that time of the morning and worked it out from there," he said.

He has only once in the line of duty fired a shot that struck a suspect... it was in the days when he was checking stores in Trounce Alley. A prowler ran from the store and refused to stop at a command. The chief fired and hit the man, slowing his progress considerably.

The chief thinks his greatest crime headache nowadays is the juvenile delinquent—he blames "lack of home control on the part of the parents."

One of his busiest days was August 14, 1945... he was promoted to inspector in the afternoon and one hour later V-J Day came along to toss every type of problem in the book at the police department. Made acting chief in August, 1950, he was confirmed as permanent head of the department in January of the following year.

Despite his imposing 258 pounds ("the family were all on the heavy side") and the manner of the 100 per cent police officer, big John Blackstock is an easy guy to get along with... so long as you co-operate.

And, after all, if the story is worth it, who minds the occasional thump on the head.

Wallace, Miss Kathleen Agnew, Mrs. Kenneth Drury, Miss Edna Chase, and Mr. Austin Goward.

MANY MEMORIES

"Then we went to the Royal Alex in Winnipeg and our hotel life commenced. That finished any idea I might have had about housekeeping."

The Hodges next were transferred to the Palliser at Calgary and then to the Empress Hotel, where Mr. Hodges was assistant manager and for the past 22 years, the manager.

"Those 22 years have been the most exciting, most interesting and most rewarding of all my experiences in hotel life," Mrs. Hodges tells you.

She also made it quite clear that her position in the life of the hotel was quite unofficial. "I like people," she says, "and because of that, it has been easy to make friends with our guests. Especially those who stayed for any length of time."

"It was in doing this that I found my greatest pleasure."

"I can look back to the glamorous days when the Empress boats docked here before the last war, and the interesting world travelers they brought to the Empress Hotel."

"The days, too, when practically every guest in the hotel dressed for dinner. When the late Mrs. John R. Totten, society leader from New York, gave her summer address in the social register as the Empress Hotel."

GLAMOROUS PARTIES

Mrs. Totten would arrive at

Torontonians Visiting in City

Mrs. G. N. Morrison, the former Mary Simpson, and her daughter, Judy, age five, left their home in Toronto earlier this month to visit Mrs. Morrison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Simpson, Redfern Street. They were joined last evening by Mr. Morrison who is chief inspector with Canadian Bank of Commerce and was returning from a trip visiting American west coast branches. The Toronto family will leave the city Monday and visit in Calgary and Winnipeg en route home.

THIS WEEK-END WE PRESENT...

A Hotel Manager's Wife Who Looks Ahead To Home Making as Full-Time Hobby

By ELIZABETH FORBES

"A new experiment in living," is the way Florence Hodges-Flossie to all her friends—describes the life she will be leading after March 31.

For on that day, her husband, J. Kirk Hodges, manager of the Empress Hotel for more than 22 years, is retiring to private life.

"And I'm going to have to learn to cook all over again," she explains.

But she laughs as she says it and her eyes sparkle with anticipation.

"It's actually 30 years since I did any housekeeping," she says, "and you know how life in the kitchen has changed in that time."

"I've no idea how to handle an electric stove," she continues with an expressive shrug of her shoulders. "There was nothing but gas stoves in Montreal when I was first married."

"I know absolutely nothing about modern refrigerators, either. It was all ice boxes, 30 years ago. Why, I don't even know how to de-frost a frig."

COLLECTING RECIPES

"As for these new streamlined recipes my friends keep giving me—well, as I told you—I'll have to learn to cook all over again."

"Worst feature of it all, I'll have to learn to work by the clock," she adds, "something I really haven't done for a good many years."

Florence Hodges was born in Montreal, of English parentage (Somerset and Dorset she says proudly). She went to school there and was married in that Quebec city.

"I really did know how to keep house and to cook when I was married," she reminisces, "but Kirk went overseas in the First World War soon after we were married, so I couldn't practise on him."

"After he returned, he was away from Montreal a good part of the time for several years, and I still didn't get any practise."

MANY GODCHILDREN

Kirk and Florence Hodges have godchildren in all parts of the world. And many children named for them.

"We had a telephone call one evening from London, Eng. It was a young lad who came to Victoria with the Westminster choir before the war. He had been married and his first child had just arrived. He wanted us to be godparents."

"Those are the things that make any unpleasant happenings that do occur over a period of years just passing incidents to be forgotten," Mr. Hodges concluded.

THE FUTURE

What is she going to do when she leaves the Empress Hotel, besides learn to cook and keep house again?

She tells you she likes writing letters to her relatives and friends. In fact, never misses a week in writing to a sister in Montreal. And she'll have more time to indulge this liking.

Mrs. J. K. Hodges lists flowers as one of her pet delights. Here she is shown with the beautiful cascade chrysanthemum named in her honor by Fred Saunders, who was head gardener at the Empress Hotel for many years. (Associated Screen News Photo).

the hotel about the same time each year, Florence Hodges remembers, and greet each member of the staff, just as if she was coming home.

Mrs. Hodges also remembers the glamorous private parties given in the years before the war. Outstanding among these, as she recalls, was one party given by Miss Kathleen Agnew, in which 400 guests were entertained. Tables for the affair were arranged in the dining room and in the ballroom.

There's a place, too, in Florence Hodges' reminiscences for all those young couples who came to the hotel during and just after the war. Some were married at the Empress Hotel. Many others came on honeymoon.

She waves her hand around the attractive living room in the hotel suite she has called home for so many years. "Look at these pictures," she says, "all those babies are our godchildren."

The engagement is announced of Jacqueline Anne, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Le Huquet, Cromwell Road, to Geoffrey Heathcote Bullock, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bullock, Cordova Bay. The wedding will take place quietly on April 12 at 3.30 in Oak Bay United Church with Rev. W. G. Wilson and Rev. W. W. McPherson officiating. (Photo by Irvine Dawson.)

Early May Wedding Foretold

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Southin, 2683 Cadboro Bay Road, announce the engagement of their younger daughter, Sylvia Caroline, to Lloyd Mitchell Davies, second son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Davies, 3035 Uplands Road. The wedding will take place May 9 at 8 o'clock in Church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay with Rev. W. Hills officiating. Mrs. D. C. Jamieson will be matron of honor and Miss Madge Pendray and Miss Patricia Ruth Sinnott, bridesmaids. (Photo by Robert Fort.)

Choose Late April Wedding Date

An announcement of interest this week-end is the engagement of Miss Eileen McBurney, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. McBurney, Royal Oak, to Flori Goegan, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Goegan, Fort William. The wedding will take place April 25 at 8 o'clock in St. Andrew's Cathedral. Father D. Lehané will officiate. Miss McBurney's attendants will be Mrs. Ronney Dalziel, matron of honor, Miss Lucille McBurney, and Miss Doreen Renton, bridesmaids, and Miss Lynne Walsh, flower girl.

To Receive Her Names

Mrs. William T. Rutherford, proudly holds her infant daughter, who will receive the names Helen Aldyn at a christening ceremony in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, Esquimalt, on Sunday at 4. Rev. J. A. Roberts will officiate and godparents will be the baby's aunt, Mrs. J. Boomer, Miss Patricia Hale and P.O. Ronald D. Webster, R.C.N. Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford will entertain at a christening tea, following the ceremony, at their home, 1039 Wollaston Street, Esquimalt.

Youth Turns to Good Reading

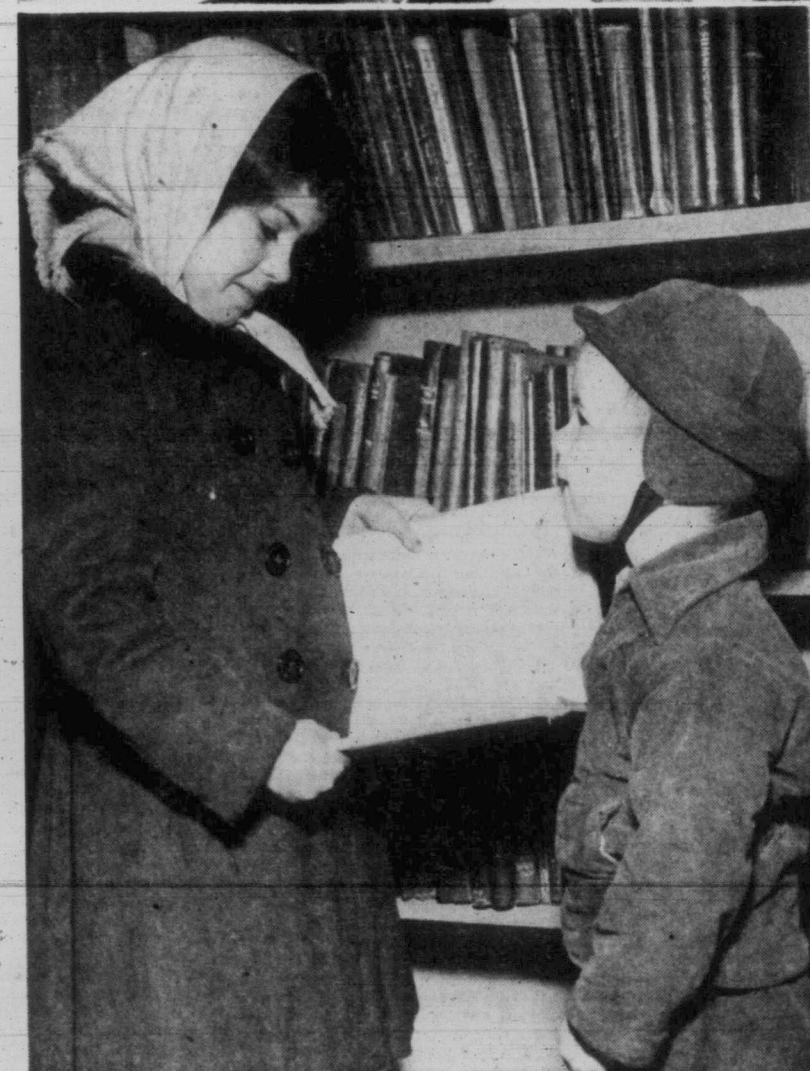

Each Friday afternoon at 4, the children choose their books then wait patiently to go up to the Pink Room on the second floor where a story hour is presented and recorded for the radio.

TOP—A very youthful browser is Miss Susan, Stephen, 3½. She likes to look at the colored pictures and while her older brother Michael chooses his reading for the week, Susan browses quietly a happy smile on her expressive face. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Stephen, Beach Drive.

Nine-year-old Barry Scott, right centre, is enjoying the fine new bookshelves in the young peoples' part of the library. He's a regular visitor on Saturday mornings, knows what he wants in the way of a book and doesn't take long to make a choice. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Scott, Bewdley Avenue.

Eight-year-old Susan Webster and her three-year-old brother Billy, bottom, right, have already discovered that the library is a wonderful place to spend a Saturday morning. When photographer Irving Strickland found them they had come across something very important and were busy investigating. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Webster, Constance Avenue.

Since the re-opening of the Victoria Public Library last October, the number of children using reading facilities has increased more than 60 per cent, and the children's department, moved downstairs in the old wing and given an entrance of its own on Yates Street, has become a rendezvous for hundreds of boys and girls.

Miss Hazel King, children's librarian; full-time assistant Miss Betty Calvert and part-time assistants, Misses Ann Dundas, Nancy Little and Gail Gilmour, lead a busy life, answering thousands of questions, checking hundreds of books and remembering the names of all the young people who come to the library.

During the week public school classes, from grades one to nine in Greater Victoria and from the surrounding municipalities under supervision of teachers come to the library on visits arranged by the school board. They are shown films; the older classes, "Know Your Library" and a film on how to use the card index; younger classes, animal pictures and comics.

Each Friday at 4, 75 to 100 children pack into the Pink Room on the second floor for the story hour conducted by radio broadcaster Ted Reynolds. The hour is recorded for presentation on the air at a later date.

Miss King has accepted 1,000 new members in the children's department since it re-opened. And not one of these new members ever had a library card before.

Busiest day in the past five months was a day in February when 980 books were checked out of the department for the boys and girls.

Miss Betty Calvert, assistant in the children's department, checks books chosen by Doreen Leith, centre, and Ruth Foster. Special public school class groups visiting the library, since its re-opening, number 1,200 children, representing 30 classes.

Married in St. Luke's

A ballerina gown of white chantilly lace caught in scallops to reveal a pleated nylon underskirt and topped with a fitted lace jacket and pleated nylon mitts to match were worn by Margaret Ena (Peggy) Gillies when she exchanged marriage vows with Robert William (Bob) Birkett last evening in St. Luke's Church.

Rev. Frederic Pike officiated for the daughter of Mrs. P. W. Espley, Saanichton, and late Mr. J. Y. Gillies, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Birkett, Hillside Avenue.

Spring flowers decorated the church and Eric V. Edwards played wedding music as the bride walked up the aisle on the arm of her brother, Archie G. Y. Gillies.

She complemented her gown with a halo headdress of nylon net and orange blossoms and a bouquet of red roses and white staphanotis. For "something old" she wore her maternal great-grandmother's engagement ring of garnets.

Miss Doreen Cartwright, the bride's only attendant, was gowned in a ballerina gown of deep orchid lace over nylon with fitted lace jacket and mitts to match. Her bouquet was yellow carnations.

Thomas W. Mayne was best man and Ralph L. Punt, brother-in-law of groom, was an usher.

At the reception in "Cherry Bank Hotel" the rooms were decorated with baskets of spring flowers. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake made and decorated by bride's aunt, Mrs. E. McCabe.

Joseph W. Jones proposed the toast to the bride.

For her going-away ensemble she chose a three-piece silver-blue worsted with red and white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

By the pleased expression on his face it is easy to know that eight-year-old Bobby Brophy found the book he wanted. Ruth Ackroyd, centre, and Reta Garipey have both read that particular book and are ready to laugh with Bobby over the experience of the little Dutch twins.

Meat's High! Fish Recipe Book Will Help Budget

By PENNY SAVER

Had a very nice visitor at the office yesterday. Her name is Miss Mary Allman and she is one smart gal.

Just recently she accepted a position as home economist for the inspection and consumer service of Federal Department of Fisheries in the British Columbia area. Quite a "mouthful," isn't it?

But, before I tell you more about Mary I must tell you the news about a new and revised fish book that you can get by writing to her at Department of Fisheries, 1110 West Georgia, Vancouver.

This "hot" little edition is called "Canadian Fish Recipes." One of the things Mary pointed out in this book that really caught my fancy was, that most of the recipes concerned the fish which we have on our own coast. That's a change. I'd hate to guess how many times we find recipes and get all enthused over them only to find that the product is not available in our area.

As you flip the pages you get general information on every type of fish you may have to prepare, plus basic methods of cooking, a variety of recipes, as well as some you've never heard of before.

Golly! With the price of meat at such a staggering price, this fish book is one of the best "penny-saver" I've been able to give you recently. If fish is not overly appetizing to you you'll change your mind when you see the recipes for sauces and such which will dress it up and make it a highlight at any meal.

Well, as I said before, you can get this book by dropping a note to Mary in Vancouver.

Will Also Give Demonstrations

Another thing you might like to know is that she is available to come over here and give demonstration-lectures on fish cooking. She was telling me that she will come over and give the demonstration to women's clubs and groups. Again, all you have to do is drop her a line.

Mary recently completed a five-week course in the test kitchen of Department of Fisheries in Ottawa, where she took a specialized course in the knowledge of fish, so you can be sure that anything she has to tell you will be right up to date.

And she's just the gal who can tell you how to judge fish; when and what to buy; how to choose a good product and how to store and look after it.

She can point out all the facts about fresh, frozen and canned fish and their preparation.

It's a busy life for her. She has to pass on information of proper methods of buying, preparing and serving fish, shellfish and other fish products to Canadians responsible for meal planning in homes, hotels, restaurants and institutions.

Don't forget about the fish recipe book and for a treat for your club keep the demonstration-lectures in mind. Mary will be thrilled to hear from you.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Spring Clothes Look Better If Hips Are Down to Size

If you are all "hopped up" and want to do something to improve your figure, now is the time to do it for spring and summer with their lighter garments and swim suits and play-clothes will soon be here.

When we say that a woman has hips which are out of proportion this usually means that she has a shelf-like lower hip-line or that she has pads of fat just below the waistline in the back, or on her thighs. The exercises for these different faults are different. For the lower hip-line the double-cross which most of you know, and certain rolling exercises are helpful.

ROLL IT OFF

For the pads of fat below the waistline do this one: Lie on the floor on your back with your knees bent up close to your abdomen. Your arms rest on the floor, extending straight out from your shoulders. Palms are against the floor. Cling to the floor with your fingertips as you roll from side to side touching the thigh on the floor at the end of each roll.

There are certain exercises which remedy two figure faults with one motion. In these busy days such exercises are especially valuable because they are timesavers. I call them my Combination Exercises. The following one is fine for both waist and hip reduction: Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms in the position described in the preceding exercise. Keep the heels on the floor and the legs straight as you roll from side to side. Roll as far as you can in each direction.

If you would like to have my time-saving Combination Exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for Leaflet No. 5, to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

39th Meeting of Provincial I.O.D.E. Set for April 7, 8, 9

Attention of 106 I.O.D.E. chapters scattered throughout the province will be focused on Vancouver on April 7, 8 and 9 when delegates gather for the 39th annual meeting of Provincial Chapter. Registration will take place at 9 on the morning of April 7 and first session will get under way at 10 with traditional procession of standards.

Reports of the provincial secretary, organizing secretary and educational secretary will be given in the morning and election of 30 provincial councillors will open the afternoon session. At this session Mrs. Frank Stead will speak on "Women's Place in Civil Defense."

Formal opening is scheduled for 8:30 that evening when Premier Byron Johnson and Mayor Fred J. Hume will extend greetings. Results of elections will be announced at noon the following day.

After luncheon at Hotel Georgia, provincial councillors and municipal residents will elect officers for 1952-53.

Royal tour films will be shown at 2:30 and standard bearers will then be entertained at tea at the Y.M.C.A.

The morning of April 9 will be used for reports of the resolutions committee. A tea and reception at Royal Vancouver Yacht Club will conclude the three-day sessions.

P.T.A. Notes

METCHOSIN—Mrs. Kathleen Maughan and Mr. Don Kerley, guest speakers at Metchoshin P.T.A. meeting, spoke of transition of a student into Grade 7, and resultant perplexities and adjustments including teacher and room changing, time tables and the void left in leaving an elementary school, problems that Grade 7 students had to overcome on entering junior high school. The speakers pointed out importance of family life and understanding, and emphasized need for parents to meet teachers. The more personal contact of parent and teacher paves the way for greater understanding of pupils. Teams of teachers of Belmont High School have been organized to attend all P.T.A. meetings in districts served by the school, will be able to contact parents at the meetings. Mrs. M. Brousseau was appointed delegate to the convention at Kelowna. It was announced that the P.T.A. will sponsor wild flower and vegetable garden contests. Mrs. M. Helgeson, principal of Metchoshin Elementary School, gave a brief outline of the social study course in Grade 6. Grade 6 pupils gave reading on Australia.

Method: Mix together the rice, peas, pimiento, parley, onion, salt, butter or margarine, and half of the cheese. Spread evenly in a greased baking dish (10 by 6 by 2 inches). Pour the milk over the rice mixture. Make six wells in the rice mixture and drop an egg into each well. Sprinkle the remaining cheese over the top of the eggs and rice. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until the eggs are set. This recipe makes six servings.

Banquet in Honor Of Grand Chief

Grand Chief Evelyn Beduz, Kimberley, B.C., made her official visit to Island Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters recently. A banquet was held at Terry's in her honor prior to the meeting.

Most excellent chief, Mrs. Beatrice Marshall presided. Mrs. Olive Randy and Mrs. Rose Isaacson received initiatory degree. Grand honors were accorded the grand chief and grand junior, Miss Vera Mesher, Mrs. Lucy Keiser, district deputy, received honors. Grand chief was presented a crystal silver deposit cake plate and corsage of pink rosebuds and white hyacinths. Miss Mesher and Mrs. Keiser received corsages of rosebuds and feathered carnations.

Mrs. Beduz spoke on "The Sacrament of Giving," as it should be practised in temples and daily lives.

Visitors were present from Trail Temple No. 3, Capital City Temple No. 35, and Victory Temple No. 36, Sidney. While in Victoria Mrs. Beduz was the guest of Miss Mesher and Mrs. Keiser.

Catholic Women's League, Victoria sub-division, Tuesday at 8, parish hall, View Street, annual meeting and election of officers. Camosun Chapter, I.O.D.E., Tuesday at 2:15, home of Mrs. George Miles, 1340 Stanley Avenue.

CHRISTIAN DIOR'S afternoon coat is made from a British novelty silk, which looks almost like raffia. It's a bright yellowish straw color. The coat can be worn easily over a figured silk dress.

Sorority Names Officers

Miss Vera Waller was elected president of Xi Beta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority at a recent meeting. Also elected were Miss Betty Morrison, vice-president; Miss Helen McKee, extensions officer; Miss Gwen Woolcock, recording secretary; Mrs. Molly Langley, corresponding secretary; Miss Rita Rodger, treasurer; and Miss Muriel Knight, Mrs. Esther Corry and Mrs. Maquinn Anderson, council representatives.

Cultural program was a quiz on France under Miss Catherine Cameron.

Plans are being made for Exemplar dinner to be held late in May when the Exemplar degree will be conferred on eligible sorority members. Next meeting will be held April 14.

Planting Tips Given by Expert

Planting of seeds indoors and out was the subject of an address given by Cecil Solly, well known garden authority to members of Women's Canadian Club at their meeting yesterday afternoon in the Crystal Ballroom, Empress Hotel.

The only way to tell whether indoor or outdoor planting is the best is to make the test for yourself, Mr. Solly said. He advised that seeds from the same package be started indoors now and planted outdoors on April 27 and 28 and that results be compared later.

The date for outdoor planting, April 27 and 28, was for summer annuals such as zinnias, asters, marigolds and salvia and vegetables, peppers, tomatoes, squash and marrow.

Another important item was the watering of the garden. He urged members to experiment by watering with warm water. The results are amazing, he said.

Woman's Auxiliary to Royal Canadian Navy, Tuesday at 2:30, H.M.C.S. Malahat. Cmdr. P. D. Taylor, commanding officer, H.M.C.S. Sioux, will speak on "With the R.C.N. on Korean Service."

If you have a home freezer or a refrigerator with a frozen food compartment try freezing whipped cream. Whip until stiff, add flavoring, drop by spoonfuls onto waxpaper, aluminum foil or cellophane. Freeze solid, wrap and seal. When you want whipped cream just remove portions and serve. This frozen whipped cream is delicious for a change, it's like a mousse.

Springtime garnish for soup: Cream of celery soup looks all dressed up for spring with a bright green garnish like chopped chives or parsley.

Exclusive New Fashion Coverage From Rosette Hargrove In Paris

For spring night, Paris features luxurious gowns like these. Jean Desses' creation (left) is mink-toned acetate lace embroidered with iridescent beading in tones of rose and blue. The skirt is slim with a curved, flared tunic. Under the lace, Desses uses mink brown acetate to match shoulder-length evening gloves. At right, Schaparelli takes brilliant green, shocking pink and black acetate satin and blends them into a graceful gown: A sweeping butterfly train flows behind a tightly-fitted ankle-length skirt.

Church of Our Lord Scene Of Wedding Last Evening

A profusion of spring blossoms decorated Church of Our Lord last evening when Rev. T. H. Laundy heard the nuptial vows exchanged by Audrey Joyce Malczewski, and David Conrad Tappin, son of Canon and Mrs. A. C. Tappin, Regina, Sask.

Bruce Malczewski gave his sister in marriage. A street-length gown of turquoise nylon was worn by the bride. She complemented it with a natural-toned crocheted straw cloche, brown accessories and a spray of white camellia and hyacinth.

Miss Stefania Malczewski, sister of the bride, chose a gown of rose crepe contrasted with a rose and black bandeau. Her flowers were white tulips and blue lilies.

A Daffodil Tea

Zeta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, held a daffodil tea recently. Mesdames A. J. Tullis, W. Gordon, J. R. Kingham and H. Helander presided at the tea table. Music was provided and tables were decorated in the "daffodil" motif. Mrs. T. H. Johns announced that winner of the spring suit contest was Miss B. Dickson, 370 Standard Ave. Mesdames A. Schlatte and W. Dennis, conveners, advised that proceeds from the tea will be used for charities.

Use a dab of whipped cream instead of mayonnaise on fruit salad. Everyone loves whipped cream and it tastes so good with fruit.

EASTER SEALS

Easter Seals are $1.00 a sheet, but donations of any amount are gratefully accepted. Please mail your contribution to Lion's Crippled Children's Fund of B.C., 407 West Hastings St., Vancouver 2. (Receipts mailed on request only). Make cheques payable to Lion's Crippled Children's Fund of B.C.

MAGGY ROUFF designs this new spring dress ideal for traveling, from beige Kasha jersey. The bodice is shaped into a large collar at the back. The skirt has pleats opening at the knee. The belt is green and beige.

Municipal Chapter Held Elections

Mrs. T. Lumsden, regent, presided at a recent meeting of Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., when Mrs. O. B. Ormond was appointed honorary regent. Honorary vice-regents are Mrs. J. L. Ford, Mrs. A. C. Phipps and Mrs. William Ellis.

Committees which were elected included Mrs. P. E. Corby, historian; Mrs. G. P. Clarke, services home and abroad; Mrs. D. Carter, endowment fund; Mrs. J. W. Van Norman, films; Mrs. F. H. Parsons, Empire study; Mrs. R. Shanks, work in India. Mrs. G. W. Lillie was named in charge of publicity; Mrs. H. N. Parrott, public relations; Mrs. P. E. Corby, distinguished visitors, and Mrs. T. BULLETS THROUGH WINDSHIELD
Jungle Terrorists
Plague Malaya Roads

By LIONEL HUDSON
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya
(Reuters) — It is just another bend in the road through the quiet Malayan jungle or the monotonous rubber plantations—until guerrilla crossfire shatters the windshield.

For a few dragging minutes, if they live, the occupants of the car are at the front line of the terror being waged by the country's fanatical Communists.

Then, at the sound of a bugle or a whistled signal, the guerrillas snatch arms and ammunition from their victims—if they can—and are swallowed up again by the olive green jungle.

The road is open to traffic again. These ruthless hit-and-run ambushes are the spearhead of the Communist offensive in Malaya—and the main source of weapon supply for the terror bands.

Mostly Chinese, who call themselves the Malayan peoples' liberation army. They rely on road ambushes to keep their campaign rolling.

They plan them painstakingly, sometimes wait patiently for days for a suitable target, and rarely come off second best because they have a strong initial advantage.

Security force leaders admit that one of the most serious military problems in Malaya today is combating road ambushes.

What is more, the terrorists have been striking more often as the widespread security drive to cut them off from food supplies takes effect.

British troops and Malayan police who have to run the gauntlet of these perilous highways day after day know full well that there are stretches where the guerillas, perched on road banks, can usually kill them at will if they are travelling in "soft" vehicles—without armor plating.

Rubber planters and tin miners know it, too. They almost invariably use armored cars or jeeps fitted with bullet-proof steel shields when they leave their barbed wire defenses.

ON THE DEFENSIVE
These men in the thick of the emergency tell you that they realize that, in the circumstances, they must remain on the defensive while travelling. Few of them, however, can reconcile the fact that so many police and troops are still such easy prey to roadside snipers, nearly three and a half years after terror broke out.

"If we continue to dish out rifles and Sten guns on a platter to these bandits we'll never break them," commented one experienced guerrilla hunter.

The cry throughout Malaya is for more determined and imaginative action against the road ambush menace.

From all quarters demands are heard for flame-throwers, smoke screens, land mines, much more armor plating, and steel helmets for security forces when not engaged in the jungle.

The terrorists rarely ever shoot at unescorted civilian vehicles on the roads because they know that there is little chance, or loot in the form of firearms or food.

They concentrate on police and army parties, especially when there is no armored car in sight, and never attack unless they are sure that they are superior in numbers and fire power.

All units are kept up to date on counter-ambush tactics but, as one officer points out, they are of use only to the men who survive the first burst from the terrorists.

Army authorities stress that like the other two services in Malaya they are still only acting in support of the civil power and have no authority over the conduct of the "anti-bandit campaign."

WASHINGTON, March 29
(AP)—Russia's expanding force of long-range atom bombers is the most ominous threat the United States has ever known,
U.S. air force leaders told Congress in testimony made public
Friday night.

They also said Soviet jet-plane production has been four times greater than that of the U.S.

Air Secretary Thomas Finlet-ter, General Hoyt Vandenberg, chief-of-staff, and other U.S. air force leaders presented this grim picture to a House of Representatives, appropriation sub-committee. They were seeking to justify the budget request for $200,000,000 for the air force in the next fiscal year which some legislators have threatened to cut.

Although the officials conceded
Russia has a long lead numerically, especially in jet fighters, they insisted the quality of U.S. planes is better.

Other things the committee was told:
Vandenberg—"If the (Russian) program continues as predicted, within three years most of the Soviet air force will be jet powered. By this date, moreover, their total number of long-range aircraft capable of carrying atomic bombs will begin to approach ours."

Finletter—in Korea "We have the budget request which should teach us not to be too complacent about the quality of our machines, and that is the excellent quality of the Mig-15," the Soviet-made fighter battling U.S.
F-86 Sabres.

WORKERS PULL FIRST STRIKE
UNDER WATER

GENOA: Italy, March 29
(Reuters)—A gang of 38 Italian construction workmen, staging what is probably the world's first underwater strike, were locked in a concrete chamber 50 feet below sea level just off Genoa today.

The men, building a new pier, climbed into one of the underwater foundation chambers, Friday when their employers turned down demands for more pay.

They have threatened to stay there until their claims are met.

Navy Recruiting Office Here Seeks Young Men; Special Trades Advantage

Naval P.R.O.'s here report that P.O. Richard Eldridge and O.S.

Going to ships in the Korea and Able Seamen Elmer Lorentz and William Goronuk.

Five petty officers who recently completed an advanced damage control course at H.M.C.S. Naden school were R. Dunsmore, W.
Mitchell, J. Gould, W. Rose and I. Earnshaw. Dunsmore, by the way, was drafted to H.M.C.S. ing shortly on a southern cruise.

limited range. Don't try and convince Bdr. Gerry Cove and L/Bdr. A. R. Kirby of the 75th

so. The reason is that the duo recently picked up San Francisco on the tiny battery sets normally used for close communication.

Lieut. Cyril Burley, cadet artillerfreak atmosphere conditions.

Lieut. A. G. Bird is in command of recruiting in this area and points out "may for navy personnel today is far better than it ever was before in the history of the naval force." Also in the recruiting unit are C.P.O. W.
Wenden and Lieut. Comdr. Bruce McGregor (handling the reserve end).

He said that recruits, if found satisfactory, would be accepted with as low as Grade VII educational rating. Grade VIII was the normal acceptance category.
However, in certain branches of the naval service higher educational qualifications are demanded, the chief said.

Recruits accepted receive their basic training at Cornwallis, N.S.
That is followed by 30 days' sea-ships or establishments as re-branch of the service they had been found to be best suited for.

Vancouver Man Survives Jolt

VANCOUVER, March 23 (CP).—Walter Jones, 23-year-old longshoreman, felt "all lit up like a Christmas tree" when he made contact with a 4,000-volt power line.

He told about it from his hospital bed where he is recovering from burns to the hands, head and back.

"I felt all lit up like a Christmas tree," said said. "It seemed that sparks were shooting out of me."

"It was just like a dream. They tell me I did a lot of fighting at hospital."

Summertime Shakespeare Festival Seen as Profitable Tourist Draw

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

A summertime Shakespeare Festival for Victoria, the untold proposal of which was recently announced in the press, has stirred up a good deal of speculation and discussion around the city.

The $16,000 needed to finance the scheme, sounded, on the face of it like a lot of money and the immediate availability of a first-class professional acting company raised a few eyebrows in local theatrical circles.

I'll admit to some skepticism myself, to begin with, but now that the details of the venture have come into my hands, it is a skepticism that has faded to a mere shadow—if it exists at all.

The venture looks intriguing more than that, it definitely holds the possibility of benefiting the city in a healthy fashion, through the tourist appeal angle. My only present doubts are hinged to the public inertia that is known to exist in these parts. So I'll put it in the form of a challenge:

A GREAT CHANCE

This is opportunity knocking again! Come on, Victoria citizens and business people! Don't let it slip this time! Here is a venture you can get behind and push over the top if you will.

A working committee, which includes two well-known local lawyers, has been set up and has presented the following proposal, complete in all details, to the Tourist Trade group of the Chamber of Commerce:

That an annual festival of two or more Shakespearean plays be held in Victoria, to be performed three evenings a week from June 24 till Labor Day. It is proposed, after investigation of all possible sites, that the Cameron Memorial Pavilion in Beacon Hill Park, be used for these presentations.

The performances would start at 7 Pacific Daylight Time, and conclude by 9:30. The committee has consulted the Gonzales weather station and Mr. Mackie reports that in the proposed festival months, temperature change within these hours would be slight and weather conditions extremely favorable.

Director of the plays would be Ian T. A. Thorne, L.R.A.M., L.G.S.M., experienced in Shakespearean festivals in England and who, last summer, produced the highly successful "Julius Caesar" at the Qualicum outdoor theatre.

The acting company would consist of several professionals living in or near Victoria, whose backgrounds are crowded with illustrious associations with the English stage.

LEGISLATURES

Poll Tax for Women Plan Of N. Scotia

By CANADIAN PRESS

The women of Nova Scotia towns, who left the kitchen for the office are going to pay for the move if a bill introduced in the provincial legislature is adopted.

The bill, introduced Friday by Municipal Affairs Minister R. M. Fielding, would give all towns power to impose a maximum tax of $10 on working women who earn more than $1,000 annually.

Previously, each municipality had to apply for the right separately. Halifax and Dartmouth already have the right to impose the tax, but it is exercised only in Halifax.

While a group of 25 persons, said to represent the Canadian Peace Congress hovered about the marble corridors of the Alberta legislature asking House members if they favored "peace," the legislators debated the merits of Alberta and Saskatchewan insurance.

The Saskatchewan legislature gave second readings, approval in principle, to bills concerning oil and gas conservation, equal pay for women and formation of a municipal advisory commission.

An 11-member select committee of the Ontario legislature was appointed to study flood problems along the Great Lakes. A second select committee was set up to study the operation of election laws which were passed last year in the light of last November's sessions.

Canada Seeks Higher Wheat Price Ceiling

OTTAWA, March 29 (CP).—

Canada soon will open a drive for a big boost in wheat prices, but her chances of success are dim. Crippling financial crisis among many wheat-importing countries loom as major barriers. The drive will be launched by an eight-man Canadian delegation when the 46-country international wheat council meets in London April 17. Make-up of the Canadian delegation was announced by the trade department Friday.

Chief negotiator for Canada at the world's biggest wheat-bargaining conference will be Mitchell W. Sharp, associate deputy minister of trade.

Main job of the 40-year-old, red-haired Winnipeg economist and grain expert will be to get all member countries of the four-year international wheat agreement to agree to extension of the multi-lateral pact when it expires July 31, 1953. The agreement, of course, would be subject to acceptance by member countries.

The path ahead of him is strewn with obstacles. On the one hand, Canadian farmers are demanding a 55-cent-a-bushel boost in the price of wheat. On the other, informants said the United Kingdom and many importing countries, facing financial crises at home, will vigorously oppose any sharp boost in prices.

Killer Wilkie's 'Wife'
Informs on 'Man I Love'Can Police Blame Me for Falling for Him?
19-Year-Old Shirley McBeth Asks Newsmen

VANCOUVER, March 29 (CP)—The 19-year-old girl known as Shirley McBeth, who put the "finger" on Melville Wilkie, the mad Ontario killer, called him "the finest man I ever knew."

The tragic ending to the strange love story came here Friday with the capture of Wilkie, who escaped from the Ontario hospital at Penetanguishene, July 19, 1950. "I'll love him till the day I die," Shirley told newspaper interviewers. "I'll never love anyone else. Can the police blame me for falling in love with a killer?"

Wilkie, 42, who was committed to the hospital for the criminally insane for the arson murder of his wife and child at Owen Sound, Ont., in 1933, met Shirley in a Winnipeg boarding house. Her parents live in a Saskatchewan town, but she did not disclose its location.

The couple lived for some months in a one-room shack in Vancouver's squalid east end, where Wilkie had a backyard car repair shop. "He was good to me," said Shirley. "No man alive could be that good. They say he was insane. That's the silliest thing I ever heard."

WINNIPEG DOMESTIC
She was working as a domestic in the Winnipeg boarding house when she met Wilkie. Later she went to a small town and it became a correspondence romance. "We wrote each other once a week," she said. "Andy was so intelligent, so good, no crazier than you or I."

From Vancouver, Wilkie sent her an engagement ring and she came out to join him. They planned to be married and lived for a time in a downtown rooming house.

"But we had separate rooms," explained Shirley as she told of her life in Vancouver. Shortly before last Christmas she returned to visit her parents in Saskatchewan. While at home friends held a bridal shower for her. Her parents never met Wilkie, she said, but they were willing for her to marry him. She couldn't get married here until she was 21 unless her parents consented.

"If we'd been in Manitoba we'd have got married," she said. "You can get married there when you're 18."

But she didn't explain why she had not sought formal consent of her parents for a wedding here.

"THE MAN I LOVE"

Before she returned to the coast, Wilkie had converted the shack into a three-room suite. Since then she had lived with him as his common-law wife. She didn't know why she put the "finger" on "the man I love."

"Perhaps I wanted to do the right thing by society. I loved him and I couldn't do anything intentionally to harm him."

The man, who looked old enough to be Shirley's father, bid her goodbye in a telephone call from police headquarters.

He told her he would be returned to Penetanguishene, and when he finished she said simply: "Goodbye, Andy."

LONDON, March 29 (Reuters)—The Oxford (University) crew pulled a stunning upset by defeating Cambridge today in the boat race. Oxford strained along the 4½-mile wind- and snow-driven Thames River course, winning by a scant quarter-length.

Setting a faster stroke than the long-sweeping Cambridge crew through the whole gruelling race, the Oxford shell broke ahead in the last 100 yards to nip the favorites in Britain's biggest rowing event.

Alberta
Testing
B.C. BanBowman En Route
To Ottawa Parley

EDMONTON, March 29 (CP)—Agriculture Minister David Ure said today Alberta's machinery to force "a quick legal test" of the British Columbia embargo against importation of southern Alberta livestock has been "put into motion."

Ure said the province is not in a position at this time to disclose the means by which it would force the test of the legality of inter-provincial embargoes that followed the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Southern Saskatchewan.

Realization of the Alberta "embargo-breaking" plan is not likely to occur before Monday, officials said. The province already had discarded any idea of asking for a "court reference" to test the bans because that would have required at least four months.

Speculation is that Alberta plans to arrange to send a shipment of southern cattle into B.C. Route and means of the transportation also are a matter of speculation.

Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman is on his way to Ottawa where he will discuss all angles of the foot-and-mouth disease and resulting embargoes with Federal Agriculture Minister James Gardiner.

Dr. W. R. Gunn, livestock commissioner, and interested officials from other provinces also will attend the meeting, called by Gardiner for April 2 and 3.

Before Bowman left today he said there would be no change in the government's meat import policy until after the Ottawa parley.

On his return here he will meet with B.C. cattlemen. At present only livestock from northern Alberta may be shipped to British Columbia. Agriculture officials here took this stand in order to have the Alberta points of origin as far as possible from the Saskatchewan quarantine area.

200 Miles Per Gallon Claimed

NEW LISKEARD, Ont., March 29 (CP)—George Hastings, 40-year-old crippled farmer, says he has invented a carburetor which he claims will enable an automobile to travel up to 200 miles on a gallon of gasoline. The average car goes about 18 to 20 miles on a gallon.

Representatives of three oil companies, a bank manager and Mayor W. J. Barry attended a recent demonstration of the carburetor.

CULVERT IN ALBERTA

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., March 29 (CP)—A car dropped 25 feet through a washed-out, culvert-bridge on a highway at the edge of Medicine Hat's limits Friday night, sending two women passengers to hospital with minor injuries.

It was the weirdest incident of several occurrences in the spring thaw that has hit southern Alberta.

The car was passing over the bridged highway when it just disappeared through a hole 15 feet in diameter in the pavement. It somersaulted and buried itself in a pile of dirt in the runoff gully below.

The occupants were able to crawl out of the overturned car and clamber up a ladder which rescuers lowered down the side of the gully. The car driver, Norman D. MacDonald, escaped injury but his wife and his mother, Mrs. David MacDonald, were taken to hospital.

Canadian Pacific Railway tracks have been cut by swirling waters at several points. Road bans have been slapped on several major highways.

At least nine families in an industrial section on the eastern outskirts of Medicine Hat have been forced to flee their homes as runoff waters continue to swell creeks and streams. Some were rescued by firemen in an aluminum boat.

Big Naval Expansion Program Behind Deal

Expansion of the Pacific Coast naval establishment at Esquimalt to take in the area now occupied by Yarrows No. 1 shipyard is in the planning stage at Ottawa, it was learned authoritatively today.

In addition to the Yarrows No. 1 yards, the government also plans to acquire the Manning Lumber Company property, formerly owned by Yarrows, and now known as Yarrows No. 2.

WOULD MOVE
If and when this deal is completed, Yarrows could move its civilian work to the No. 2 yards which would be leased to them by the government.

The federal government is negotiating for purchase of the yard, to obtain additional jetties and shipyards to care for new ships which are to be added to the west coast command.

The three-year building program to bring Canada's fleet up to this figure was announced last week by Vice-Admiral E. R. Main, chief of naval staff.

Although no official statement can be obtained from the government or from Yarrows, a reliable source said the plan, which has been considered for several years, is now going forward.

The project has been advocated by Fisheries Minister Robert Manthorpe for some time. Although present facilities at H.M.C. Dockyard and H.M.C.S. Naden are adequate for the number of ships based here, expansion of R.C.N. to a 100-ship navy would mean more ships in the Pacific command.

SERVICE WORK
The navy does not intend to use the area for new ship construction, but for berthing, servicing, and maintaining ships of the active fleet.

It is likely that the main part of Yarrows civilian work will be done in Vancouver when the deal is completed. At present civilian work at Yarrows includes: 41 aluminum high tension towers for Aluminum Company of Canada; a steel tug for Powell River Cement Co.; refit of C.P.S.S. Motor Princess; and in the plans stage are four steel barges, and a new type of steel-hulled fishboat.

It's even on all counts as Victoria Cougars and New Westminster Royals renew their best-of-seven Pacific Coast Hockey League semifinal series in New Westminster tonight.

Cougars squared the series here Friday night with a 3-2 victory, same score, by which Royals captured Wednesday's opener in the Royal City.

On the injured list, the toll is also equal. Cougars' Jack McIntyre, who missed Friday's game, will be resting an injured ankle while Blinky Boyce of the Royals will hobble into Queen's Park as a spectator.

Boyce suffered torn ligaments in his knee when in collision with Ernie Roche and will likely be out for the season.

Bob Baillance will replace McIntyre. Don Slater is a possible replacement for Boyce. Fifty members of the Cougar Booster Club were scheduled to travel by air and sea to the mainland for the game.

On other P.C.H.L. fronts, Tacoma Rockets, who lead the series 2-0, will host Seattle Ironmen, while Edmonton Flyers are at home to Saskatoon Quakers who also boast a two-game lead. Both quarter-final series are best-of-five affairs.
